LIONEL WALTER SELLS FORDS AT PETER POLLEN FORD

Fire Guts Flats

Victoria firemen and police are investigating the possibility of arson in a fire which gutted the unoccupied Waverley Apartments at 1417 Douglas today.

A spokesman for the fire department said while it is too early to say definitely that the fire was deliberately set, indications are fires broke out simultaneously in more than one suite.

There was no one living in the 16-unit apartment which takes up the top two floors of the three-storey Waverley Building.

No injuries were reported.

Firemen were unable to assess the loss although water damage to Shores Jewelers on the ground floor at 1409 Douglas is expected to run into thousands of dollars.

Two other ground floor stores, Stevenson's Homemade Candy Shop Ltd., and City Hall News also received some water damage.

The fire was spotted at 9:40 a.m.

Ken Hope, manager of Shores Jewelers said a man rushed in to tell him the building was on fire. He went next door, looked through a glass window on the Waverley Apartment door and saw flames at the top of the staircase.

Police cordoned off the 1400-block Douglas while firemen, assisted by a unit from Saanich, fought the blaze.

'STRENGTHENS B.C. BASE'

Mac-Blo Launches $450M Expansion

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

MacMillan Bloedel today announced it plans to spend $450 million over the next five years to modernize and expand its British Columbia operations.

The program includes $90 million to improve sawmills and pulp and paper operations in Port Alberni and $62 million to modernize the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo.

An additional $174 million will be spent on logging, much of it on Vancouver Island.

Last December, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. announced a $125 million two-year capital program in what company chairman Robert Rogers called "an act of faith" in the future of B.C.

In announcing the projects, MacMillan Bloedel president Calvert Knudsen said:

"This investment program in British Columbia should lay to rest any concern that MacMillan Bloedel might diminish its British Columbia indentity or neglect its British Columbia resource.

"MacMillan Bloedel has its roots in British Columbia and it intends to strengthen its British Columbia base. We are confident that the forest products industry in this province has good prospects for the future and we hope to participate in the realization of those prospects."

He warned, however, that the expansion program is based upon the assumption the business climate in B.C. will continue to improve. If conditions worsened in terms of government regulations, taxation or labor problems, capital spending industry will again dry up.

In addition to the $450 million program, the company will spend $140 million in its operations outside British Columbia over the next five years.

Of the $450 million, a total of $253 million will be spent on logging and sawmills while the remaining $190 million will go toward modernizing pulp and paper operations. The other $7 million will be spent on research and development.

The total includes $78 million for features related to pollution abatement, health and safety.

At Powell River $63 million will be spent including $16 million for a second thermo-chemical pulp section.

At Port Alberni the expenditure of $90 million includes $58 million to modernize the pulp and paper operation, $20 million for improvements to the main sawmill plus $12 million to improve other mills.

A new sawmill will be constructed, probably near Chemainus but the site has not yet been selected.

It will spend $16 million to build a new self-propelled self-dumping log carrier, an improved version of the Haida Monarch, which went into operation in 1975.

The $174 million for logging includes $97 million for new equipment on Vancouver Island, Queen Charlottes and the coastal region. Another $50 million is for new roads.

SNAKE IN THE MAIL FOR POLITICIAN

GWELO, Rhodesia (UPI) — When Samson Hove shook the unexpected parcel and it shook back, he got worried.

Hove is an official of Bishop Abel Muzorwea's black United African National Council. Recalling that a Zambian politician recently received a parcel that blew up in his face, Hove put his parcel up in a tree and called the law.

Police satisfied themselves that the parcel contained no explosives. They ripped off the wrappings and out came a highly ruffled puff adder.

"The adder was very angry," a police spokesman said of the short thick and highly venomous snake.

"We think the parcel was posted in Bulawayo. It seems the snake was intended as a form of political message, passed from one politician to another," a spokesman said.

Inquiry Calls For Phillips

VANCOUVER (CP) — Economic Development Minister Don Phillips and Art Cameron, his former constituency secretary, will be called to testify to the Grizzly Valley pipeline inquiry in March, inquiry counsel Ernest Alexander said today.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith, was called by Premier Bill Bennett to investigate possible wrongdoing in connection with pipeline development in Mr. Phillips' northeast British Columbia constituency.

Earlier testimony at the inquiry from Stephen Rogers (SC — Vancouver South) has linked Phillips to land holdings in the area to be affected by pipeline development.

Ivor Emberton, an official of the land management branch in Victoria, told the inquiry today that all Cown land along the 92-mile proposed pipeline route has been reserved since April 30, 1976, to await completion of studies into the development of roads and future town sites.

Emberton said that only a width of about two lots at the north end of the pipeline route touches privately-held land. He said until studies concerning coal, oil and gas development in the region are completed, his department will disallow all applications for land.

Earlier the inquiry was told land and stock speculation in connection with the Grizzly Valley pipeline "really had nothing to do with Phillips."

"This has been my mistake and my problem," Arthur Weeks, former special assistant to the minister, told the inquiry at the conclusion of his testimony Tuesday.

Weeks said he "never revealed any confidential information to anyone" that would have enabled them to benefit from prior knowledge of the pipeline project.

Weeks went on to say he was "aware of no wrong-doing with respect to stock, land or misuse of confidential information" by anyone in the government.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith, was ordered by Premier Bennett Jan. 11 after it was revealed that Weeks, Art Cameron, Weeks's constituency secretary and two employees of the British Columbia Petroleum Corp. had traded in shares of two oil companies in the Grizzly Valley region before the official announcement of the pipeline's construction.

Weeks was fired by government order-in-council Dec. 22 after he disclosed his stock holdings in Cheyenne Petroleum Ltd. to Phillips. The $100-million pipeline project would connect gas reserves owned by Cheyenne, Quasar Petroleum Ltd. and other firms to the provincial pipeline system.

Weeks also denied he offered a friend confidential information on land developments in northeast British Columbia. He simply offered his

ICBC Stipend $3,750

The temporary vice-chairman of the Insurance Corporation of B.C. is paid a "stipend" of $3,750 a month, ICBC head Pat McGeer said Tuesday.

Vice-chairman Ralph Gillen, also a vice-president of strategic planning and development of MacMillan-Bloedel, is paid that amount because ICBC cannot pay salaries high enough to attract full time senior executives, McGeer said.

The "stipend" actually represents a savings to the Crown corporation, McGeer said, because Gillen would be paid more money if his remuneration was on the normal board of directors basis of $250 a day.

ICBC is trying to recruit new senior executives but until they can be found, Gillen was asked to serve on a full-time basis for a "couple of months," McGeer said.

Answering questions in the legislature, the minister said he saw no conflict of interest in having a MacMillan Bloedel vice-president serve as vice-chairman of the Crown corporation.

McGeer said Gillen was requested to put in a full-time performance at ICBC, Gillen then made the request of MacMillan Bloedel, and "MacMillan Bloedel, as a good corporate citizen, made him available for a period."

The revelation of the "stipend" of $3,750 a month (which would amount to $45,000 for a full year) brought hoots of laughter in the legislature.

Tory leader Scott Wallace said outside the house he had always been under the impression that stipends were for people like preachers who were paid inadequately.

"To suggest that this man is paid that because of a shortage of executives is an insult to the intelligence of the members of this house."

The going rate for a senior executive in the insurance business in Canada is about $90,000 a year, McGeer said, and because ICBC pays only about half that, it is having trouble attracting senior people.

ICBC now pays about $500,000 a year in executive salaries and the Crown corporation will have to take a look at increasing that, he said.

"Because of the low salaries and the kind of publicity the corporation has had during its first three years, it is not the sort of job to make anyone move (from private industry) even for an equivalent salary."

N-PLANT 'FORTRESS'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is ordering utility companies to transform every nuclear power plant into an armed fortress capable of withstanding attack by trained guerrillas who have help from inside.

Tough new nuclear regulatory Commission security rules taking effect this fall will require atomic plants to have more guards, install surveillance equipment and assault barriers, search employees and visitors and maintain a defence force with authority to shoot to kill.

The cost will be high — up to four times what power plants now spend on security and some employees may dislike the new restrictions. But NRC officials say they will shut down any plant that fails to comply.

Benard Rusche, the NRC's reactor regulation chief, announced the security crackdown in a news conference Tuesday. He estimated it may cost each of the nation's 69 planned or anticipated nuclear plants up to $2.5 million to provide beefed-up security and up to $2 million a year to maintain it.

The requirement, he said, is for plants to be able to repulse an attack by dedicated saboteurs who have automatic weapons, explosives, military training and perhaps an accomplice inside.

Ottawa Launching Study Into Retirement Incomes

Times News Service

OTTAWA — The federal government has launched a study of retirement income and is examining tax measures which affect private pension systems, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald informed the Commons Tuesday.

The study is being conducted by officials of the finance and health and welfare departments. The results are expected to be available in a few months.

"The sutdy is in the broadest sense to consider the questions of retirement income, particularly those related to the jurisdiction of the government of Canada," said the minister.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York Simcoe) raised the matter in the house pointing out that the Canada Pension Plan reportedly will pass a threshold on or before 1982. At that time, he said, benefit payments will exceed tax revenue.

He asked Macdonald to indicate what steps the government intends to take to ensure that the Canada Pension Plan will be properly funded and not become a burden upon future taxpayers.

The minister said penisons in Canada is a matter that has received "some consideration by the government."

Stevens said there is a "great hodge-podge" of governmental pension plans at all levels of the administration.

Some are funded, some are not.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde also said Tuesday he hopes new pension legislation will be proclaimed on or before July 1.

And, he told the Commons health, welfare and social affairs committee, he is prepared to negotiate pension agreements with foreign countries as soon as the bill gets Commons approval.

Proclamation of the bill will mark the beginning of a 40-year period of adjustment during which current and former residents can apply for a pension under residency requirements in either the old or new legislation, whichever is the most advantageous to them.

Under the new law, each year of residency in Canada after age 18 will be worth one-fortieth of a full pension.

Lalonde stressed that no one getting pensions at the time the bill is proclaimed will be affected by the new law. Residents who are at least 25 years old when the bill is proclaimed will be able to choose between the old and new regulations.

OLD TARGET FOR ANDERSON

Former Liberal politician David Anderson is back doing what he does best — fighting the big oil companies and their pipeline and tanker plans.

Anderson, seen by some environmentalists as a knight in shining armor, is ready to do battle, he says. See Page 13 for details.

Uganda Massacre Reported

Times News Service

DAR ES SALAAM — President Idi Aman has launched a massacre of two predominantly Christian tribes in Uganda, a group of 22 refugees claimed today after arriving in neighboring Tanzania.

In Kampala, Uganda's capital, Amin told reporters he had put down a coup that was to include an airborne landing by paratroopers from the United States, Britain and Israel.

The refugees in Tanzania said students, police, soldiers and civil servants belonging to the northern Acholi and Langi tribes were being rounded up and "liquidated" to purge the government apparatus of menbers of the tribes.

Western diplomatic sources in Nairobi, Kenya, said shooting was heard for 30 minutes Tuesday evening in Kampala's Mugire prison, where the Langi and Acholi detainees were reported being held.

Some refugee reports put the number of persons killed in the East African country's latest bloodletting at more than 1,000.

Confirmation of the refugees' reports was not available. But Amnesty International estimates that Amin's forces have killed between 50,000 and 300,000 persons since he seized power six years ago.

The sources said Amin believes the two tribes, in a plot mastermindeed by former president Milton Obots, were out to overthrow him.

U.S.-Canada Ties 'in Good Shape'

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Trudeau ended his official visit to the United States today, after assuring that Canada will remain united despite talk of French-Canadian separatism, and U.S.-Canadian relations are on solid ground.

Trudeau held a final round of talks with President Jimmy Carter Tuesday on issues ranging from Quebec to Cuba and world affairs.

"There are no irritants on either side," a Canadian official said after the 90-minute summit talk Tuesday. "They agreed that bilateral relations are in good shape and in good hands."

Trudeau and Carter met twice and got along famously. A senior White House official said later he had never seen Carter relate so well so quickly to another person as he did to Trudeau.

Officials said Carter and Trudeau discussed, among other bilateral issues, the Quebec separatist threat, coastal fishing rights and the construction of a gas pipeline across Canada from Alaska to the continental United States.

They said discussion of international issues included Canada's relations with Cuba and Trudeau's meeting with Cuban leaders. Canada maintains full diplomatic and trade relations with Havana, while Carter has expressed interest in restoring such relations under certain conditions.

At a press conference before leaving Washington, Trudeau warned the separation of Quebec from Canada would have much graver implications for the United States than the 1972 Soviet attempt to place nuclear missiles in Cuba.

Emphasizing his belief that the United States has a fundamental interest in Canadian unity, he added that "they are properly sensitive about interfering in our internal problems" and they are concerned that they should not interfere.

He refused to speculate further on the implications of Quebec separatism, saying it will not happen and he sees no point is discussing such issues as to what an independent Quebec would mean to North American defence.

He also rejected the idea of a national referendum in Canada on the Quebec issue, saying he has no doubt that the rest of Canada wants to keep

MLAs Oppose Trident Base

Thirty-five of the 55 B.C. MLAs support a motion expressing concern over the Trident nuclear submarine base in Bangor, Wash., organizers of the motion said Tuesday.

Of the remaining 20 MLAs, 14 have not yet made up their minds, five have not yet been canvassed and only one—Education Minister Pat McGeer—expressed any firm opposition.

The private member's motion which will come before the legislature later this session is sponsored by Socred MLA Cyril Shelford (Skeena) and co-sponsored by NDP MLA Bob Skelly (Alberni).

The motion was made at the urging of the Pacific Life Community, an anti-Trident protest group, and says the legislature should express concern to the Canadian government about Trident-like missile bases in either the U.S. or Russia.

The motion, with a few changes, was also on the order paper last session, but never came to a vote, a traditional fate of private members' motions.

Both Shelford and Skelly said they were optimistic this time because of the support from all sides of the house.

Pacific Life Community spokesman David Jackman said McGeer's opposition to the motion may not be as firm as indicated. McGeer was stopped briefly in the hallway by a communtiy canvasser, Jackman said, and when asked if he would support the Shelford motion said "No," but Jackman said, it was only brief conversation.

Shelford said he wanted to see an end of the "craziness" of arms proliferation when there already exists enough nuclear weapons to "blow the world up 20 times."

Skelly said he and the NDP have always been opposed to the arms race as a "threat to all life on earth."

Inquiry Calls for Phillips

friend, real estate developer Larry Killam, the advice that real estate was bound to increase in value around the pipeline corridor, Weeks said.

Rogers testified Monday that Killam reported a conversation with Weeks in which Weeks described land suitable for development and available for purchase. Killam understood that some of the land belonged to Phillips, Rogers testified.

Weeks

Weeks said the conversation, which took place over lunch close to the end of September, actually revolved around Killam's financial affairs.

"Larry advised me of the sale of all his properties in Gastown," Weeks said. "He had $1 million in the bank and it was of considerable concern to him that he couldn't find anything to do with it.

"The money was burning a hole in his pocket. I said Larry, you're a real estate developer and that northeast sector is going to happen. If you want to turn that $1 million into $10 million, you better get up there and build some houses."

Weeks said he offered Killam, a childhood friend, "some information, not confidential, about the lay of the land, where the development was to occur."

Weeks said he told his friend he "would get what information I could on where the development was to occur." He said that at the time, a townsite was contemplated for the Tumbler Ridge area, south of Dawson Creek near the gas fields and possible coal developments.

Weeks said he had "no recollection of conversation about Phillips' holding" in the area and, in fact, "I had knowledge Phillips' holdings were disposed of immediately before or after the election of 1975."

Weeks said Phillips called him to his office Dec. 19 after controversy about stock trading erupted in the Legislature. Phillips told him he would have to resign "until you are cleared of these charges, Weeks said.

"Mr. Phillips said he would have to fire me because it was an indiscretion not becoming of his office," Weeks testified. Weeks said he described his stock hodlings and refused to resign because "I haven't done anything wrong."

Weeks said Phillips told him that "in his own opinion, he didn't think it an act worthy of being fired (for), but other powers, I took it to mean the premier, thought I should be fired."

The order-in-council appointing Weeks was rescinded Dec. 22.

Rogers returned to the stand Tuesday to clarify his testimony Monday about Killam's conversation with Weeks. He said a telephone conversation with Killam after his testimony Monday necessitated two changes.

Killam was not aware which oil company Weeks had invested in, Rogers testified, and Killam also does not believe Weeks offered confidential land information.

In Monday's testimony, Rogers reported that Killam spoke of being offered legal descriptions of potentially valuable real estate in the development region. Rogers also said Killam had remembered Cheyenne as the company Weeks was mentioning as a stock investment.

The inquiry also heard from Bruna Martinuzzi, former administrative assistant to BCPC chairman George Lechner. Miss Martinuzzi resigned in January because she felt she could not honestly sign a declaration demanded by corporation lawyers swearing she had not mentioned the pipeline development to anyone.

Lechner said Monday his secretary had told her boyfriend that August shares might increase in value, but left the impression neither of the two had purchased any stock.

In fact, said Miss Martinuzzi, her boyfriend did buy stock early in December without telling her. She said she had told him in mid-August that shares in August Petroleum "might go up."

"It was an unfortunate slip of the tongue . . . when one mentions things that shouldn't be mentioned," she said.

Her boyfriend bought the shares almost four months later "acting only on his stockbrokers' advice," Miss Martinuzzi said.

Details of the transaction will be revealed in later testimony. Miss Martinuzzi said she felt she had not done anything wrong, but resigned to avoid embarrassing her employer.

Inquiry counsel Ernest Alexander said Weeks's testimony will be followed by evidence about land transactions and mineral holdings in the development region.

McGeer Sets Anti-Vandal Program

Education Minister Pat McGeer Tuesday promised a new program to deal with problems of vandalism in schools.

McGeer said the B.C. School Trustees Association estimate of $7 million damage thorugh vandalism in a single year is substantially understated. But he would not say what the real figure is.

The minister said he will be announcing in just a few days a new policy and program to deal with vandalism in the schools, and at that time he should have up-to-date damage figures available.

McGeer said he hopes the government will be able to bring a concerted attack on the problem and be successful in reducing vandalism. He said there is no question it has been escalating and "this past year has been the worst in history."

Hunt Freed After 32 Months

Times News Services

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. — E. Howard Hunt slipped out of federal prison before dawn today, eluding newsmen after spending 32 months behind bars for masterminding the 1972 break-in at the Democratic Party National Headquarters in Washington, D.C.

A prison official read a statement at 4 a.m. (PST) saying Hunt had been paroled from the federal minimum security prison.

As he was reading, a laundry truck was seen speeding away, but it was not known if Hunt was inside.

The official said Hunt, during his prison stay, "conducted himself as a gentleman."

The official also said Hunt "did not wish to be interviewed at this time and would advise the news media as to his availability at a later date."

Meanwhile, the four Miamians recruited for the original Watergate burglary and arrested inside the Democratic Party offices will be paid $200,000 by attorneys for former president Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign fund to settle a civil lawsuit, their attorneys announced Tuesday in Washington.

The four — Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis — had claimed in their suit that they were tricked into participating in the burglary by officials of the 1972 Committee to Re-Elect the President.

Although not admitting any liability in the settlement, the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust that now handles the committee's affairs agreed to make the $200,000 payment rather than go to trial on the charges.

Each of the four who have asked President Carter for pardons, served 14 months in prison.

"They've served their time and now they want to have their records clear," said one attorney.

The suit had asked for $500,000 in compensatory damages and $500,000 in punitive damages for each of the four.

Oil Import Secrecy Veil Lifted

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal energy department has partically lifted the veil of secrecy surrounding the import of Russian crude oil into Montreal.

A department spokesman said Tuesday the Russian oil was sold to an unnamed Canadian buyer, "for about $12 a barrel," plus transportation.

Earlier the department declined coomment on reports from Montreal quoting industry officials as saying the price might be as low as $9 a barrel, saying it was confidential information.

The spokesman said he still could not say what were the transportation charges on the shipments.

About 335,000 barrels of Russian oil came into the country in one shipment in mid-January, the latest in a series that have totalled about one million barrels in the last nine months.

The department said a company that normally imports oil products has been bringing in the Russian oil.

It found it cheaper to buy the crude and pay a Canadian refinery to process it than to bring in products.

Ottawa Planning Plug In Takeover Loophole

Times News Services

The federal government plans to plug a hole in federal legislation which permitted the Alberta government to buy Pacific Western Airlines without Canadian transport commission approval, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday in Ottawa.

In an unanimous judgment earlier in the day, the Supreme Court of Canada upheld the Alberta purchase.

Lang told reporters the planned legislation would be unlikely to retroactively overturn the Alberta purchase.

Asked whether the legislation would prevent any future provincial takeover of airlines, he said that was a "distinct possibility but I would like to reflect further on that."

B.C. Attorney-General Garde Gardom, meanwhile called Lang to overturn the takeover.

Gardom quoted Lang as saying last August that, if the Surpeme Court of Canada approved the purchase, the federal Cabinet might overrule it through special legislation.

Now that the court has ruled in Alberta's favor, Gardom called on Lang to stick to that commitment.

He said if the supreme court of Canada decision was to hold without legislative action on the part of the federal government, it perhaps could open the way for rather bald-faced interprovincial takeovers which could hardly be interpreted as unifying factors.

Gardom also said B.C. may make a direct appeal to cabinet if experts say it would have a constitutional chance of success.

Alberta Transport Minister Hugh Horner said, however, that he had received assurances from Lang last week that no further federal action would be taken.

Horner said he was pleased by the decision because it "removes the political shackles" on the company's operations and enables the airline to finish moving its executives to Calgary, from Vancouver.

Four 'Fired' Musicians Given Symphony Chance

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The Victoria Symphony Society moved Tuesday night to squelch what music director Laszlo Gati termed "an insidious campaign" by agreeing to reinstate the musicians whose contracts were not renewed last month.

Gati told society board members he recommends new contracts be offered to four of the five musicians affected or, because of the political overtones to the latest controversy, they be given a chance to re-audition. One of the five actually resigned.

He said he will bring in experts from outside Victoria "to assure a completely impartial assessment of their artistic ability."

The board members, after a short discussion, agreed to Gati's suggestions and the expressed opinion that it is within themusic director's jurisdiction to solve the matter.

The controversy surrounding the non-renewal of the contracts for the musicians has been simmering for more than a week and dominated the board's regular meeting.

Gati and society president John Di Castri say the contracts were not renewed as part of the board's decision to increase the number of professionals in the ohestra.

However, sources close to the orchestra, say the real reason was political, that they were fired because they were opposed to Gati. The board's case doesn't stand up they say because at least three of the musicians involved were part of the professional core.

At the outset of Tuesday's meeting, Gati read a statement saying that not renewing musicians contracts is standard practice at times and that those affected have the opportunity to re-audition.

Despite this fact, he said, "in the last few weeks an incredibly vicious and well organized campaign was started through the media, which could be extremely damaging to the best interests of the orchestra."

In order to put a stop to "this insidious campaign," he said, he is putting forward his recommendations for reinstating the musicians.

Gati said a conductor's assessment of a musician is done over a period of time and is not just a matter of the individual's ability "but also empathy and co-operation between musician and conductor."

The board also agreed to a suggestion from Tom Tucker, president of the Musicians Association, Local 247, for a joint meeting between the union and the orchestra management.

The board endorsed a motion that symphony manager Michael Englebert, Gati and Di Castri meet the union representatives.

Tucker said today he is pleased with the board's decision and felt "this would be the answer to it all."

He said both sides have to get together to "put Pandora back in the box."

In his letter to the board, Tucker said the main reason for the meeting was the need for the union to get some information on the non-renewal of the contracts.

The union has no facts, he said, and no explanation of why the musicianship of the players involved is suspect.

Despite the controversy which led to the resignation of one board member last week and, according to reports, has upset other board members, Tuesday's meeting was quiet.

Di Castri said he hoped the measures taken have "Cleared the air" as far as the orchestra is concerned.

He read from a Feb. 3 statement to the orchestra that "the artistic competence and integrity of the music director is not in question by the board."

Di Castri said the quality of the orchestra has been continually improving over the last 10 years under Gati's leadership.

He said he is distressed that the progress made this year is being threatened by those seeking notoriety through the media.

Victoria Ald. Bob Wright, the board's negotiating chairman, said the artistic controversy should now be over.

He felt efforts should now be directed at other matters, such as the fact, reported at the meeting, that the society needs to raise $50,000 by July 1 if the orchestra is to end the season without a deficit.

Labor Suffers Defeat

LONDON (Reuter) — The Labor government suffered a major defeat in Parliament on Tuesday night which might crush its attempt to set up separate parliaments for Scotland and Wales.

The government, aiming to give a measure of self-government to the two regions, was defeated by 312 votes to 283.

"The government has done its best, we shall now have to think of how we are going to fulfil our commitments to the people of Scotland and Wales," Prime Minister James Callaghan said.

But it was the defection of about 35 Labor MPs which brought defeat for Labor, which has 314 seats in Parliament, the same number as he combined opposition.

Opposition shouts of "Resign" rang through the House of Commons.

The government will not heed the advice, but was distressed at the defeat, which was on a motion to limit debate on the bill to 20 days.

Only three out of 117 clauses on the bill have been dealt with so far. It aims at setting up separate assemblies to administer schools, health and social work and the environment in Scotland and Wales.

The government gained 41 of the 71 seats in Scotland at the last general election in 1974, but the Scottish National Party took 11 seats and is becoming increasingly popular over its demands for complete independence.

The government's options now are limited. It might try to make another attempt to curtail debate by a so-called "guillotine" motion in the next few weeks. But such a measure would probably fail.

Or the government may present the bill in another form and so satisfy the Labor rebels, who believe high unemployment areas in England might be financially deprived in favor of Scotland and Wales.

Other moves would be for the government to hold its promised referenda on whether the Scots and Welsh actually want limited self-government or take up the opposition Conservative party's offer of an all-party conference on the issue.

CLEMMIE SAYS NO

LONDON (AP) — The ailing 91-year-old widow of Sir Winston Churchill said Tuesday she wants no help with the money troubles that forced her to sell some of her furniture and silver to make ends meet.

Amid a public uproar over her problems, Lady Clementine Churchill issued a statement saying she would "greatly deplore any idea that either special legislation or an appeal be initiated on her behalf."

A New Spark . . .

Prime Minister Trudeau struck just the right balance in his speech to the joint session of the U.S. congress. By turns he was defiant, eloquent, challenging, firm.

It was simple but brilliant, and its impact was much enhanced by the location of his lectern, before U.S. senators and representatives, justices of the supreme court, the president and vice-president—in short the leaders of the most powerful nation in the world.

They were curious, concerned and puzzled about Canada's current crisis, and the prime minister's speech dealt directly with their questions. At the same time, the speech probably also explained to English-Canadians better than any news story out of Quebec or report of parliamentary debates just why Quebec stands on the threshold of secession.

Canada has failed to create conditions in which French-Canadians feel they enjoy equal citizenship with other Canadians. They do not feel welcome. And it is not a nebulous thing, impossible to quantify.

The prime minister did not speak of generalities. There are enough specific examples of mindless hostility towards the French language and culture to reinforce his contention. Only last week the mayor of Calgary, a WASP of impeccable credentions, termed the Parti Quebecois a collection of gangsters and criminals and smeared the whole province of Quebec. Our own Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm says he is sick and tired of the fuss made over Quebec and wouldn't lose any sleep if it separated. Besides it would mean no more French-speaking welfare bums cluttering up B.C. and he wouldn't have to read French on his corn flakes box every morning. The crowd at the defence department auction in Esquimalt last month booed when the terms of sale were read out in French as well as English.

To any sane English-Canadian these seem like minor abberrations, but in Quebec they made an important impact. They were front-page news, and reported and analyzed as typical reactions from English Canada. That conclusion is reinforced by the lack of any loud, public rebuke or comments to the contrary from responsible leaders and figures with the authority to affect public opinion.

The prime minister's speech to our interested neighbors to the south was not so crude as to include such examples of terrible insensitivity and bald race prejudice, but they must have been on the minds of any Canadian watching or listening to Trudeau via national radio and television.

We hope the prime minister's speech was the first step back towards rekindling a sense of reasonable co-operation and compromise among the majority in this country. We must shake off our passivity and demonstrate to Quebecers that the bigotry demonstrated by some English-Canadians is no more typical than the cruel race-baiting of Sheriff Bull Connor of Selma, Alabama is typical of mainstream American thinking on the race problem in the U.S.

It is a speech that the prime minister and his lieutenants should deliver in various versions from Vancouver Island to the Strait of Belle Isle. Its tone of firm determination and optimism is something that's long been absent from Canadian public affairs.

The reaction to Trudeau's speech so far has been encouraging. Spokesman for all political parties agree that he was eloquent and forceful. It could ignite a new spark among Canadians and extinguish the sour, crabbed negativism that has dominated the country for much of the decade.

Perhaps in the coming struggle to demonstrate to Quebec that it is needed and wanted by the rest of Canada, that its future lies within Confederation, Canadians can at last put an end to the search for our national identity. If we can survive and co-operate, prove to the world that peoples of diverse languages and cultures scattered across 4,000 miles can be held together under a democracy, weather frequent squabbles and still hold to the centre, show that there is a "Canadian dream," that is a goal worth striving mightily for and an accomplishment to be exceedingly proud of.

. . . and Some Fire Below

Canadian separatists of all hues have been put on notice that the United States government favors a united Canada. President Jimmy Carter's frank interview with the CTV network Monday night laid it on the line:

"If I was the one to make the decision, the Confederation would be my preference, but that's a decision for the Canadian people to make." By his very candor on the subject Carter has obviously decided not to leave the question to Canadians alone. When a U.S. President chooses sides in a Canadia domestic dispute, Americans are concerned.

While Carter made light of the future possibility of a balkanized Canada he was perfectly clear on the U.S. reaction to the unthinkable: "The stability of Canada as a friend and a reliable neighbor is an integral part of our lives . . ." Asked if he saw a time when Canada and the United States might be politically integrated Carter replied: "I think that would be an unlikely prospect but who knows about the future?" Vital U.S. interests, including a $31 billion investment and defence of the U.S. northern frontier, are predicated on a stable Canada amenable to foreign investment. If American alarm at a bifurcated Canada is pragmatic rather than emotional, it is understandable. Carter was also careful to point out that both countries share a great opportunity for cooperation . . . in the exchange of energy sources."

Undoubtedly the moral suasion of a U.S. president on its friendliest neighbor will dampen separatist fires, if only temporarily. But in the euphoria engendered by unusual U.S. attention, we should remember that it is Canadians, and Canadians alone, who will solve our problems of national unity. But Carter has raised some seminal questions about U.S. reaction to our divisiveness. Since the U.S. has seen fit to take sides publicly on the future of Canada what will be their next move? If the U.S. favors a united Canada how far will it go to ensure that outcome? There is also the question of Carter's allusion to sharing energy resources. Is a new form of continentalism back on the bargaining table?

While Canadians and Americans are divided by "background, heritage, language, structure of government and climate," as the U.S. president stated, our historic friendship transcends differences. And the vast majority of Canadians, both English and French-speaking, will welcome Carter's Confederation remarks as a reinforcement to our own desires.

Yet it is a tacit comment on our nationhood that both Rene Levesque and Pierre Trudeau fired the opening salvoes in the battle for Canada's future on U.S. soil. It is something to reflect on as we fight to keep Canada an independent united country.

HAROLD GREER

Right to Self-determination

TORONTO — The willingness of federalists to accept Premier Rene Levesque's "referendum" on Quebec independence as a legitimate and democratic process can only be explained by their confidence in winning it. They see it as a challenge which Levesque is bound to lose. Therefore, let's get it over with and dispose of the problem. Let's not be fussy about the means.

Expediency no doubt has its place in politics but such naivete can be dangerous. Even if Quebecers do reject independence in the referendum, that will not be the end of it. As I sought to show in my first article, Levesque does not have that concept of a "referendum." There will be another and another until the "momentum of change," to quote his phrase, produces the results he wants.

The anti-separatists, moreover, do not seem to realize that by agreeing to play by Levesque's rules, they tend to legitimize his position that a favorable referendum of Quebecers is all that is necessary to start opting-out negotiations with Ottawa. If and when he wins such a referendum, it will be too late to cry foul.

Basic Integrity

Rene Levesque, surely, deserves better opposition than that. He has declared repeatedly that he wants to arrive at Quebec independence by fair and just means, that he has faith in "the basic integrity of Canadian democracy." He ought to be open, therefore, to argument that his means are not as fair and just and democratic as he seems to think they are.

Levesque's fundamental position, if I understand it correctly, is based on the principle of the self-determination of peoples. By language and culture, he argues, French-speaking Quebecers are a people entitled to leave Canada and have their own country if most of them wish to do so.

One could argue this philosophically, but never mind. If force is ruled out, as it surely must be, then the separation or independence of French-speaking Quebecers becomes admissible. The more relevant question is that it be discussed and decided in the fairest possible way, if only to ensure that force is not resorted to.

Unfortunately or otherwise, Confederation does not countenance secession. There is no constitutional method, no machinery for it. If the subject is to be debated (and how can it be avoided?) it is therefore necessary to devise democratic ad hoc machinery for debating it and hopefully for resolving it.

Levesque's machinery is a "referendum" of voting-age Quebecers which will authorize his government to begin negotiations with the federal government on the separation of Quebec from Canada. What happens if Ottawa refuses to negotiate is rather murky, but no matter. That's quite enough for starters.

The first and fundamental objection to

. . . another and another?

Levesque's machinery is that it is not nearly as democratic as it sounds.

It is one thing to argue self-determination for French-speaking Quebecers. It is quite another thing to equate this win the separation from Canada of a territory known as the province of Quebec. Almost 20 per cent of Quebec's population is non-French. What about their right to self-determination?

One can admit, in short, that French-speaking Quebecers have the right to be independent and to take part of the country with them. But why that part should encompass all of Quebec, and include some 1,200,000 persons who are apparently against such independence, is difficult to see.

Similarly, it is hardly democratic to assume independence before it is achieved. In Canadian federalism, the government of Quebec cannot represent the people of Quebec in all their political sovereignty. Levesque may wish it so but the fact remains Quebecers are both federal and provincial citizens until the rules of the game are changed. He cannot change the rules simply by holding a "referendum" which may somehow endow his government with the total sovereignty of the Quebec electorate. At least, he can't and call it democratic.

What's Alternative

This in turn raises perhaps the thorniest question of all, the rights of non-Quebecers. Separating Quebec or part of it from Canada would not merely produce French-Canadian independence, it would break up Canada. Levesque is uncomfortable with this other side of the coin and offers placating noises about a reunion of some kind after the divorce — his "customs union" for example. But the problem remains: Are not non-Quebecers entitled to "vote" in some effective way before the divorce?

Is it democratic, for example, to argue that Quebecers alone should decide that a Canadian living in Ontario may no longer visit Quebec as part of Canada? Or travel to the maritimes without crossing a foreign country? Or have the entrance to the St. Lawrence Seaway controlled by a foreign government?

Levesque may argue all these things are negotiable, but he cannot argue, in the name of democracy, that the best way to get to the negotiating table is through a "referendum" of Quebecers alone.

I do not pretend to know what the alternative is, although obviously if referenda are to be held they should relate to the rights of all concerned. For the moment, perhaps it would be enough if Levesque tries to be more democratic than he sounds, and if the avid anti-separatists have a care to what they are rushing into.

Second of two articles.

RICHARD GWYN

Nothing Serious, Dramatic

WASHINGTON — Each time our prime minister comes here or their president flies up there, the endlessly absorbing subject of Canada-U.S. relations gets picked at, prodded at and probed into by us journalists, who then pronounce its health as "under strain" or "improving" or "suffering from misunderstanding," or "cordial and close."

On each occasion, commentators compile a list of "irritants" in the relationship — Canadian moves to curb foreign investment, U.S. actions to protect its beef farmers — compare the quality and quantity of these with the list on the go the last time they did the same exercise and then conclude that our relations are either on the mend or on the decline.

This sort of diagnosis confuses bruises on the skin with the condition of the heart. It confuses the perpetual state of relations between the two countries with the periodic state of dealings between the two countries.

Much in Common

Relations between Canada and the U.S. — meant here in the sense of collective national attitudes and political self-interests — haven't changed in any significant way since the Second World War, nor can they ever change fundamentally unless Canada breaks up into two countries with some dangling parts pleading to be allowed to huddle south of the border.

Canada-U.S. relations can never become too strained or too close for reasons which are as well known as they are unchangeable. We share a common attachment to democracy, a common tradition of English law, a common language (we are lucky enough to have a second one) a common commercial system, a common mass culture (its potency infuriates us Canadian nationalists but is undeniable). Keeping us from ever getting too close is the self-evident fact that in an economic union Canada would be the rabbit in a horse-and-rabbit stew.

These immutabilities of our joint existence on the North American continent are simply not susceptible to the sharp ups and downs that can take place in relations between Canada and India, say, or between the U.S. and Cuba.

Cross-border dealings, meaning here those things that touch our immediate pocketbooks rather than our underlying attitudes and political attitudes, are quite different. Their state is all the time on the mend or in decline. The decrease in the gross economic disparity between us (Canada's gross national product per capita now is equal to that of the U.S., compared to a per capita deficit of about one-quarter in 1950) does mean that there are more things to argue about each year and that, each year, Canada is in a better position to argue back.

Today, it so happens, few irritants in cross-border dealings exist. One explanation has to be the competence of our diplomatic representatives — U.S. ambassador Thomas Enders and Canadian ambassador Jake Warren in Washington. Those on the short list to succeed Warren include former external affairs minister Mitchell Sharp, Anti-Inflation Board chairman Jean-Luc Pepin and the assistant undersecretary of state for external affairs, Peter Towe.

A second explanation has to be the sheer luck of timing. The spat created by the magazine legislation and the deletion of U.S. commercials on Canadian cable television systems is over. The arguments over drawing the boundaries of each country's 200-mile fishing zone haven't yet begun.

Consider the announcement last week that the U.S. was cancelling temporarily construction of the Lone Tree reservoir, which is the key element of the Garrison diversion project that will irrigate 250,000 acres of semi-arid land in North Dakota at the cost of spilling polluted water across the border into Manitoba.

This announcement quickly was interpreted as a sign President Jimmy Carter wants to improve Canada-U.S. relations. In fact, though the timing was deliberate, it amounts to a settlement, not so much between the U.S. and Canada as between two U.S. government units, the Environmental Protection Agency and the department of the interior.

The message of this example is that because Canada-U.S. relations are basically sound and particular cross-border dealings always get sorted out in the end.

Canada Lobby

With no irritants around to spoil the pleasantries, Carter and Prime Minister Trudeau will be able to use their time to discuss the Big Picture — how to turn around the North American economy, Canada's political future, the world's state of health, none of it dramatic.

Instead the drama has been stage managed for Trudeau. His televised speech to the Congress which was set up after the Quebec election result by two Senators, Charles Mathias (Rep.—Maryland) and Adlai Stevenson (Dem.—Illinois). The pair are not members of congress's so-called "Canada lobby;" they are just two American politicians determined that Canada-U.S. relations will continue now as they have done for 30 years, never too close but never seriously strained.

Children's Rights

I was particularly interested in Pat McGeer's comments on his department not interfering in the disciplining of Victoria's school children, especially since it appeared in the edition with the reporting of 30 to 40 bullying incidents at one of our local schools. Multiplying this by the 80 schools in the Greater Victoria school district, and this is a problem of nightmarish proportions.

As a parent who had to send four children to a private school last year as a result of them being beaten by older boys on the way to and from View Royal school, it is easy for me to understand how the parents of the boy who had to be hospitalized must feel.

Surely it can't be necessary for some child to be permanently maimed or even killed before action is taken? Surely the same law that protects adults from assault must be made applicable to children. Or has our civilized society become so "tuned in" to violence, that it is too much trouble for the minister of education to search for a solution, when it is apparent that the current Public Schools Act is ineffective and obsolete?

Dr. McGeer seems very engrossed in school curriculum and preparing students with the necessary job skills, but until a child's basic human rights are respected, isn't this all superfluous?—Marian Golin, Victoria.

Bluepeace

An organization to oppose the use of Kitimat as an oil port, and to ensure that the Strait of Juan de Fuca is closed to supertankers — those in excess of 150,000 tons deadweight — has been formed in Victoria. The name is Bluepeace.

Bluepeace is not a collection of do-gooders or nuts who are going to swim across the bows of tankers or bomb pipelines. It is an association of very concerned citizens, who, while realizing that our pattern of life and economy is now dependent on oil, must protest the lack of safe planning in the supply and distribution of this dangerous fuel. Oil fuel is dangerous. It is dangerous to our ecology and environment if its handling is not rigidly controlled and supervised, and to date, there is little evidence that this will be done.

What has been done? What is being done? Only federal and provincial regulations can control the traffic. From time to time, snippets and scraps of information are flung to us like dog food. This lack of information has brought about the threat of blockade, with its attendant hazards and embarrassment to authority. We need public meetings, presided over by responsible ministers, to provide us with information in order that we may exercise our democratic rights. Democracy is not only government by the people, but also government for the people. Have you heard the voice of the provincial government raised on our behalf in this very serious matter? Are they prepared to defend the fishermen, loggers, and those whose livelihood depends on tourism?

Bluepeace cannot provide regulations and control, but it can speak as an association of citizens who are not only gravely concerned, but downright fearful of what lies ahead of them.

If I lived on Dallas Road, Beach Drive, in Cadboro Bay, or Sidney, I would pick up my cheque books and run as fast as I could to the Newcombe auditorium on Monday, Feb. 28, at 8 p.m., to a mass meeting of Bluepeace, detouring enroute to visit my friendly real estate agent to remind him how fragile his market has become!

Something must be done, somebody must bell the cat, we must organize against this assault on our way of life and the future of our children. Now is the time to be "bloody, bold, and resolute." — A. G. (Lofty) Coning, President, Bluepeace, 3152 Richmond Avenue.

It's English

Reading the letter of Lorna Faulkner, (Feb. 16) on the "windy exposition of Dr. McGeer" I promptly looked up all the "non-English gems" in the Canadian Funk and Wagnall's standard college dictionary, used in Canadian colleges and universities and which edition has been revised by "more than one hundred distinguished scholars and specialists."

To my great surprise I found all these non-English words in there. Now I am really confused! Is this dictionary not to be taken seriously, or is Faulkner not up to date with the meaning of the expression "living language". In fact I feel she should apologize for her vindictive suggestion to hang Pat McGeer!—Multilingual Citizen.

Arms Race Moves Closer to 'Death Ray'

By DREW MIDDLETON

The death ray is still in the realm of science fiction, but lasers powerful enough to inflict significant damage are moving toward the arsenals of the Soviet Union and the United States.

Dr. Kumar Patel, inventor of the high-energy carbon-monoxide laser, said recently that, with current technology, his laser had the potential size, efficency and power to be packaged in a transport aircraft from which it could knock other aircraft from the sky "at long distances."

This statement focuses attention on the Defence Department's laser-weapons development group at Kirkland Air Force Base in Albuquerque, N.M. Known by the code name Eighth Card, the base is run by the Defence Advanced Research Projects Agency.

Lasers, which use highly concentrated beams of light particles called photons, are not to be confused with the particle beam, which uses charged subatomic particles. According to sources, military development of the laser beam is well ahead of that of the particle beam.

Dr. George Heilmeier, Darpa's director, denies the existence of laser superweapons in any of the services. Pentagon sources laugh at reports of death rays that can vaporize ships over the horizon.

Experiments in industrial laboratories, however, already have demonstrated lasers potent enough to inflict significant damage on planes, missiles or satellites.

Capt. G. R. Villar, a former director of British naval intelligence, reported that in 1975 it became known that the Soviet Union had developed a high-powered laser as an anti-ballistic missile weapon.

Discussing defence against missiles, Capt. Vallar said that "the only totally new line is a laser damage weapon — the single high-power beam of energy that brings the target falling out of the sky."

Writing in Jane's Weapons Systems, the standard British reference work, Capt. Villar disclosed that "on five separate occasions" the Russians "illuminated United States satellites for periods of up to four hours with powers of up to 1,000 times that seen in a forest fire or an ICBM launching."

The Defence Department would not comment on this statement. However, Lawrence Freedman, writing in Survival, published in London by the International Institute for Strategic Studies, provided an alternative explanation.

He wrote that on one occasion a U.S. early-warning satellite had been "blinded," apparently by flames from a ruptured gas-pipe line in the western part of the Soviet Union. This "blinding" he said was "prematurely attributed to a Soviet experimental ground-based laser."

The consensus in the Pentagon is that the United States leads the Russians in the pointing and tracking technology for high-energy laser weapons but continues to lag in the technology of lasers themselves.

The Defence Department remains silent on details of laser development despite increasing discussion about the possibility that high-energy lasers may be maturing into strategic weapons.

Laser is an acronym for Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation. A laser is a device that produces coherent radiation, that is, radiation of a given frequency and with all wavefronts in phase, in the very short or optical wave bands.

This coherent beam of light does not widen and diffuse like normal light radiation, and therefore can be directed and is highly concentrated. The goal, in weaponry, is to project a great deal of heat with pinpoint accuracy over an indefinite distance.

The first laser was developed by Dr. Theodore Maiman at Hughes Aircraft Co., 1960. It handled only a fraction of a watt of power.

Dr. Kumar Patel took laser technology a long step further in 1964 when he found the molecules of flowing carbon dioxide in a tube could be made to give up their energy in a continuous lasing action.

By 1972 Laser Focus, the industry's trade magazine, reported that a forest could be set ablaze by a 60-kilowatt gas dynamic laser at a distance of two miles, and that the beam could be aimed to hit a playing card at a mile.

In the army there have been persistent rumors about a laser gun designed to blind enemy artillery men. There has been no official comment on the rumors.

Two navy groups, the Naval Surface Weapons Centre and the High Energy Laser Project Office of Naval Sea Systems Command, advised late in 1976 on the award of a $7.7-million contract to Hughes Aircraft for development of a high-energy laser.

Foreign intelligence sources believe the navy is working on a laser for delivery in the late 1980s to be used against air attacks.

The army already is experimenting with a rifle-type ranging laser for use with tanks and artillery and other lasers for the guidance of surface-to-air and surface-to-surface missiles. The air force is developing laser ranging devices for guiding bombs and missiles.

Russia Needed K's 'Cockeyed Vision'

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

(A review in the Washington Post of the book Khrushchev: The Years in Power, by Roy A. Medvedev and Zhores A. Medvedev)

KHRUSHEV . . . farm mess not his fault

It would have been better if the Medvedev brothers had stuck firmly to their main theme, which is an analysis of the impact of Khrushchev on Soviet agriculture and the manner in which his character is illuminated by his reckless and ill-considered interventions — the spectacular plowing up of the "virgin lands," the wholesale planting of corn where corn was not meant to grow, etc. Instead, while carefully refraining from proffering even a sketchy outline of Khrushchev's career, they have allowed themselves to touch on matters of international and domestic politics, very oddly selected, with a degree of superficiality quite disconcerting in men so distinguished in their separate ways — the one a Marxist historian of great independence of mind, still living in Russia; the other a biologist whose conflict with authority has driven him to asylum in the west.

What I find particularly disturbing is the way in which these two brave and resolute fighters against the official lie fall so easily into accepting parts of that lie which are outside the focus of their critical attention. Thus, for example, their references to the great quarrel with China, to Tito's reception of Khrushchev's clumsy and disingenuous apologies, to the true inwardness of the notorious "Leningrad Affair," even the very inadequate account of the killing of Beria (and the extraordinary statement that nobody realized what a monster he was until after his execution). All these points and many more besides are so absurdly oversimplified, or plain wrong, that one is driven to despair: if the splendid Medvedev brothers can swallow and regurgitate this sort of nonsense when they are not paying proper attention, it is a poor lookout for the intellectual development of their less sturdy-minded compatriots.

The brothers were, of course, faced with almost insuperable difficulties when it came to collaboration. For Roy still lived in the Soviet Union, liable to police harrassment, or worse, at any moment (the original notes and material for this book were confiscated by the KGB as far back as 1971), while Zhores had the job of working Roy's agricultural studies, sent out of Russia by means not revealed, into the wider background. There could be no mutual consultations and it may well be that the "political" passages referred to above owe their inadequacy at least in part to Zhores' fears of making things worse for Roy in Russia by saying too much.

So do not read this book for anything at all but Khrushchev as an agriculturalist. This may sound a dull subject. It is not. The authors bring out, perhaps more vividly than has ever been done before, the overwhelming importance of the agricultural economy in Soviet Russia and the drama of its scandalous failures. Stalin bullied, crushed and starved the peasantry almost beyond recovery. When he died something had to be done, and fast. Khrushchev was bold enough to respond wholeheartedly to the challenge. He failed to meet it; but in failing he broke up the logjam.

I do not think the Medvedevs give him enough credit for this. Heaven knows, his faults were multitudinous and colossal, and the nature of some of those faults and their attendant disasters is told here with enough new and revealing detail to enlighten the student and grip the general reader. By the time Khrushchev was cast down in the autumn of 1964 Soviet agriculture was in a stupendous mess, and the particular shape of the mess had been imposed by Khrushchev. But the mess as such was not his fault. It was part of the general Russian mess — one extremely important aspect of the situation inherited from Stalin, so disastrous that nobody but Khrushchev was bold enough to look at it squarely and recognize it for what it was and take immediate action.

One day (in 500 years time, perhaps, judging by the rate at which Russia moves) Khrushchev will be honored as the man who had the courage to make a clear break with Stalinism, to proclaim the scandal of Soviet food production in unambiguous terms, to throw overboard Lenin's most imbecile and crippling contribution to Marxism, to create an opening to the West. I find it depressing that the Medvedevs do not appear to realize the importance of these matters, or to see the need to relate Khrushchev to his historical background or to appreciate the enduring spark of humanity which brought about the transformation of an ignorant, sycophantic, bullying thug into a self-educated statesman and visionary who made his colleagues look shabby and irredeemably fifthrate.

Of course his vision was cockeyed and his statesmanship was all over the place and the old rogue and bully kept bubbling up. But at least he dreamt of a great and marvellous Russia and worked to achieve it; he kept the overweening military in their place; and with all his divagations and his nonsense about catching up with America, he was worth ten, ten thousand, a million of his repellent comrades who so understandably pulled him down and who (less understandably) the Medvedevs give the impression of commending for their bureaucratic sobriety.

For the Medvedevs do, it seems to me, tend to visit the sins of Russia on poor Khrushchev's head. Some of those sins and their consequences are, however, most entertainingly exposed, regardless of whether Khrushchev or Russia should be most blamed for them.

The book is worth buying if only for one brilliant short chapter called "Fiasco in Riazan Oblast," I knew this story in outline, I shall not spoil it for those who do not by recounting the hair-raising build-up in detail. It is as good as a play. Indeed, it should be a play.

Comrade A. N. Larionov was a senior apparatchik, the dictatorial boss of Riazan region, a primarily rural province of considerable extent a little to the east of Moscow. He was immensely ambitious. When Khrushchev made a great thing about doubling meat production in one year in order to catch up with America, Larionov saw his chance. Riazan would go one better. Riazan would deliver three times as much meat as planned within the year. Larionov was acclaimed in the press. He was decorated by Khrushchev personally and promised high promotion. He did not know one end of a cow from the other, but he was beside himself with joy.

When he found that he was up against the natural facts of bovine reproduction he was undaunted. If animals could not be born quickly enough, then the potential mothers, milk-bearing cows, must be slaughtered to bring meat to the people — or at least to the state. But in all Riazan region there were not enough animals to yield the promised deliveries of meat. Very well, parties must be sent to scour the adjoining province to buy in animals at whatever cost. And so they were — only to find that other party bosses in other regions had been stimulated by Larionov's absurd promises into making similar promises themselves. In the end it became clear that the farms of Riazan were ruined, with scarcely an animal left alive. Larionov shot himself.

The Medvedevs blame Khrushchev for this fate — and indeed he must share the blame. But who made it possible for a Larionov to flourish? Surely the very same people who over a hundred years earlier had inspired Gogol to write "The Government Inspector" and "Dead Souls." Not Khrushchev, but the people of Russia, no less.

FUNNY MONEY

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Keenly aware that enormous savings must be possible in a budget of close to $40-billion, the federal government has slashed about it in bold, daring strokes. As we noted the other day, John Diefenbaker is to lose his free supply of copies of the Canadian Bill of Rights — and that's $210.75 right there.

It's this sort of thing that sets the tone of national endeavor, conveying to the citizens the uncompromising nature of a government that will stop at nothing to look after our pennies (on the rather suspect assumption that the dollars will look after themselves).

A pity the philosophical thread was broken by the Ottawa decision to abandon a major publicity campaign to convince taxpayers that the government was dedicated to austerity. But the campaign was bound to collide sooner or later with spending estimates for the 1977-78 fiscal year, expected to reach about $46-billion. Public credulity will stetch only so far.

So the snip . . . snip . . . snip . . . sound emanating from the nation's capital is not the sound of scissors working on the federal budget. No, these are tailors' shears, working away at the behest of the defence department on new green uniforms for sea, army and air cadets. For a mere $7.6-million, 60,000 cadets will be stuffed — many kicking and sereaming in protest — into look-alike green safari suits.

What new masterstroke should we anticipate in the prudent administration of our money? We shudder to think.

A Bit of Male Cattiness

By KATHARINE WHITEHORN
London Observer

It is just possible that Lady Falkender, who used to be Marcia Williams and is now at the centre of yet another row about her influence over ex-prime minister Harold Wilson, is not the greatest political thinker of our time. She may not even be as astute as, say, the various captains of capitalism who were on Harold Wilson's retirement list of future peers — the list that, it is now being alleged, she wrote out herself on her own scented notepaper. But she would have to be a cross between Eva Braun and the Medusa to merit the shrill squawking that is going on about her at the moment.

As a somewhat cynical observer of the human scene (if you can call political affairs human) I watch all this with gloom but no surprise; for it fits perfectly into a pattern. Over the last 50 years or so men have grudgingly admitted a few more women into the seats of power; but if they get the slightest chance to turn a seat of power into an electric chair, they are delighted.

The measure of the damage the mere presence of women does to male pride is the savagery with which they're attacked if they ever put a foot wrong. There was a woman called Grace Wyndham Goldie, who was head of the British Broadcasting Corporation's best department at its best moment; it ran programs like Tonight and Panorama, which set the pattern of serious current affairs programs for a decade.

Like other bosses, she fired a few and by-passed a few; and I have never in my whole life heard anything like the vitriolic cattiness of any man who happened to get across her.

There's an air correspondent called Mary Goldring who is, like every other air correspondent I've ever met, including my husband, opinionated dogmatic and occasioally wrong; but the air industry spits blood at the mention of her name.

Sheila Scott is an ace flyer, apparently a tough cookie and not always adored; but there's a quality in criticisms of her which puts them in a quite different category from criticisms of male flyers, good, bad or hanging upside down in a tree.

Margaret Thatcher, leader of the Conservative party, is uneasily regarded by the Labor party as a vote-catcher, but there's a fine old backlash going on among the stalwart chaps on her own side; indeed, the fact that she is against electoral reform for Britain is regarded as a favorable omen by those who are fighting for it who think, perhaps, they can harness the male chauvinist pig vote in its favor.

FALKENDER . . . rise resented

With Marcia, it is all this and more; for she didn't even come up the "proper" channels — i.e. those hacked out to fit best with the lives of men. Her relationship with Wilson was entirely political, and so is the present row. It was a male colleague, Wilson's former press secretary, Joe Haines, who made the allegations about her influence.

Washington may have rocked to the scandals of secretaries who were so in name only; but Marcia's crime was that she was a secretary — just that. And secretaries have no right to rise in the world; they're supposed to sit there being invisible, discreet, having no overt personalities of their own; why, if secretaries start acting independent, nobody is safe — no man, that is, since it is they who don't seem to be able to exist without one.

Myself, I'd say that while half of Europe's most able women are advised, cajoled, sidetracked into the secretarial career, while they are still fed lies about its being a good starting-point, a good place to gain experience — which it plainly isn't or the chaps would also do it — then a woman has a perfect right to rise by that elevator, too — if she can.

Some of the fury was caused by the too-great power of the cabinet over Parliament; some by the too-great power Wilson had over his cabinet. And of course it was a pretty rotten honors list, all the boss's golfing chums and nothing much for the poor souls who had slaved away for the party.

But there's no earthly reason I can see why Marcia shouldn't have written out Wilson's list for him — if he'd had the Downing Street cat walk all over a list of names and given peerages where its paws fell, it would still be his responsibility and no one else's. And if she did indeed write it on scented notepaper, one can only suppose that long experience of political life had taught her not to pass up any chance, however slight, of making something stink a little less.

Bawlf Probes Pheasant Shoot

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has ordered a review of pheasant shoot programs in B.C. such as the one approved Monday for a North Saanich farm.

Bawlf said his ministry has apparently been in the habit of supporting such programs, but he wants to have a review of that support.

He said no new licences permitting the hunts will be issued until his review is completed, but he did not know whether the North Saanich permit had been issued yet.

He stressed the moratorium is not permanent.

North Saanich council Monday night voted four to three to approve an application by former Ald. George Aylard to allow the shooting of pheasants from August to March within the confines of his 200-acre Brackenhurst Farm.

Aylard said today he is surprised by Bawlf's move.

"The pheasant shoot program has been going for some time in the province. It's not new. There have been operations for several years in the Fraser Valley."

Aylard said when he last talked to the Fish and Wildlife Branch three months ago, wildlife officers appeared receptive to his proposal.

North Saanich council reaction to Bawlf's decision was mixed.

Ald. Eric Sherwood, who along with Ald. John Lapham and Mayor Paul Grieve voted against the shoot, said the decision "comes like a breath of fresh air."

Ald. Owen Philp and Wilf Price called the decision unfortunate.

"Pretty soon they'll want us all to be vegetarians," Price lamented.

Grieve said he is opposed to the shoot for other than emotional reasons.

He said the firearms bylaw prohibits firing of any gun in North Saanich and doesn't feel it should be changed for one applicant.

Drought Worries Harmac

NANAIMO — A predicted lack of water at its Port Alberni and Harmac operations this summer has MacMillan Bloedel "very concerned," Harmac mill manager Bob Findlay has told Nanaimo city council.

Findlay said his firm is concerned by the lack of rainfall and snowpack in the mountains, contradicting a recent statement by Ted Stroyan, the company's director of community relations.

Stroyan said at the time the company was not concerned because it has a backup system of wells adjacent to the Nanaimo River which feeds the Harmac mill about six miles south of Nanaimo.

Findlay, however, expressed concern following the launching of studies to determine how low ther ivers would get during July, August and September.

TAX TIPS '77

The following income tax tips are provided by Revenue Canada. Readers wishing additional information may contact the Victoria office of Revenue Canada by going to 1415 Vancouver Street or by phoning 386-2176.

Q. I am a university student with a part-time job that becomes a full-time job during the summer months. My earnings are more than $2,100 a year. I pay my own tuition fees out of my earnings and I understand that only I can deduct these fees from my income for tax purposes. If I do this, my net income will be reduced to $1,700. Does this mean that my father can claim me as a dependant?

A. Yes, if your father supported you during the year. However, his $720 exemption is reduced by the amount that your income exceeds $1,470.

Example:

Maximum exemption	$720
Deduct income over $1,470 ($1,700 less $1,470)	$230
Allowable exemption	$490

In addition, a special exemption of $50 a month is allowable for full-time trainees and students attending a wide range of schools and post secondary institutions.

Q. I am full-time university student but have a temporary job some 200 miles away. Can I deduct from my income the moving expenses I must pay to get to work?

A. Yes. If you were in full-time attendance at a university or other post-secondary educational institution in Canada and you moved to take a job (including summer employment) or to start a business you may claim a moving expense deduction. You claim the deduction against income earned at your new location, not from any income you may have earned before the move.

Q. What is general averaging?

A. This tax calculation is automatically computed, if applicable, for all taxpayers when the return is assessed. If your 1976 net income is substantially increased over prior years' net incomes, general averaging will usually be applied. When general averaging is applied, your taxes will always be reduced, never increased.

Q. I received a scholarship last year and had to move away from home to attend full-time courses at university. Can I deduct my moving expenses?

A. Yes. If you moved to attend full-time courses at a university or other post-secondary educational institution in Canada you may deduct moving expenses, but only if these are claimed against award income such as scholarships, fellowships, research grants and similar awards. Be sure to include Form T1-M with your income tax return.

Q. I got separated in 1976. How should I claim my British Columbia Renter's Tax Credit?

A. Where separation of a married couple occurs during the year, and each spouse then maintains a separate residence, each spouse may claim the Renter's Tax Credit. In calculating total rental payments each claimant may include the following:

—Rent paid for the part of the year following separation.

—A share of the rent paid prior to separation.

Note: The rent paid for the period to separation may be divided in whatever fashion the separated couple decides upon but the combined total of rent claimed must not exceed the actual rent paid upon the shared residence.

Q. I bought a Canada Savings Bond some years ago and this year I received a cash bonus. Should I report this as interest income???

A. You may report the cash bonus as either a capital gain or interest. If it is to your advantage to report the bonus as a capital gain, the amount should be reported on Schedule 2 and attached to your income tax return. With your return also include form T600C which indicates the total cash bonus you should report.

Q. Can a university student claim a property tax credit for rent paid during the year?

A. Students who are roomers, tenants or boarders off campus in Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario can calculate the rent paid during the year towards the property tax credit, up to a certain maximum. Students must be over 16 and their principal residence can not be that of someone else who is claiming them as a dependent.

Room and board at University of Victoria residences will cost students 12.2 per cent more this fall.

The university board of governors approved the increase that will see a single room increase $162 to $1,490 for the school year and a double increase $148 to $1,368.

The school year runs from the first day of classes in September to the last day of exams in April.

Trevor Matthews, UVic dean of administration told governors that with rising costs, the only thing that prevented a deficit this year was warm weather which trimmed fuel costs.

In opposing the increase, student governor Frank Waelti said the increase is larger than permitted under the Landlord and Tenant Act.

Mt. Newton Water Studied

A meeting Friday of the Saanich Peninsula Water Commission may decide whether potential well capacity at Mt. Newton will bolster water supplies in North Saanich.

Ald. George Westwood, of North Saanich, a member of the commission and director of its sponsoring body the Capital Regional District, said discussion of peninsula water problems will include the use of water from wells held in reserve for Dean Park housing.

Westwood said that while only a few homes are drawing water in the housing development, the excess capacity might be used temporarily elsewhere in the water distribution system.

Residents of the north end of the peninsula depend on a combination of private wells, community wells and piped water from Elk Lake for domestic water.

Some wells have gone dry or are extremely low because of a declining water table and the absence of normal rainfall, and some others have proven unusable because of high mineral content.

Westwood said there are 350 water connections at Dean Park that are supplied 10 months of the year by a municipal well, augmented by Elk Lake water.

For future development in the Dean Park area it was stipulated that ground services had to be provided, and four wells were drilled boosting total capacity to about three times the volume produced by the orinal well.

Meanwhile, Westwood confirms there are some 200 homes in North Saanich without water connections, a situation the newly-formed water commission inherited and which will not be altered for at least a year.

Such households cannot join the water distribtion system until total capacity available for the northern peninsula is increased.

Westwood said the water commission has undertaken not to substantially alter the distribution system for a year, at the request of the provincial government.

He said this will enable the commission to get its feet on the ground and give it time to sort out what has happened the past.

Among the things to be examined are the varying rate structures, new water system construction and unrecorded old construction.

There are at least 36 existing water connections that are unauthorized, usually tapped into a legal connection on an adjoining property, and therefore metered, Westwood said.

Weeks Vetoed BCR Job Offer—Barber

Fired ministerial aide Arthur Weeks was personally responsible for the withdrawal of a job offer to a Toronto railway consultant because he is an American citizen, Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber charged Tuesday.

Barber said in the legislature Weeks managed to persuade both Premier Bill Bennett and Economic Development Minister Don Phillips that the American citizenship of Jerry Neben was a "major political objection" to Neben becoming head of the government-owned B.C. Railway.

"He (Weeks) managed to conjure up the dark spectre of political danger," Barber said, and the offer of a job to Neben was withdrawn by Phillips.

Barber also said he had been informed there were "substantial arguments" between Bennett and Phillips over who had control of the BCR.

Weeks persuaded Bennett that the offer to Neben, who had done some consulting work for the BCR, should be withdrawn because Weeks was afraid of losing some of his own power through Bennett's interference, Barber said.

Barber told the house last week that Neben was offered a job to replace Mac Norris, still vice president in charge of operations for the railway but that the offer was withdrawn at the 11th hour when it was revealed Neben was an American citizen.

Neben is eligible to be a Canadian citizen in April, 1977, his wife is Canadian and he is "eminently well-qualified" for the post, Barber said.

Neben was lost to B.C., Barber said, because "Weeks decided his own bailiwick was threatened by the premier."

Weeks was fired as aide to Phillips when it was learned he had traded in shares of a company involved with the ministry of economic development.

A judicial inquiry into stock and land speculation on the Grizzly Valley pipeline, and Weeks' part in it, is in its third day in Vancouver.

Barber said Tuesday that Weeks interfered again with a job offer for top job at the BCR, this time by postponing meetings between the job candidate, Bennett and Phillips.

The unidentified job candidate, a Canadian citizen, was at the time of the offer in early 1976 responsible for putting the bankrupt Pennsylvania Central Railroad back on its feet.

The man is now in charge of operating the "unit system" of the same railroad.

Four meetings were arranged and postponed by Weeks, and the man was finally asked to meet the minister in a motel room in Fort St. James, Barber said, at which point he forgot about the job.

"Weeks had an extraordinary role to play in all of this," Barber said.

He also charged that the premier was "not only interfering in the railroad, but he was botching it."

Bennett would say only that Barber was attacking him for "meetings that didn't take place and appointments that were never made."

"What other amazing non-event will he announce next?"

Both Bennett and Phillips refused earlier to say whether they had offered jobs to either Neben, or the Pennsylvania Central executive.

Canada and U.S. Relations 'Good'

Quebec inside Confederation.

The prime minister also warned American businessmen that their actions could help the cause of Quebec separatism because if they believe that separatism is inevitable, the forces pushing for Quebec independence would cite that as evidence of the alleged inevitability of independence.

"If I were an American I would be extremely favorable to the unity of Canada. I would not want to see under any circumstances the separation of a major portion of Canada. . . . From a geopolitical point of view, I think the worst thing that could happen to the United States would be a break-up of Canada," he said.

On other topics the prime minister said:

—An interim agreement on Canada-U.S. fishing rights was reached Tuesday when the last remaining obstacle, the sharing of West Coast salmon, was settled. The agreement provides that mutual fishing rights would be continued until the end of the year while officials work out more permanent arrangements.

—The Canadian government will make a decision this year whether to permit a U.S. natural gas pipeline from Alaska to cross Canadian territory. The Canadian decision will enable Carter to meet his own deadline this year in deciding which among a number of competing natural gas transport proposals should be accepted.

—He reiterated a Canadian desire to support the Canadian domestic broadcasting industry but noted that continuance of commercial deletions from border television stations has been suspended at the U.S. request while alternatives are studied..

Trudeau's historic address to Congress Tuesday, drew unusually warm praise from his Conservative leader Joe Clark and NDP leader Ed Broadbent, but members of Quebec's Parti Quebecois government were surprisingly indifferent.

Quebec Premier Rene Levesque and several cabinet ministers all said they were too busy with governmental duties Tuesday to even watch Trudeau's address, the first by a Canadian prime minister to a joint session of Congress.

Levesque had his office television tuned to Trudeau's speech, but he glanced at it only occasionally as he carried on day-to-day business with people filing in and out of his office.

The speech won praise from a wide range of senators and representatives who expressed a desire for continued Canadian unity and optimism for the future of Confederation.

Heavy applause from the audience of about 90 representatives, 35 senators, seven U.S. cabinet ministers, 100 diplomats and 1,000 other observers twice interrupted Trudeau's speech to Congress.

There were two other interruptions and at the end a standing ovation that lasted for 68 seconds, sending rolling waves of appluase off the lofty ceiling of the House chamber.

In Ottawa, however, Clark and Broadbent applauded the prime minister for his remarks.

"I think it was a very effective speech," said Clark. "He did it very well."

He said Trudeau "reflected the point of view of all Canadian federalists" in expressing "the faith in the future of this country members of my party feel. I would have applauded the speech."

Broadbent said "I think the prime minister's speech was an elegant and sensitive description of Canada's problem. There is no doubt about that. It was a good description, a sensitive description, of the position we find ourselves in Canada."

Hospital Workers Bear Brunt

A spokesman for the Hospital Employees Union said today the federal and provincial governments have singled out public sector employees to bear the brunt of the fight against inflation.

Union Secretary Jack Gerow was commenting in an interview from Vancouver on the decision Monday by the administrator of the federal Anti-Inflation Board to uphold a rollback of the 1976 contract percentages for B.C. hospital employees.

Administrator Donald Tansley re-affirmed a board rollback to eight per cent from 13.96.

Gerow said Tansley's track record in upholding AIB rollbacks for public service employees leads him to believe a decision has been made to hold the public sector to the arithmetic guidelines.

He said this is being done despite pleas for special consideration, the need for catch-up or historical relationships.

yukon MEETING THE CHALLENGE OF THE 70'S

DIRECTOR OF WILDLIFE

Yukon possesses a rich but fragile wildlife resource distributed over 207,000 square miles. Programs for dealing with the mounting pressures on this resource are in an early stage of development. A Director of Wildlife for the Yukon Government is required to meet this challenge.

The successful candidate will be responsible for the development and management of a balanced program of wildlife conservation, usage, management, research, public education and enforcement. He will provide advice on the effects on wildlife of existing or planned government or private sector activities. He will manage and direct a current staff complement of 7 biologists and technicians, 9 conservation officers in 6 area offices, a head office administrative staff and a 1976-77 fiscal year budget of approximately $750,000.

Candidates for Director of Wildlife should possess a graduate degree in Biology or Zoology and have extensive experience in Wildlife Management, with progressive administrative and supervisory responsibilities, supplemented by a background of long range planning, budget control, policy formulation and preparation and interpretation of legislation, or an equivalent combination of training and experience.

Salary: $26,188 to $31,372 per annum and under review.

Victoria Buys Humboldt Site

Victoria city council decided Tuesday to expand the city's land holdings in the area of the old Crystal Garden by purchasing the former steam laundry site at the corner of Humboldt and Douglas.

Mayor Mike Young said following council's in-camera meeting that the purchase price agreed with the owners, Canadian Pacific, was $550,000.

The city considers the acquisition an essential part of future development plans for the entire Douglas-Belleville-Blanshard-Humboldt block, irrespective of the Crystal Gardens eventual fate.

The adjoining property on the eastern side of the block is also under public ownership. It is owned by the province an dused by Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

RRSP Figure Corrected

The net yield of the registered retirement savings plan offered by West Coast Savings Credit Union is 9.75 per cent, just as advertised, according to a survey by B.C. Central Credit Union. A story in the Times Feb. 18 made this statement but due to a typographical error the number came out as being 9.25. However, 9.75 is the correct and intended figure.

Where are the environmental studies on the effect these huge tankers will have on the B.C. coast?

'Attorney for the Prosecution'

Anderson's Tilting Again at the Oil Companies

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

David Anderson, the environmentalists' knight in shining armor, is suited up again and tilting at oil companies.

This time the former B.C. Liberal party leader is about to engage in a jousting match with a consortium of six companies proposing a 758-mile oil pipeline from Kitimat to Edmonton.

With the scars of the 1975 B.C. election and party infighting healed with a cruise last year to the South Seas, the 39-year-old bachelor has joined with the B.C. Wildlife Federation in "a grudge match" against the oil interests.

Anderson was widely quoted in the early 70s for his opposition to the Alaska oil pipeline and tanker traffic down B.C.'s coast.

He said in an interview Tuesday the fight to have environmental concerns built into plans for that pipeline was lost because of "a con job" by the oil companies and he doesn't want to see that happen in the Kitimat case.

"I'm fed up with oil company pressure substituting for oil company logic," Anderson said.

He said at a cost of $9 billion, the Alaska pipeline project was the biggest of its kind and the so-called experts are realizing now that the pipeline sent the oil to the wrong place.

Anderson, Liberal leader from May, 1972 until he stepped down in September, 1975, said he started working six weeks ago for the wildlife federation, which represents 140 fish and game clubs in B.C.

He said he is working on a voluntary basis and will act as an intervenor on behalf of the federation at hearings on the Kitimat proposal, which he thinks will take place in May.

"I will be acting as the attorney for the prosecution against the pipeline proposal."

In that capacity, he added, he will question witnesses put forward by the oil companies as well as the provincial government, seeking more details about the proposals made and data introduced.

It is the federation's position, he says, that rather than be pressured into the Kitimat pipeline, Canadians and Americans from the Pacific Northwest should sit down and discuss the whole energy question.

As to the Kitimat proposal, he says, "It is a short-range solution to a long-range problem."

"Our position is let's end this pressured nonsense and look at the entire energy question as if affects the Pacific Northwest north of the California boarder."

He said the Kitimat proposal should be looked at as part of the total picture and not in isolation.

Referring to the U.S. decision to pipe oil across Alaska to the port of Valdez for shipment by tanker to the Pacific Northwest, he says:

"Let's have no more $9-billion mistakes. The public can only afford so much abuse."

Kitimat Pipeline Ltd., the consortium of six oil companies, applied to the National Energy Board in January for a $500-million pipeline from Kitimat to Edmonton, where the crude oil would be piped to the U.S.

Anderson says the stupidity of the decision to pipe the oil across Alaska, at a great risk to the ecology and through one of the greatest earthquake zones, can be seen now as the oil companies try and figure out ways to get the same oil back over across the mountains to mid-western U.S.

He says the pipeline proposal would mean huge tankers plying the world's largest narrow water canal in the approach to Kitimat. And yet, he adds, there are no environmental studies on the effects of such an enterprise.

Anderson said the federation will not come up with a detailed alternative to the Kitimat proposal.

Rather, he said, the environmental group will stress that the proposal cannot be considered in isolation from other energy needs of the Pacific Northwest

The federation will also suggest that strictly national interests should be shunted aside in preference for a more rational, long-term solution.

Anderson is disappointed in the provincial government's statement last week that its position will not be known until the NEB holds its hearings.

He said it is quite irresponsible for Premier Bill Bennett to withhold information on B.C.'s positon because the hearings are not a forum for announcing policies but an opportunity to examine the data presented in the positions already taken by the parties involved.

If B.C. waits until the hearings to unveil its positon, the hearings will have to be adjourned to allow the wildlife federation time to study the details. Such a move will only serve to further delay a decision on the matter, Anderson said.

He said rather than reduce the amount of oil tanker traffic past Victoria to Cherry Point, Wash., the construction of a terminal at Kitimat would likely increase it.

Anderson argues that building the Kitimat pipeline would dash the hopes of some U.S. politicians to build a terminal somewhere west of Port Angeles, away from the confined areas.

Once Kitimat is built, any thought of building another major terminal at a cost of about $450 million, would fade, he said.

Therefore, if Kitimat becomes a reality, even more Alaskan oil would be brought into Cherry Point, increasing the threat of oil pollution to the Gulf Islands and narrow U.S. waters?

Anderson notes Kitimat Pipeline Ltd. has stated that 60 per cent of the oil going into the proposed pipeline will be from Alaska and the rest from foreign sources.

"I've been in this business a long time," he says bluntly, "and I don't believe them."

He says Kitimat will only take the so-called "sweet" foreign oil because the refineries hooked into the system can only handle that type of oil and it would cost too much to convert them.

Anderson said it is time the whole energy question is looked at from a wider point of view.

People in B.C. should begin asking questions as whether Vancouver and Victoria should continue using Alberta oil or leave it in the ground and depend on foreign oil.

There may come a time when foreign oil becomes hard to get and domestic supply will be "money in the bank," he adds.

The question is pertinent in light of available information which suggests that Alberta oil will only last for another 15 years.

"Vancouver and Victoria may very will freeze in the dark unless we start looking at these issues."

On the more specific Kitimat proposal, he says the wildlife federation is going to make sure the case against such a projection is made very effectively.

"There is no reason for the public to be panicked into making a stupid decision before the environmental studies have been done," he said.

So Anderson, who become known during his term in Ottawa as an MP as a one-issue politican for his fight against the oil companies, is back in the contest.

"I enjoy it, I've always been an environmental politician," he says.

He said he estimates he will be involved with the federation until at least June, when he will have to begin searching for a more lucrative way to spend his time.

Irked Hartwig Set To Withdraw Offer

Victoria developer Hans Hartwig said today he intends to withdraw an offer he has made to restore the old Crystal Garden building at no cost to city taxpayers, because he is fed-up with the criticism and negative attitudes of Ald. Ron McKenzie.

He also said he plans to sell his undeveloped holdings in the city and proceed only with those projects to which he is committed.

"As far as I am concerned I am finished with development here," he said. "If council is represented by people like McKenzie there is no sense in trying to do anything in the city."

Hartwig was commenting on a Times report Tuesday, dealing with McKenzie's opposition to a hotel project planned on Wharf Street by the developer.

McKenzie was critical of the workmanship in the nearby Hartwig Court development on Wharf, and alleged that the old building's heritage value had been disregarded.

Hartwig said he has asked his lawyer to look into the possibility of suing McKenzie for libel.

He said he is not prepared to continue his development ventures in the city unless council can manage its affairs without resorting to such "bullying."

And he said he will not stand by while his workmen's integrity is harmed by ill-founded attacks.

"He (McKenzie) is not capable of forming a judgment," Hartwig said. "He has a big mouth and doesn't know what he is talking about."

Although city aldermen recently confirmed that a Victoria developer had submitted a proposal to restore the Crystal Garden as an arboretum attraction, the individual concerned was not identified.

The proposal was scheduled to be discussed at an early date — possibly at next week's council caucus meeting — but Hartwig insisted today that the offer would be withdrawn.

In a previous hassle with city council over his waterfront development plans, Hartwig announced several months ago in a letter to City Hall that he was pulling out of the Victoria development scene.

YOUNG
. . . "can't stand it"

Tax Break Forecast For City Residents

Victoria Mayor Mike Young had good news Tuesday for city taxpayers, with a cautious forecast that there should be little if any increase in property taxes this year.

His comment at council's weekly caucus meeting followed a report by finance committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier that the city had a budget surplus last year of $1,118,598.

The hold-the-line prediction comes before council has even started trimming its 1977 operating budget, and Young apparently was overwhelmed by the whole thing.

"I just can't stand all this good news," he complained. "Let's decide whether we should declare a dividend for the year and set the directors' remuneration."

The $1.118 million surplus from 1976 is equivalent to about four mills, and Glazier noted that the Greater Victoria school board — armed with a surplus of close to $3 million — is already talking in terms of reducing its 1977 levy by six to eight mills.

Combined with other factors, including a possible assessment growth of four to five per cent and the prospects for a stabilized Capital Region Board budget, he said the situation looks encouraging as council begins preliminary scrutiny of its 1977 operating budget.

Glazier said some of the major causes of the 1976 operating surplus related to a higher-than-expected level of development growth in the city, and could not have been anticipated by city comptroler Mason Sheldrick.

Budgeted revenue from building, plumbing and electrical permits was exceeded by more than $150,000, while the $100,000 over-budget figure for investment interest was due to the healthy investment market last year.

In addition, he said, the city's policy of suing delinquent taxpayers had resulted in a $288,000 reduction in the reserve set aside to cover uncollected taxes last year.

(At Dec. 31, 1975, uncollected taxes amounted to $1,026,000. By the same date last year the figure stood at $738,000, a reduction of $288,000.)

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Is the actor John Schuk (who recently played in "Roots" and is Yoyo in the serial Holmes and Yoyo) the same actor who played "Howard," one of the gay men in an earlier episode of Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman? — C.H.

A. We wish we could give you a firm answer but we have to say an almost firm no. Bruce Lowther, trivia expert and TV aficionado, was not sure and checked with four others. The clear consensus is: no. But they concede there is the remotest possibility they might be wrong.

South Park Saved

South Park family school has been given a stay of execution until at least 1979.

And there is a chance the parent-teacher co-op program will operate indefinitely in the antiquated facilities at 508 Douglas — especially if the Greater Victoria school board can get the building declared a heritage school.

The parent association had apealed to the board for more time to prove their system of co-operative education.

Spokesperson Heather Hestler told trustees at Monday's meeting that parents and teachers prefer to stay in the existing building.

But if changes are necessary and the school has to be moved, she asked for a little more time to demonstrate beyond a doubt that parents working with their children in co-operation with the school results in better education.

Trustees agreed.

Their original motion based on planning reports and management committee recommendations was to allow the school to continue in its current location for one more year.

This was extended to two years as long as no major capital expenditures are required.

Cougar Fans Fail to Pierce City's Hardrock Defencemen

Two thousand Victoria Cougar hockey fans weren't able to muster a body check Tuesday against the storming offence of city aldermen bent on victory over violence.

The protesting fans had signed a petition which was presented to city council's caucus meeting Tuesday by Mrs. Wendy Lidgate.

She criticized council's proposal to persuade all Western Canada Hockey League municipalities and teams to insert an anti-violence clause in their contracts, and bluntly told aldermen their "constant interference" was a direct cause of the Cougars' rumored exit from Victoria.

For the most part council members listened in silence to the complaints, before giving the petition the cursory "received and filed" treatment.

But Ald. Frank Carson told Mrs. Lidgate council's concern over the violence issue should not be construed as an "anti-Cougars or anti-hockey" attitude.

Only Ald. Ron McKenzie, chairman of the recreation committee, felt disposed to argue with the petition's organizer.

He said her stance was "very, very negative."

McKenzie said many former fans have told him that they stopped attending games in the Memorial Arena over the last three to four years because of the increase in violence.

Middle Schools: Lot of Questions to Be Answered

Middle schools are coming.

There is little doubt about it. They have already partly arrived in Saanich and will be there completely within about a year. And they are almost certainly destined for Victoria and Sooke districts.

But what are they? What is a "middle school"?

Well, it's a juggling of present grades so you have from grades one to five (instead of seven) at the elementary level, grades nine and 10 moving from junior high schools to join grades 11 and 12 in a four-year senior high system — and smack in the middle you have the new grouping of grades six, seven and eight.

Reasons given for the proposed changeover vary from "shifts in population" to "economical" to "educational benefits". Yet obviously a lot of people are not too sure about these benefits, or at least want to hear more details about them, judging by the interest shown in the subject Tuesday at the University of Victoria.

JONES
. . . serious doubts

A great many of those attending Convention '77, a one-day get-together of secondary school teachers from the Victoria, Saanich and Sooke districts, packed one of the larger UVic lecture rooms to hear Dr. Richard Green, the assistant superintendent of schools in Bellingham, who has been involved for the last 10 years in Washington State's move toward middle schools.

Green talked non-stop for an hour, took a quick coffee break, then went back in for another hour-and-a-half of active panel discussion with a group of local educationists (chaired by Saanich school board chairperson Dr. Gerry Kristianson) and teachers in the audience.

"We felt we had overemphasized the varsity-type sports and other programs in our junior high schools with inter-school teams and cheerleaders and so we deemphasized this competition in our middle schools," Green explained. "We concentrated on more involvement with intramural sports and now we have far more taking part instead of just watching."

Students in grades six, seven and eight play together and work together better than those in grades seven, eight and nine, the American educator maintained.

"We found that the ninth graders stood around the hallways in our junior highs (which used to be for grades seven, eight and nine) intimidating by eyeballing the younger students as they walked by," he said.

Green had a word for teachers who felt they were losing their jobs or their classes with the split to middle schools.

"At first in Washington we had more elementary teachers wanting to go up to the middle schools but it has levelled off and now it's about half and half," he said. "But I believe it's really a fantastic opportunity for teachers to choose the level on which they want to teach.

"The teachers are happier; the students are happier and as a result the kids are better prepared now in our middle schools in the basic skills to go into the ninth grade than they were in previous years," Green said.

His statements were supported by Bob Abbott, principal of North Saanich Middle School (the first to switch in an experimental program four years ago) who said he was "sold on middle schools"; by Sam Lim, co-ordinator of student services at North Saanich School; and by principal Keith Bickmore whose Harbour View School in Esquimalt has partially switched.

All the panel members made it sound rosy — but

Gordon Head Elementary School principal Dave Jones wasn't too sure.

"I was asked to appear on this panel as a devil's advocate," he told his fellow teachers with a grin. "I prefer the title Doubting Thomas!"

His doubts, Jones said, centred around the danger of ending up with a mini junior high at grade six level — and 11-year-olds just weren't ready for it.

Speaking emotionally "as an elementary teacher and as a parent" Jones said:

"I maintain kids mature too early now. If I had a choice, I would rather treat grade eights like grade sixes. I would rather expand childhood than reduce it."

But this, Dr. Green told me afterward, is exactly what the middle school system is attempting to do.

"Basically, we feel it is continuing the elementary school emphasis on up through the grades," he explained.

"I think parents want that, too . . . they want to maintain that closeness to the home and parent contact."

LONG-TERM PACTS ARE BIG PROBLEM

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League remained in a quandry today over what to do about the dying Cleveland Barons franchise.

There was a remote possibility that the league might still take over the club.

The NHL board of governors scheduled a meeting to try to resolve the franchise's life-and-death struggle that has lasted for several weeks.

The league's finance committee did not reach any conclusions after meeting late Tuesday night. The five-hour meeting ended at 2 a.m. EST today. The problem now is in the hands of the governors.

"This problem seems to be more than we can handle at the moment," said NHL president Clarence Campbell. "We don't have a solution frankly."

Asked about the league taking over the club and operating it until at least the end of the season, Campbell said:

"That's a situation that is one of those which is being explored. I don't know whether it is realistic or not.

"The big problem of course is the enormous backlog of contracts. It isn't only the salaries of the players for the rest of the year. It's the long-term contracts of some of the players for as much as five years. It runs into millions of dollars."

Another option was for the league to dissolve the franchise by assigning the players' contracts to other teams. The chance of selling the Barons to another group seemed to be the remotest possibility.

Owner Mel Swig of the Barons has been unable to sell the team or meet the Feb. 15 payroll. The league loaned him money to pay the players for the previous two weeks.

The players met with league officials and Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players Association, in Cleveland Tuesday.

Word came out of that meeting that the players had decided to retire from the team and would not play at home tonight against Buffalo Sabres.

"I got the impression that the players were rather adamant and that they were not going to play," Campbell said. "I'm not sure about that. They can change their minds."

The NHL already has drawn up provisional schedules for a variety of possibilities. "But they're all very speculative," Campbell said.

It would take a unanimous vote of the governors to agree to any dispersal draft of the Cleveland players, and that might not be possible.

At the Chicago NHL meeting earlier this month, Campbell said that Swig had agreed, in return for assistance the last time around, that he would not solicit or sell or conduct any sales until Feb. 25.

That prohibition has run its course, Campbell said. Swig would be free to sell players Friday if he so desires.

Victoria's penalty-killers played a strong game, but there was nothing wrong with the performance of the defencemen as the Cougars ended a seven-game Western Canada Hockey League winless run by defeating the Saskatoon Blades 7-1 Tuesday.

The penalty-killers scored three of Victoria's first four goals to get the attack going, but the defencemen did their job all evening.

All six Cougar defencemen played well but, ironically, it was the best pairing — Lorry Gloeckner and rookie Mark Robinson — which was on the ice when Saskatoon's Keith Johnson scored with less than five minutes remaining to deprive Victoria goalie Murray Bannerman of a shutout.

The shot by Johnson was headed wide of the target but struck Robinson on the leg and deflected between Bannerman's legs.

Bannerman, appreciating the support he received didn't seem to mind.

"It was one of those things," he said. "I knew the shot was going wide, and that's why I was caught with my legs apart."

The rearguards cleared smartly, rarely made bad passes in starting offensive thrusts, but were most effective in taking out onrushing attackers. They finished off their checks by pinning puck-carriers into the corners all night.

Greg Anderson, Paul Enquist and Geordie Robertson each scored two goals for the Cougars while Gary Lupul added the single.

Anderson and Enquist, who now has scored nine goals in his last eight games, broke a scoreless duel with their shorthanded goals midway through the second period. Defenceman Leroy Heck was serving a cross-checking penalty when Anderson scored at 12:20. Enquist connected 49 seconds later.

Robertson added a power-play goal two minutes later to make it 3-0.

The roof caved in on the Blades for good when Enquist scored another shorthanded goal at 8:41 of the third period. That ignited a three-goal burst in a span of 90 seconds, with Anderson and Lupul running to score to 6-0.

Cougar forward Dennis Fenske was penalized for charging Saskatoon's Dan Bent, and was in the box when Enquist scored. Fenske then charged out of the penalty box to set up Anderson for the fifth goal.

Bent suffered a broken nose as a result of Fenske's hit in a game that was comparatively cleanly played. Cougars took five minors and Saskatoon three, in addition to majors called against Victoria's Curt Fraser and Brian Schnitzler after only 16 seconds of play.

Cougars, who moved into a second-place tie with Portland Winter Hawks, visit New Westminster Bruins tonight and then return Saturday to meet Flin Flon Bombers.

In Tuesday's only other game, Calgary's Dave Morrow scored late in the third period to help Centennials salvage a 4-4 tie with the visiting Bombers.

Low Trick by McVie

By The Canadian Press

Tom McVie, coach of Washington Capitals, likes to give his National Hockey League opponents more to think about than the game at hand.

For example, McVie could assume Tuesday night that Pittsburgh Penguins were already thinking about not having defeated the Capitals all year.

And just to give them something else to think about, McVie sent in goalie Ron Low who had been instrumental in a 5-4 Washington victory over the Penguins last April.

"I started him in goal because I thought maybe the Penguins would be thinking about a game he played against them last year that put them in an unfavorable position in the playoffs," McVie said after the Capitals beat the Penguins 3-1.

In other NHL games Tuesday, New York Islanders edged Colorado Rockies 2-1 and goalie Rogatien Vachon earned his third shutout in his last four games to help Los Angeles Kings beat St. Louis Blues 4-0.

The Washington win snapped a four-game unbeaten streak for Pittburgh.

Next time the teams meet, the Penguins may also be thinking about Gerry Meehan who scored goals in the first and second periods and had an assist in the third to lead Washington.

"I don't recall any game this year where we have come out fast against the Penguins," Meehan said. "Tonight, in the first period we just skated back and forth.

Meehan said he has no explanations for the Capitals' dominance of the Penguins. Tommy talked to us after the first period and we went out in the second period and just put the pressure on them."

Vachon's shutout at Los Angeles was his second in a row, third in his last four games and sixth of the season. His club record is seven in one season.

The 5-foot-7, 166-pound goalie who starred in the Canada Cup tournament last fall; has given up just 19 goals in his last 11 games.

Colorado goalie Michel Plasse had to work harder than Vachon but still came out on the losing end after the Islanders pelted him with 51 shots, including 25 in the third period.

ORR WAITING RESULTS OF ANALYSIS ON KNEE

TORONTO (CP) — The hockey career of defenceman Bobby Orr remained undecided Tuesday after his troublesome left knee was examined by Dr. John Palmer.

The 28-year-old Orr, who left Boston Bruins last June to join Chicago Black Hawks for a $3-million multi-year contract, has appeared in 20 games in the National Hockey League this season.

Orr, who last played for Chicago on Jan. 27 in Vancouver has had five operations on the knee.

"Dr. Palmer will go over his analysis and his decision will be announced next week — in collaboration with Bobby," said Bill Watters, an associate of Orr's agent Alan Eagleson.

"I don't have any idea what the decision will be but I predict Bobby's going to play again and play well."

Orr returned to Chicago after the examination.

SCORPIONS STILL WAIT FOR VERDICT

Victoria Scorpions will have to wait at least another day to learn the fate of their protest to the B.C. Amateur Basketball Association over an error in scoring tabulation in the opening game of the best-of-three provincial senior "A" men's championship series Sunday at UVic.

Doug Ruttan, the BCABA president, said today he is still attempting to call people to set up a hearing Thursday before a three-man committee in Vancouver.

This step is mandatory under the BCABA constitution.

Scorpion manager Ian Scot-Moncrief filed the protest Monday after Scorpions had apparently lost 89-87 to Burnaby Bullets. A subsequent check of the score sheet showed the Victoria club hadn't been credited with two points, which would have forced an overtime period.

Bays Sweep Hoop Slate For Third Straight Year

Oak Bays Bays completed a third straight unbeaten season by tripping host Victoria Totems 81-59 in one of the Tuesday games which closed out the regular season in the Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball League.

In other games, Spectrum topped Panthers 89-62 at Parkland, Spartans bumped Reynolds Roadrunners 87-70 at Claremont, Rams nudged Belmont Braves 55-52 at Mt. Douglas and Dockers defeated Demons 83-65 at Esquimalt.

Ken Kirzinger led Oak Bay with 18 points while clubmates Craig Higgins and Tom Sinnott added 16 points each.

Bays, who averaged 92 points-per-game while allowing an average of only 54, finished off the season with a record total of 1,195, breaking the mark of 1,141 they set last season.

Oak Bay had clinched the "B" division title some time ago and the loss left Totems in third place in the "A" division. Spectrum collected the "A" division title for the first time, finishing two points ahead of runner-up Claremont and four ahead of Totems.

Despite the loss, Braves collected fourth place and the final playoff berth in the "A" division when Dockers knocked off Demons.

Parkland and Reynolds finished in a tie for fourth place in the "B" division but Parkland wins the playoff berth for having won both games against the Roadrunners.

Lower Island playoffs start Thursday at 8 p.m. with Parkland visiting Victoria and Belmont at Mt. Douglas.

In North Island League play, Nanaimo Islanders clinched the league title with an 84-69 win over Cowichan Thunderbirds.

Vancouver Group Bids for Cougars

Victoria Cougars are for sale and the deal could be completed in three weeks.

That's the sum and substance of reports surrounding the Victoria entry in the Western Canada Hockey League.

General manager and coach Pat Ginnell has said on the one hand "why should I sell the Cougars?" and on the other he has confirmed that he is negotiating with a Vancouver group for the sale of the team.

The Vancouver group is headed by hotelman Lorne Williams who was a principal shareholder in the club when a group headed by Eric Bishop controlled the club. Ginnell purchased the Cougars from the Bishop group.

Williams is the owner of the Richmond Sockeyes of the Tier Two Pacific Coast Hockey League.

He said Tuesday that negotiations are in the talking stage and added it is no secret that he is interested in the team.

It has also been reported that Williams plans to keep Cliff Lennartz on as coach if the deal goes through. Lennartz has been handling the Cougars from the bench for the past few weeks, and Ginnell has mainly stuck to the managing end of the club in that time.

It may also be significant that Ginnell didn't plan to go with the team to New Westminster tonight.

Lennartz has said he would continue as coach if requested under a new ownership.

Ginnell moved to Victoria from Flin Flon in December 1973 and led the Cougars to the Western Division championship in his first full season here.

This season he has been embroiled with city council over a proposed anti-violence clause in the club's contract for use of Memorial Arena; and it is no secret that he is not happy with council over its stand regarding hockey.

LORNE WILLIAMS
. . . confirms negotiations

It also has been reported that Ginnell is heading for Calgary and is being offered shares in the Centennials in order to get that club back on its feet.

The shift to Calgary is supposed to coincide with the sale of the Cougars to Williams.

Another unconfirmed report has Ginnell moving to Seattle where, the rumor goes, he already has bought a house.

The shift to Seattle would come about by Ginnell returning to Flin Flon and transferring the Bomber franchise to the Washington City.

To which Ginnell says: "Listen, if I had the money to buy these homes in Seattle and Calgary, I wouldn't be in hockey."

Sale rumors of the Cougars began in earnest last week in Calgary when Ginnell, asked if he would be interested in selling the club, said "since everything has its price, I might be."

"The next day I pick up a paper and read I'm selling the club," he said.

"I haven't sold the club yet and I'm not saying anything that might jeopardize the position to new owners here."

Williams, it is reported, has received league permission to purchase the team. Ray Harmboure, owner of the Fraser Arms Hotel, is a member of the group Williams represents.

Trouble from North

WINNIPEG (CP) — Robert Fleming and his Territories team-mates are fast becoming a nemesis in the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

They did what no other team had done in five rounds when they dumped Alberta 6-5 in a sixth-round game Tuesday and earlier handed a strong British Columbia entry its only loss, a 6-4 decision in their third game.

With more consistent shooting they also could have knocked off Don Brownridge of Portage la Prairie, Man., in a first-round game in which they had taken a commanding 9-2 lead after five ends but ended up losing 10-9.

Fleming, a 58-year-old jurist in Whitehorse, Y.T., almost blew the game against Don Killips of Edmonton after leading 5-0 at the end of five ends.

Killips rebounded to tie the game at 5-5 coming home and put the pressure on when he drew up to two Alberta stones on the eight-foot, leaving a draw to either side of the four-foot as the only shot open.

Fleming came through in the clutch and sent Alberta into a three-way tie for the lead after six rounds of the 12-team round-robin championship.

Jake Block of Abbotsford, B.C., and Tom Hunter of Hudson, Que., also boasted 5-1 won-lost records with Alberta. Manitoba, Morrie Thompson of Saskatoon and Jack Edwards of Kingston, Ont., had 4-2 records.

Victory Didn't End Complaints

By The Canadian Press

Quebec Nordiques have dominated the World Hockey Association's East Division all season but still coach Marc Boileau finds cause to complain.

"We have too many guys who don't work hard enough," Boileau said Tuesday night after the Nordiques played just well enough to beat Indianapolis Racers 4-2.

"We were very lucky to win."

In Tuesday's other WHA contests, Winnipeg Jets edged Houston Aeros 3-2, Edmonton Oilers beat New England Whalers 4-3 and Birmingham Bulls tied Cincinnati Stingers 4-4.

Quebec has led the East Division all season and Tuesday's win put the margin back to eight points clear of secondplace Cincinnati.

Still, Boileau would like to see more effort from some of his players. "I'd like more guys like (defenceman Paul) Baxter who hits every game," said Boileau, noting that it also took some good saves by goalie Ed Humphreys to keep the Nordiques in the game.

Patriots Join League

Spring football activities shift into high gear with the annual general meeting of the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League tonight at 7:30 in the McPherson Lounge at Royal Athletic Park.

Oak Bay Invaders, Oak Bay Crusaders, Saanich Hornets, Saanich Vampires, Juan de Fuca Tigers and Cowichan Chiefs will be joined this season by Cowichan Patriots.

Larry Chalmers, who was elected to the B.C. Amateur Football Association's slate of directors Sunday, urges all parents of players to attend tonight's meeting.

Other persons interested are also invited because all positions will be open for the election of officers.

Chalmers also announced a coaching clinic has been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at CFB Esquimalt, starting at 9 a.m. each day.

Frank Smith, coach of UBC Thunderbirds, and Gary Schwertfeger, former centre with B.C. Lions and Oakland Raiders, will conduct the clinic, which is for level one certification.

The sessions are eight hours each and the $10 registration fee includes the CAFA Level I manual.

Further information on both the meeting and clinic may be obtained by telephoning Chalmers at 478-3938.

Juggling Act By Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks have recalled veteran centre Ralph Stewart and rookie left-winger Rob Flockhart from Tulsa of the central Hockey league in an effort to strengthen the National Hockey League team. The Canucks also sent three players to Tulsa — centre Jim Wiley, left-winger Andy Spruce and veteran right-winger Gerry O'Flaherty.

Stewart, 28, was purchased from New York Islanders earlier in the season by the Canucks and later was sent to Tulsa, where he had 24 goals and 26 assists for 50 points in 46 games.

Braves Collect Trophies, Triumph

It was Saanich Braves "night" at Pearkes Arena Tuesday.

The South Island Junior "B" Hockey League champions not only took a one-game lead in the best-of-seven final playoff series with a 9-6 victory over Esquimalt Legion, but they also collected the majority of the season's honors.

Braves were presented with the league championship trophy, Mitch Lascelle and Mitch Duch won awards as the top goalkeepers and Mike Schemilt was presented with the Sportcaster Sportsmanship Trophy.

Wayne Proceviat of Victoria Ray's Red Wings was awarded the league scoring trophy. Proceviat scored a record 59 goals and had a total of 98 points.

Saanich took a 5-2 lead in the first period and were on top 8-2 after two periods.

Brent Patterson scored three goals and Scott Connors had a pair for the winners. Rob Coldwell, Dale Ewasiuk, Ron Jobson and Murray McLaren got the others.

Murray Allen and John Entzminger each scored a pair for Esquimalt. Rick Greenhall and Gary Bechtold had singles.

Second game of the series will be played at Esquimalt Friday at 8 p.m. Kerry Park Islanders meet Oak Bay Trios in the third game of a best-of-three consolation semi-final series at Oak Bay Thursday at 8.

Former Wildlife Chief Supports Agency Union

Glen Smith, a resource consultant and top-notch artist who once served as chief of wildlife management for British Columbia, churned up several ideas worth serious consideration while addressing a recent meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry in Parksville.

He took a poke at some time-honored traditions while reviewing the interaction of forestry, fish, wildlife and recreational resources and wound up by lending strong support to Peter Pearce's proposal in the Royal Commission on Forest Resources report to unite the provincial forestry and fish and wildlife agencies.

It goes without saying, given the extent of our forested area in B.C., that there is a great deal of interaction between the various natural resources.

"Even if you don't like foresters, as a wildlife manager you've got to have some association with them," quipped Smith.

"Forestry, generally, has the capacity of enhancing wildlife populations — which is a very happy relationship," he added. This isn't true with regard to all species at all times but game species are generally enhanced by "carefully conducted forestry operations."

"It offers us a great many opportunities for management."

Although there are a few technical problems confronting the realization of this potential, Smith doesn't think they form much of constraint.

The main obstacles appear to be social and institutional.

"We've inherited an ethic that was invented to be diametrically opposed to a situation that existed in Europe in medieval times when the king owned all the game. Over here, the peasants own all the game," said Smith.

Whereas the ethic had a place in the initial settlement of North America, when wildlife was abundant and a few resource conflicts were evident, Smith feels it's about time we started to question both the concept and the institutions it has spawned.

Regarding wildlife as public property results in some absurd ideas.

"Everything in this process gets reduced to some common denominator." Smith, for instance, believed for years that his job was to go out and produce the maximum number of game animals for the maximum number of people.

"I lived with that concept of management for a number of years until someone who knew something about arithmetic told me I was out of my tree. I thought about it and discovered I was out of my tree."

Another social problem is that government agencies responsible for managing resources don't really have an understanding of the growing demand for recreational resources.

"We don't have any kind of effective demand technology and don't know what kind of management we should be producing in order to satisfy the great public's interest in the environment and recreational activities," said Smith.

He also suggested our thinking needs readjustment in the area of economics.

"The costs of environmental protection are getting to be quite an important factor not just in forestry economics but in the whole economic well-being of the province.

"I think it is high time we looked critically at the economics of recreational resources," he added. "I personally feel that recreational resources should be paying some kind of rent to the land."

"Don't get me wrong. I agree with the ethic — it's nice to think it's all free and we don't have to go and pay $5 at a gate to go hunting deer.

"My preference would be some other system of pricing it at a more general level so you don't interfere with individual recreational activities.

"This way you can really kid yourself that it is free."

Institutional problems stem mainly from ineffective statutes.

"There is nothing in the Wildlife Act, for example, that gives wildlife any kind of effective tenure on land. It doesn't empower the agencies responsible for management with any effective opportunity to manage the land base."

"We have a lot of conflicts at the institutional level that have to be straightened out," Smith explained.

He also had a strong opinion about conflicts between public and private sectors.

"A lot of them are nonsense and a lot are nothing more than role-playing by various professions — my own included — and by various institutions we could well afford to dispense with."

Hence the proposal by Pearse to integrate forestry with fish and wildlife meets with his approval.

"You might be surprised to hear me agree with that. I don't know whether most of my colleagues do — in fact, I don't know if any of them do."

Smith believes the proposition deserves to be encouraged by both wildlife and forestry professionals.

"I think we have a lot to share in the resource scene.

"There are a lot of benefits that can be given to society by sharing these responsibilities and I think maybe it's about time we started talking together about these things."

Amen to that!

The Moscow Olympics TV Deal

Lothar Bock Will Have Had the Last Laugh

By DAVE ANDERSON
New York Times

NEW YORK — More than three years before the opening ceremony, the Soviet Union and NBC have set the first record of the Moscow Olympics — the $85 million TV deal. And the Soviet Connection, a West German impresario named Lothar Bock, has collected a $1 million fee from NBC and been guaranteed undetermined additional income by that network for his influence in the TV negotiations.

Once again the Olympics have been exposed for what they are — big business, not sport. Except for the athletes. Cheers and a gold medal are the most an athlete can expect. But without the athletes, the Olympics would not exist. Perhaps some day in the next century the idealists of the International Olympic Committee will realize that if nations and TV networks and influence-peddlers deal in millions during the Olympics, the athletes also deserve to make a buck. Perhaps some day the idealists will become realists and open the Olympics to professional athletes.

It won't happen in Moscow, of course, because there are no professional athletes as such there. Only professional politicians.

Lothar Bock had worked with the Russians before on cultural TV productions. He's lively and friendly, 38 years old with longish hair and a continental flair. He lives in Munich, drinks vodka and smokes West German cigarettes. When he comes to New York, he stays at the Plaza and goes to P. J. Clark's for steak tartare and bacon cheeseburgers. He's not usually around sports, but he delivered the Olympic TV contract to NBC four days after having been released from his CBS commitment when that network withdrew from the negotiations.

"We wonder about that," says one international TV executive. "We wonder if Lothar Bock had that planned all along."

Outsiders familiar with Soviet intrigue wonder if Lothar Bock was a double agent really working for the Russians in order to jack the price up.

"No," says another television network official. "We never had any reason to believe that Lothar was a double agent."

With his $1 million fee, Lothar Bock put such sports agents as Jerry Kapstein, Irwin Weiner and Bob Woolf to shame. Forget about representing athletes, gentlemen, start talking to people in Tehran, Iran, where the 1984 Olympics probably will be held. Deal with nations, not draft choices, as Lothar Bock dealt with the Soviet television minister. His ability to deliver preceded him. Robert Wussler, now the president of the CBS television network but then its vice president in charge of sports, was in Moscow in 1975 when he was introduced to Lothar Bock.

"If you want the Olympic Games," the man making the introduction told Wussler, "here is the man."

And now Lothar Bock has emerged as the main character, the Soviet Connection, in a plot that Chekhov would have cherished — bugged hotel rooms, vodka parties, an "$80 Million Cocktail Party" and even Soviet jokes.

No matter which Moscow hotel the American network executives stayed at, they believed their rooms were bugged. Every so often they would shout at the vents where they assumed the transmitters had been planted.

"Let me repeat that," one of them often yelled, "in case you missed it."

For important conversations they talked in the hotel corridors. Some executives even developed code words that they practiced using in their New York offices. The morning and afternoon negotiating sessions were followed by dinner meetings in Moscow restaurants.

"Those guys," one network executive recalls, "were willing to go out to dinner every night to eat well."

And to drink well. At lunch, one vodka toast was mandatory. At dinner, several vodka toasts were mannerly. At one dinner party for 22 people, 30 bottles of vodka were consumed and not all of the 22 people were drinking.

"I've had hangovers," one network executive recalls, "but the next morning I felt like I'd been kicked in the head."

The night before the negotiations began in early December, the Russians threw what became known as "The $80 Million Cocktail Party" — that's where the three networks first discussed pooling their funds and resources.

The pool plan was submitted to the Justice Department for anti-trust approval, but when CBS withdrew, the plan was abandoned.

Suddenly, only NBC and ABC were in the hunt and then NBC hired Lothar Bock.

But now even the network executives at ABC and CBS laugh at the most memorable joke the Russians told on themselves. It seems that a comrade and his small son were traveling on a Moscow trolley when the boy had a question for his father.

"How wide," the boy asked, "is Red Square?"

"About 600 meters," his father answered.

"And how long," the boy said, "is Gorky Street?"

"About 6 kilometers," his father replied.

"And how high is the Soviet government?"

"That's a silly question," his father said. "There is no answer as to how high the Soviet government is."

Across the trolley, an old man looked up.

"Yes," the old man said, "there is an answer for your son's question as to how high the Soviet government is. I know I am 1.8 meters high. From that I know that the Soviet government must be 1.6 meters high because," and he touched his throat, "I have had it up to here."

Before the 1980 Olympics are over, NBC probably will have had the Soviet government up to here, but Lothar Bock will have had the last laugh.

WOMEN'S TOURNEY SLATED AT UPLANDS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Amateur golf championship will move inland for the first time in 13 years when the event is held at Kamloops, June 22-25, the B.C. Golf Association has announced.

The last time the amateur was held outside the Greater Vancouver area or Vancouver Island was in 1964 at Kelowna.

Other provincial championships in 1977 will be:

The junior at Capilano in North Vancouver, July 5-8; the women's at Uplands in Victoria, July 4-6; the seniors' at Quilchena in Richmond, June 8-10; and the Invitational, July 16 at Shaughnessy and July 17 at Marine Drive, both in Vancouver.

The B.C. Professional Golf Association said negotiations were continuing in an effort to hold the B.C. Open at Marine Drive, Aug. 15-21. It was staged at Quilchena the last two years.

Overtime Victory

Ken Christensen fired four of his 12 points in overtime Tuesday to lead Oak Bay to an 82-80 decision over James Bay Athletic Association in a Basketball League game at Victoria Senior "B" Men's Lambrick Park School.

James Bay led 39-35 at half time but Oak Bay came back and the score was deadlocked 76-76 at the end of regulation time.

John Lauvaas was the top scorer for Oak Bay with 22 points, Tom Hatcher added 20 and Mike Taaffe hit for 17 points.

Ian Scott, who scored with 15 seconds remaining to force the overtime, led James Bay with 25 points.

Titans Stretch Unbeaten Skein

Victoria Titans came from behind in the second half with a kicking game and tripped host St. Michael's University School 16-7 in a Tuesday match between the only two previously unbeaten teams in the Victoria High School Rugby League.

The win extended Victoria's unbeaten skein to seven matches and cut St. Michael's at six.

Tim Crawford and Marty Mader scored tries for Titans, who trailed 7-4 at half time but bottled up St. Michael's in their end of the field for all but a few minutes of the second half.

Harold Butler booted two penalty goals after the break and Mike de Goede kicked a conversion.

Death Stirs Hoop Storm

ROME (AP) — The death of Luciano Vendemini, towering centre of the Italian national basketball team, has triggered a controversy following a report that he had been allowed to play in the Montreal Olympics although declared unfit because of a heart condition.

The seven-foot Vendemini, 25, died of a heart attack Sunday while he sat on the bench waiting for the start of a game for his team, Chinamartini of Turin, in the town of Forli.

Chinamartini's coach, Gianni Asti, said Tuesday he had no knowledge of the player's heart condition and never had been told of the negative test made prior the Olympics.

The tests had been conducted by the Italian Sports Medicine Institute in Rome last summer for all Italian Olympic candidates.

MIKE FINLAYSON

Award for Finlayson

Mike Finlayson, a product of Victoria minor baseball and who joined the Montréal Expos organization three years ago, has been honored by the British Columbia Amateur Baseball Association.

A pitcher in the Florida State League last season, Finlayson was named "BCABA Professional Player of the year" and received his award at the recent BCABA testimonial dinner in Vancouver.

Finlayson turned professional in 1974 and was signed to an Expo contract by Wayne Norton, an Expo scout and also B.C. provincial development co-ordinator for baseball.

Finalyson will be entering his third year of professional baseball this spring, is still in the Expo organization, was a three-time member of Canada's national team before turning professional and last year in the Florida State League won 11 games, lost eight and compiled an excellent 2.28 earned-run average.

A winter resident of Victoria, he has been working out since January in preparation for the coming season.

Also honored was deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace, who received the "BCABA Special Award" in recognition of his many excellent years of public service and association with sports in the province.

The dinner was attended by baseball personalities that included Emmett Ashford, the first Negro to umpire in the major leagues and a former Western International League arbiter; major league star Sal Bando; Lou Gorman, director of operations for the Seattle Mariners; and Marcel Lacheman, former Expo pitching coach and now coach at Southern California.

FULFORD RINK WINS

A rink from Crofton, skipped by Ralph Fulford, won the 14th annual B.C. Forest Products bonspiel at Playland Curling Club Sunday.

Ivan Wood of the Victoria plywood division took "B" event honors with a victory over Dan Holmes of Victoria Sawmill. Cliff Bergstrom of Renfrew defeated Gwyn Hughes of Crofton to capture "C" event and Winston Court of Crofton won from Cliff Bedell of Crofton to take "D" event.

Kiniski Risks Coast Title On Monday

MIKE MORAN SELECTED TO PULL OXFORD OAR

A member of the Brentwood crew that won the Canadian schools title in 1972, winner of a bronze medal at the 1975 Pan-American Games and with the winning University of B.C. crew at the 1976 Royal Henley regatta, Moran is believed to be the first Oxford rowing "blue" from the Brentwood school.

A freshman at Oxford, Moran is studying politics, philosopy and economics.

Villa Gains Final

LONDON (Reuter) — Brian Little shot Aston Villa into the English League Cup soccer final with three goals in the semi-final replay against Queen's Park Rangers on Tuesday.

Villa won 3-0 to gain a record fifth league Cup final appearance against Everton on March 12.

Slack defensive work by Rangers led to their downfall and Little cracked in goals in the 22nd, 27th and 88th minutes.

First-Division strugglers Sunderland at last climbed off the bottom spot in the table with an overwhelming 6-1 win over West Bromwich Albion. The victory moved them above West Ham United and Tottenham Hotspur, but both these clubs have played three fewer matches than Sunderland.

It was Sunderland's biggest First-Division win for more than 20 years. Bob Lee contributed goals in the 27th second and the 33rd and 85th minutes, and the other Sunderland goals came from Shaun Elliott, Mel Holden and Gary Rowell.

BOMBER AIDE SHIFTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — George Dyer, a defensive coach with Winnipeg Blue Bomber of the Canadian Football League, has accepted a similar position with Michigan State University.

A WINDFALL OF EXTRAS

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuter) — A 10th-wicket stand of 133 by Wasim Raja and Wasim Bari and a windfall of 68 extras enabled Pakistan to total 291 after an early collapse Tuesday on the fourth day of the first test match against the West Indies.

When Bari came to the crease an hour after lunch Pakistan had slumped to 158 for nine. But he made 60 not out and Raja scored 71 in a record last-wicket partnership which enabled Pakistan to set the West Indies a victory target of 306. The West Indies had 41 for one wicket in its second innings at close of play.

Pakistan's closing stand was easily the best for the last wicket in test matches between them and the West Indies. The previous record was 57, by Intikhab Alam and Asif Mahsood in 1975.

Purses Boosted

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 1977 runnings of the British Columbia Derby and the B.C. Premier's Championship at Exhibition Park have been increased in value by $15,000 to $50,000 added events; the B.C. Jockey Club says.

The Derby at one and one-eighths miles, and the Premier's, for three year-olds and up at one and three-eighths miles, both are at open handicap events.

The provincial government has not announced approval of recommended dates for the races.

The Jack Diamond Futurity for two-year-olds foaled in Canada over six and one-half furlongs will again be the richest purse at Exhibition Park at $60,000.

Racing opens here April 11.

Douglas Fears Balkanization

OTTAWA (CP) — Secretary of State John Roberts defended the government Tuesday from accusations its treatment of provincial governments in helping fuel Qyebec separatism.

Tommy Douglas, former New Democratic Party leader, continued the attack saying, Ottawa "is moving in a dangerous direction that could lead to balkanization of the country."

Stan Schellenberger (PC-Wetaskiwin) said also that too many decisions on the country's future are being made by meetings of the first ministers and their technocrats with no involvement from elected representatives.

Douglas said that since Pierre Trudeau had become prime minister in 1968, the separatist vote in Quebec had grown from eight per cent to enough to give the Parti Quebecois a majority in the Quebec National Assembly.

That was mainly the result of the prime minister's rigid opposition to the aspirations of Quebec, Douglas said.

"Now the holding together of Canada rests with the people of Quebec."

"We have to show them they can safeguard their language and culture within Confederation."

He warned against any realignment in federal-provincial powers that "would weaken Ottawa's ability to run the country."

The comments came as the Commons continued debate on the proposed Fiscal Arrangements Act which creates a five-year cost-sharing deal for equalization payments to the poorer provinces and shared health and education spending with all of them.

'Economic' Timebomb'

RICHMOND (CP) — Dave Barrett Tuesday described Quebec as "an economic timebomb" and warned that political and business leaders must stop haggling over language and culture.

"Nobody cares if their cheques are in English or French, they want a cheque," Barrett said in an interview.

"Language and culture issues are irrelevant. The time has come for us to discuss issues and direction."

The NDP leader said that while the situation is ripe for name-calling, Quebec has the same problem as B.C.—jobs.

Gillespie, Clark Swap Nuclear Safety Blows

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Tuesday he would be prepared to call a national inquiry into the benefits and dangers of nuclear power if the opposition parties can show him such a study would not duplicate the work of an Ontario royal commission investigating the same topics.

Gillespie made the promise to Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark, during the second consecutive day of charges by the Conservatives in the Commons that the government is avoiding its responsibilities to study the dangers of nuclear power installations in Canada.

Gillespie said the federal government is keenly interested in the Ontario study and will be studying the recommendations of that commission.

Clark said the minister is embarking on a serious precedent when he accepts the work of a provincial study instead of initiating a national inquiry.

Gillespie called Clark's remarks absurd and said it would be foolish to duplicate work done in Ontario.

Flora MacDonald (PC-Kingston and The Islands) questioned Gillespie on the recent announcement of a Candu reactor sale to Argentina.

Gillespie said the maximum loss on the sale would not exceed $40 million despite published reports saying the loss might be greater than $60 million.

Ottawa Hedges on End Of Wage, Price Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial labor ministers ended a one-day conference Tuesday without a consensus on how to ease out of the federal anti-inflation program of selective wage and price controls.

Quebec Labor Minister Jacques Couture said the provinces pressed Ottawa for a definite termination date for the controls program, but no date was given.

A federal spokesman said the conference was mainly to exchange information.

Couture also said the provincial ministers were concerned that the federal government was attempting to interfere further in the provincial jurisdiction of labor relations.

"I told them right off the bat that labor relations were an exclusively provincial jurisdiction."

Couture said while it would be up to his PartiQuebecois government to decide, he personally would be opposed to any participation by Quebec in a national monitoring agency to watch wages and prices after controls are lifted.

Feddral Labor Minister John Munro said he outlined the possible options for lifting the federal controls.

The method that drew the posal to release groups from fewest objections was a pro-wage controls according to the expiry date of collective agreements and from price restraints at the end of companies' financial years.

Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the anti-inflation board, said that proposal was the one favored by the federal government.

The Federal government called for close co-operation with the provinces to work out solutions aimed at avoiding a large burst of inflation once the controls are lifted.

Munro said federal cabinet representatives will meet business leaders March 4.

ENERGY CONSERVATION ... IN 78F. HEAT

OTTAWA (CP) — A commons committee was discussing the need for energy conservation measures Tuesday when a member pointed out the temperature of the committee room was 78 degrees Fahrenheit (25.6C).

Dan McKenzie demanded to know what point there was in the government's energy conservation program if it could not control the heat in its own buildings.

Last week the temperature in the room was 80 degrees (23.7C), he said.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said he had no control over the temperature. As one of the parliament buildings it came under the jurisdiction of Speaker James Jerome, he said.

UNITY CALL BY LEGION

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of the almost 500,000 members of the Royal Canadian Legion — including 20,000 in Quebec—have pledged themselves to work for Canadian unity.

The Legion announced Tuesday that President Doug McDonald of Brantford, Ont., and federal and provincial officers "unanimously rededicated themselves to the principle of a united Canada" at a weekend meeting.

The meeting "reaffirmed that the Legion will continue to work towards that end in every province and territory of Canada," a statement said.

They said a leadership committee which recently crossed the country found overwhelming Legion support for a united Canada.

Chileans Back Down On Nomination

OTTAWA (FP) — The Chilean government has withdrawn plans to name Mario Arnello as that country's next ambassador to Ottawa.

When news of Arnello's possible appointment leaked out earlier this month, the department of external affairs was inundated with a flood of protest letters and telegrams from Canadians and from Chilean refugees living here, an external affairs official disclosed.

The protesters objected to the supposed appointment of the rightwing lawyer and journalist because of his alleged links to Chile's secret police organization.

However, a federal government official said the Chileans had not formally put forward Arnello as the successor to retiring ambassador Horatio Arces, who has been posted to Madrid.

And, despite the allegations, Ottawa has been unable to find any hard evidence to substantiate the allegations made against the Chilean.

The protests, which the Chilean embassy was probably aware of, may or may not have played a part in the withdrawal of Arnello's name.

Now, observers in Ottawa are wondering if the protests will continue, regardless of whom Chile nominates.

Optimism On North Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Blair, the president of Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd. said Tuesday he is pessimistic about the chances of getting a northern natural gas pipeline into operation by 1983.

Blair, whose company has an application for a pipeline from the Mackenzie River delta before the board, says he would like the line in operation by that date.

But, he told reporters, that no pipeline, including rival Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd., can go ahead before some understanding is reached with the native peoples on land rights.

The 1983 completion date had been made earlier in evidence to the National Energy Board.

Arctic Gas says it plans to have its pipeline, a point project carrying Alaskan and Mackenzie delta fuel to market, in operation by 1982.

But the Foothills president said he does not think it will be possible unless some substantial progress is made in talks with the native peoples.

If there were only one or two isolated objections to the line, it might be possible to go ahead. But this is not the case in the North where the native groups say they want their land claims settled first.

The Foothills group also has an application before the board for a separate pipeline to move natural gas from Alaska to the lower 48 states, a project they say could be completed by 1981.

The company feels this line, dubbed the Alcan project, will not run into the same land claim problems as have proposals for lines though the Mackenzie Valley.

Why buy a Made-to-Measure Suit?

One might ask "Why aren't all men built exactly alike?" Made-to-Measure means precisely what it says — your suit is made to fit you. However, fit isn't all there is to a Made-to-Measure Suit. There's also a matter of choice, so your suit is tailored to your own individual preferences.

You choose the cloth from a wide range of colors, of weights, of pure wool or blended fabrics in patterns or in plains— Another good reason, some of our customers believe is the most important of all — you choose the style ... narrow lapels, wide lapels, centre rear or side vents, with pocket treatment or stiching details. When you choose a Made-to-Measure Suit, it's entirely yours alone — there's not another like it in the world!

Why buy a Made to Measure Suit from Woodward's?
Woodward's expert staff is well-qualified to not only take your measurements, but also to take your configuration ... a slight lift to the left shoulder ... sleeves ¼" shorter ... all the little things that make a Made to Measure Suit your suit. When you put on a Made to Measure Suit from Woodward's, "confidence" is built in. As a result? You feel as great as you look!

Right now Woodward's is having a Sale of Made-to-Measure Suits. Come in and choose from the impressive selection of the newest Spring fabrics and colors. After all, there's every reason for you to take advantage of this excellent opportunity to order your new Made-to-Measure Suit!

Prisons a Chaotic Mess, Disgruntled Guards Claim

Jail Brought Out 'Worst in Bruce'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Being locked in jail when he was only 16 years old brought out the worst in prisoner Andy Bruce, British Columbia Supreme Court was told Tuesday.

Bruce is one of three prisoners charged in the June 1975 hostage-taking incident at the British Columbia Penitentiary.

Bruce, Dwight Lucas and Claire Wilson are charged with one count each of unlawful confinement and one count each of attempting to extort transportation from former prison director Dragan Cernetic.

Dr. Milton Miller, head of the University of B.C.'s psychiatry department, told the court that during Bruce's early days in jail, he admired and patterned himself after "the big shots in the institution."

Dr. Miller, continuing testimony that he began Monday, said that during an examination of the 28-year-old prisoner, Bruce told him: "If I could change one thing it would be not to go to prison the first time. It brought out the worst in me."

The doctor called Bruce an extraordinarily bitter man and "a man filled with hate."

Dr. Miller said Lucas has a severe personality and character disorder and "is a short distance away from being psychotic."

During his interview with Luca, Dr. Miller said the prisoner described terrible things about himself but showed no remorse.

In describing Wilson, who was first sent to the penitentiary when he was 15, Dr. Miller called him "a man damaged by the prison experience" of recent years.

The trial continues.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal prison system was described Tuesday as a chaotic mess in which guards are given binoculars without lenses and revolvers without holsters.

A special Commons subcommittee was told by union leaders representing the guards that tower guards at a medium-security prison in Cowansville, Que., had been given shotguns with a range of only 350 feet to cover a wall area of 800 feet.

Paul Gascon, vice-president of the Public Service Alliance, said assaults on guards have decreased since the subcommittee, looking into prison violence, went to work last fall. It has visited 17 institutions across the country, including three maximum-security prisons heavily damaged in disturbances last fall.

During the four-hour session, Gascon and Simm Holt (L — Vancouver-Kingsway) tangled sharply after she challenged the union to "clean its own house."

You cannot understand the whole problem," Gascon said. "Maybe it's too complex for your small head."

He said problems began 16 years ago when Allan MacLeod, penitentiaries commissioner during the 1960s, introduced new programs and de-emphasized security without training guards to handle the changes.

In 1967, the Public Service Staff Relations Act had broken prison employees into 125 categories, creating divisions within the system.

At the same time, Gascon said, the union became a second force and prisoners followed as a third force.

The vroblem now was to get the three forces — union, management and prisoners — working together. Prisoners had abused new programs and greater freedom.

Guards, for their own survival, had banded together at prisons such as Millhaven, which, Gascon said, had been in trouble since prisoners were shifted there in 1971 after a riot at Kingston Penitentiary.

Journal Men Win Appeal to UIC

OTTAWA (CP) — About 160 unionized workers, locked out of the Ottawa Journal since Oct. 26, are eligible for unemployment insurance benefits because the newspaper no longer considers them employees, an Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) board of referees has ruled.

In a decision made public Tuesday, the board said the dispute at The Journal ended Jan. 20 when the workers were informed by management that their fringe benefits with the company were to end Jan. 31.

This indicated that The Journal no longer "regarded a labor dispute as existing and was not expecting the return to work of employees concerned in the dispute," the board ruled.

The workers are eligible for UIC benefits retroactive to Jan. 20, the majority of the threeman board ruled.

An earlier commission decision had ruled that the workers were not eligible for benefits because they were involved in a work stoppage as a result of a labor dispute.

Under the law, workers involved in strikes or other types of work stoppages cannot receive benefits. But locked out workers are eligible for benefits.

The commission had ruled that the workers were disqualified because they had participated in work slowdowns, which precipitated the lock-out. The unions appealed the decision.

The board upheld this part of the ruling.

The lock-out came after one of the paper's five unions, the International Typographical Union, had undertaken work slowdowns to protest the possible loss of jobs with the introduction of technological change.

Management and union spokesmen were not immediately available for comment about the board's decision.

The dispute now is under investigation by a special one-man inquiry commissioner appointed by Ontario Labor Minister Bette Stephenson.

OIL SALES HIT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bruce Willson, chairman of the committee for an Independent Canada, said Tuesday that Canada should cease all exports of oil and natural gas to the United States.

"In my opinion we should cease all exports of oil and gas to the U.S. so as to be able to conserve some of our reserves for the future," Willson said.

"Instead, Canada seems to have this policy of exploiting all its resources as soon as possible, a policy which will inevitably lead to shortages in the future."

Willson, once president of Union Gas Ltd., said he had served as president two companies which were entirely foreign-owned, and it was this experience which had led him to become a member of the committee three years ago.

'SADISTIC' PORN NO PROBLEM HERE

Hard-core pornography of the "sadisitic, chains and bondage type" is not a major problem in B.C., Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Tuesday.

Gardom said an RCMP investigation has shown that the "sex and violence" is not flourishing in B.C. as much as elsewhere.

He told a news conference that the question of pornography in Canada had come up last week during the provincial attorney-general conference in Toronto and that as a result, federal customs officials will take a hard look at the problem.

For its part, the provincial government will consult with the legitimate distributors of magazines about the problem, although Gardom would not say whether the distributors will be asked to curtail certain publications.

"I have no intention of getting into censorship and I won't talk about specific texts," he said.

The government will also discuss the issue with interested citizens groups.

BROWN
. . . "no control"

Vander Zalm Spreading 'Terror'

During debate on Bennett's ministerial estimates, Ms. Brown launched a lengthy attack on Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, saying the premier is too incompetent to control him.

Describing the premier's office as "a nickel and dime operation," Ms. Brown said Vander Zalm, has instilled fear among the handicapped, senior citizens and children of B.C., interfered with the ministry of agriculture by attacking marketing boards and stepped into Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy's territory by criticizing public servants.

"The premier is incapable of disciplining an undisciplined member of the cabinet," she said.

"He has no control," Ms Brown said. "They're fighting among themselves and there is nothing that that minister . . . can do about it.

"He has not made one single move to curtail the reign of terror that that minister of human resources has unleashed against the handicapped, the old and the poor."

Despite repeated warnings from Harvey Schroeder, chairman of committee of supply, which debates budgetary estimates, that remarks concerning the ministry of human resources are not relevent to the premier's responsibilities, Ms. Brown insisted her remarks were in order.

"To disregard the authority of the chair is a serious offence in this house and I have given a final warning," Schroeder said.

Ms. Brown suggested the premier fire Vander Zalm and make him director of intergovernmental affairs so his interference with other ministries would be justified.

"There's a stench hanging over the minister of human resources and it is seeping through to the premier himself," she said, but withdrew the statement after ordered to do by the chairman.

"All ministers of this government have the complete confidence of the premier," Bennett said.

All ministers will be held accountable for their actions and statements during debate on their ministerial estimates, he said.

Debate on Chilliwhack Land Charges Rejected

An NDP MLA called Tuesday for an immediate inquiry and an emergency debate in the legislature about charges of collusion and conflict of interest in farm land development that have been raised by a Chilliwack group.

But Attorney-General Garde Gardom ignored the call for an inquiry and Speaker Ed Smith ruled out of order Port Alberni MLA Bob Skelly's motion for debate.

Skelly called for the moves after the Save the Farmland Committee sent letters to the provincial inspector of municipalities and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

The committee said it had evidence that "indicates collusion, conflict of interest and possible political patronage in the alliance of municipal authorities and developers in the persistent and continuous applications for the release of farmland from the agriculture land reserve."

The group demanded a public inquiry into the dealings between the Chilliwhack district council and private firms that could gross $20 million by getting the land excluded from the reserve.

In a letter to Gardeom, Kerry Pirie, Fraser Valley agriculture critic for the B.C. Conservative party, called for an inquiry into the role played by former Chilliwack municipal solicitor David Hinds in the land dealings.

Hinds now is a provincial court judge.

Skelly said the emergency debate is necessary because Hinds' name had been brought into disrepute and because Gardom refuses to answer question about the situation.

The NDP MLA said he was not surprised when Smith ruled his motion out of order. He said the government likes to keep the question of land transactions out of the legislature.

Committee chairman Joan Totten said Monday one of the companies involved, Sardis Land and Development Ltd. (SLD), could gross $20 million if the B.C. Land Commission or provincial government allows 500 acres to be excluded from the farmland freeze.

The land is part of the 1,700 acres that was kept in the farmland reserve after a cabinet decision last year.

Totten said the SLD is about to try again to have some or all of its land excluded.

Wally Johnson, SLD principal shareholder, said later that he can see no substance to any of the suggestions of the committee or of Pirie.

He said "everything is above board." Johnson also said the company will apply next month to have 129 acres released from the freeze.

WIRETAPS STOPPED WITH ARREST: GARDOM

Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit policy is to end all wiretaps when a person is charged, Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Tuesday.

Gardom was answering a question from Tory leader Scott Wallace who asked if any wiretaps were continued after the arrest of a person, in order to record conversations between an accused and his lawyer.

Gardom said officials of CLEU, a joint law enforcement agency, had no information on any continuing wiretaps except in cases where more than one person was to be charged.

He said if one person had already been charged, but another person was going to be charged with the same or related offence, the tap could be continued.

Pollution Bill 'Fantasy, Sham'

The government's proposed amandment to the Pollution Control Act was called token, cosmetic, fantasy, inadequate, a sop and a sham by NDP MLAs Tuesday in the legislature.

The NDP members were objecting to the amending bill which would enable the ministry of the environment to order persons in the vicinity of a pollution disaster to assist with clean-up operations.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) said during second reading debate that the bill is "a piece of typical Social Credit cosmetic legislation."

Lauk said it does nothing to deal with the problem of pollution prevention; and even if it did, there is no money on Environment Minister Jim Nielsen's budget to take any action.

Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said: "It's a fantasy bill . . . it's not real . . . it's a figment of his (Nielsen's) imagination because he's saying you can control pollution. You have to prevent pollution."

Ms. Brown suggested that the bill be withdrawn and a new pollution prevention act submitted.

Karen Sanford (NDP—Comox) said of the bill: "Its nothing but a sop."

Bob Skelly (NDP—Alberni) said the province already has the authority under existing legislation to mobilize persons and equipment in the event of an emergency.

Skelly said the government must take a firm position on pollution prevention, specifically on oil tanker traffic along the coast.

He called for the elimination of all tanker traffic on the coast, and said Nielsen should be "sacked . . . and replaced by a member who will do the job."

Barbara Walllace (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) said the bill is "only a token bill. . . it's simply inadequate . . . it's just such a token, it's a sham."

George Mussalen (SC—Dewdney) defended the legislation as being broad enough to cover all contingencies.

"It cannot be improved," said Mussallen. "It is totally far-reaching, totally encompassing."

He said the NDP's opposition to the legislation was the action' he's ever seen by the party.

Private U.S. Spy Force Used by Vancouver

A California-based intelligence gathering organization was hired by the city of Vancouver a year ago, deputy attorney-general David Vickers confirmed today.

And at one time, he said, the organization offered its services to the province's Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit.

The offer was turned down, Vickers said, not for "any nefarious reasons" but rather because it is a CLEU's policy to conduct international police liaison solely through the RCMP.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom told the legislature Tuesday Vancouver entered into an agreement about a year ago with the Sacramento-based Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit.

The organization is sponsored and co-ordinated by the organized crime and criminal intelligence branch of the California department of justice.

For a $35 a year membership fee it will provide information on criminal intelligence.

According to Vancouver deputy police chief Tom Dixon, The service is used by police departments in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles as well as Metro Toronto and the Ontario Provincial Police.

Dixon said the organization is not secret though there are "certain third party restrictions" on who may have the information.

Gardom said to his knowledge Vancouver was the only police department in B.C. that uses the service.

Opposition members of the legislature were quick to question for more details of the arrangement from Gardom, who made his statement in response to a question from Norm Levi (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard).

Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) called for an investigation into the organization and a report to the legislature on the findings. Gardom didn't comment.

Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) said he wanted to be sure the organization was not involved with political surveillance.

Agents' Resignation Demand Called Ridiculous by McGeer

Education Minister Pat McGeer has no intention of resigning as head of the Insurance Corporation of B.C. as requested by the Insurance Agents' Association of B.C.

McGeer, calling the request ridiculous, said Tuesday the Crown corporation has alway dealt "most generously" with the 600 agents, who sell about 85 per cent of ICBC insurance.

Association president A. H. B. Wotherspoon said McGeer has taken an "arrogant, take-it-or-leave-it attitude."

Wotherspoon blamed ICBC for the last-minute rush for Autoplan insurance before the March 1 deadline, calling it "last-minute madness."

If agents were allowed to accept post-dated cheques, the rush could be avoided, Wotherspoon said. But ICBC refuses to accept the cheques, he said.

An association vice-president, Ron Kassell, said a new fee schedule had reduced their income this year on an average of 30 per cent.

McGeer suggested the basis for the agents' claims was that they were "furious" because the corporation had reduced their commissions this year.

"But we are paying them fairly and at the same time doing our best to protect the public interest," he said.

McGeer also disputed charges by the agents that mismanagement of ICBC is responsible for the last-minute rush.

McGeer said every year the word goes out that the "sky is falling," but that everyone always seems to get their coverage.

"This year it's going much smoother than others. The whole corporation is running much more smoothly."

TRIBUTE PAID VIC THOMSON

Greater Victoria school trustees Monday paid tribute to Vic Thomson who went from a student at Victoria High to its principle 30 years later and later became assistant superindent of schools in charge of curriculum.

Thomson announced his decision to retire at the end of this school year. He will be 62 at that time.

Thomson was born in Victoria and attended Oaklands school before graduating from Vic High in 1931. After college he began teaching, but spent four years in the navy during the Second World War.

As commander of HMCS Corvette Lindsay, he was awarded La Croix de Guerre by the French during the Normondy invasion.

After the war he began teaching at Vic High and became principal in 1959 — a post he held for seven years before joining the administration as director of secondary education.

Four years ago, he was appointed assistant superintendent (curriculum).

He is on the provincial education department's external evaluation team for secondary schools. When he retires he will have finished 43 years with the school district.

As trustees praised Thomson's long career, board chairman Susan Brice made no secret of his age (or hers) when she said her long association with Thomson dated back to when she was five years old and her kindergarten teacher took a few days off school to marry him.

$255,000 Aid Eyed for Golf

Saanich will spend $255,000 on the municipally-owned Cedar Hill golf course if it gets an $85,000 provincial recreation fund grant toward the project.

In a report to council on Monday, municipal administrator Bill Tremayne said $120,000 will be spent on improvements and additions to the clubhouse and $35,000 on a pro shop. An additional $100,000 will be used to construct a driving range.

Tremayne said $27,000 for the golf course remains in the 1976 budget.

He told council the club has contributed $55,000 toward the project and is committed to pay an additional $25,000 over the next five years.

To raise the remainder, Tremayne suggested an $88,000 short-term loan.

He said the driving range will be "a money-maker" and Saanich will only have spent about $2,000 on the project after a five-year period.

Ald. John Mika questioned the argument that money should be spent on the golf course because it's the municipality's only fund-raising recreation facility.

"This is more than what would have been our share for the Spectrum auditorium," he observed, "There's a point where that argument runs a little thin."

Ferry Stops Again

NANAIMO — Protection Island residents will again be without ferry service at the end of the month.

Bob Armstrong, owner the ferry, has informed city council the regular service will stop Feb. 28 and his boats will be available only on a charter basis. He said two scheduled trips a day for school children attending classes in Nanaimo will continue pending a school board decision on a new rate for his service.

Armstrong said last fall he could not continue the ferry service without a subsidy, but the provincial government refused to subsidize the service or allow the regional district to include it in its transit system.

Nanaimo issued a temporary subsidy which expired the end of January and Armstrong has been running the service since then.

$983,676 'Y' Contract

Victoria YM-YWCA directors have awarded a $983,676 contract to Campbell Construction Ltd. for an addition to the organization's building at 880 Courtney Street.

The facility will include a teaching pool equipped for use by handicapped persons, an auxiliary gym, three handball and racquetball and two squash courts, a youth centre, weight-lifting rooms, a women's health services centre and expansion of locker room facilities.

Work is expected to start immediately.

HOUSING THREAT

The B.C. government should act immediately to prevent construction of a subdivision near the Dominion Radio Astrophysical observatory outside of Penticton, Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) said Tuesday.

"We should insist . . . that no land use contract is given for the area . . . and support those individuals" opposing development, Cocke told the legislature

He said construction of the condominium resort would seriously interfere with the sensitive equipment at the observatory.

By MARY MOORE

I served these two savory seafood pies to nine people — guinea pigs all for they were Pete's whole family who are accustomed to Grandma's test dinners.

Note pastry calls for whole wheat flour

TWO SEAFOOD QUICHES

½ c. whole wheat flour
c. all-purpose flour
1 c., cake-and-pastry flour
1 tsp. salt
⅔ c. shortening
3 tbsp. butter
½ c. minus 1 tbsp cold water

TUNA FILLING

3 large eggs
¾ c. milk
¼ c. mayonnaise
2 tbsp. French prepared mustard
1 7-oz. can flaked tuna
1 10-oz. pkg. thawed fresh frozen chopped broccoli, or
2 c. fresh barely-cooked, chopped broccoli
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese

SHRIMP FILLING

4 large eggs
½ c. milk
¼ c. mayonnaise
1 tbsp. French prepared mustard
¾ lb. thawed fresh frozen deveined shrimp
1 10-oz. pkg. thawed fresh frozen chopped broccoli or
2 c. fresh broccoli chopped and cooked 2 minutes and drained
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese

To make pastry, cut shortening and butter into flours and salt with pastry blender until size of peas, then drizzle fork until damp enough to press into two balls between your palms. Roll each out on floured board to fit two 9" or in cold water tossing with 10" pie plates, shaping high fluted edges.

To make tuna filling in a bowl, beat eggs then add and combine all other tuna filling ingredients except cheese. Carefully pour into prepared pie shell and carry to near oven. Sprinkle top with 1 cup shredded cheese. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 40 to 45 minutes until fairly firm and cheese is bubbly and pale gold.

To make shrimp filling beat the eggs in a bowl and mix in all other shrimp filling ingredients except cheese. Carefully pour into prepared pie shell. Near oven sprinkle top evenly with the 1 cup shredded cheese and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 40 to 45 minutes until fairly firm and cheese is bubbly and pale gold. (I baked both pies at the same time.)

¼ c. whole wheat flour
⅜ c. all-purpose flour
1 c. cake-and-pastry flour
½ tsp. salt
⅛ c. shortening
1½ tbsp. butter
3½ tbsp. cold water.

I recommend the tuna quiche for a regular family dinner and the shrimp quiche for a guest meal.

YOU AND YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

Dollars spent for eating are dollars well spent. Or are they? Do you often wonder if you make the best use of your food money?

First, know your budget needs and what you can afford to spend on food. You should spend enough to give your family nutritious meals they enjoy eating. Plan your menu for the week taking advantage of seasonal foods but keeping it flexible enough to allow for special bargains or unexpected company. Follow Canada's Food Guide to ensure a well-balanced, nutritious diet.

Shop only once a week, alone, aviding impulse buying. Check what you have on hand in cupboard, refrigerator and freezer and allow for the amount of storage and refrigerator space you have. Buy by grade whenever possible and choose the grade that suits the use. Check a "special" price with the regular price; sometimes it's not really a "special."

Prevent waste by proper storage. Put frozen foods in the freezer immediately and all dairy products in the refrigerator. Handle fresh fruits gently and use promptly. Use fresh vegetables as soon as possible. Bread in its original wrapper keeps fresher at room temperature or in the freezer; in hot weather, refrigerator storage will prevent molding.

Save on food by using reliable recipes and follow them closely avoiding unnecessary leftovers. Save bacon fat in covered jars in the refrigerator and use as fat and flavoring for sauces, casseroles, eggs, potatoes and French toast.

Freeze bones from roasts or pountry, scraps of meat, leftover vegetables and their cooking liquid for making soups. Roll or grind stale bread and use for breading or topping.

These are only a few hints on stretching your food dollar. Finding ways to cut food costs is a continuing concern and should be taken very seriously!

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Have you often wondered where your houseplants originally came from? The ability plants have to adjust to growing conditions in our homes is a true miracle. Plants suitable for indoor growing may be divided into three groups:

TROPICAL PLANTS — They grow naturally in the hot steamy tropics of Central and South America, Africa and Indonesia, where the light is often filtered through higher layers of foliage, the temperature and humidity are high and relatively steady and the soil often consists of a thin layer of spongy, partially decayed vegetation.

SUB-TROPICAL PLANTS — From countries such as India, China, Japan, the shores of the Mediterranean, the South African veldt, Australia and the Southern U.S. states. Regions where there is considerably more difference between the seasons, where summer days are warm and sunny and winter is comparatively short with the lowest temperature about 40 degrees F., and where there is fairly high humidity and reasonable rainfall, more or less evenly distributed throughout the year.

DESERT PLANTS — Native to the deserts of the Southwestern United States, Mexico, South America, Africa, the Middle East and Australia, where there is intense sunlight every day, it seldom rains and the humidity is low. The temperature is high by day and often drops sharply at night.

The plants do their very best for us, so we certainly owe our best in caring for them. We can also see how evolved plants are and, through them, realize our potential for change and growth.

Cheesy Mushroom Caps

24 medium-large mushrooms (about 1 pound)
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ cup shredded imported Holland Edam or Gouda
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup toasted slivered almonds
1 tablespoon mayonnaise

Melt butter in small frypan. Remove mushroom stems. Brush caps with melted butter; set aside. Finely chop stems and saute with onion. Combine with remaining ingredients. Spoon filling into caps. Place on well buttered shallow baking sheet. Bake in 375 degree F oven for 7-10 minutes until tops brown. To serve place each cap on a small cracker if you wish. Makes 24 hot appetizers.

½ pound liver sausage, cut in ¼-inch cubes
1 tbls. butter or margarine
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 can (10 ounces) tomatoes (1 1-3 cups)
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Buttered toast
½ cup sliced onion
1 tbls. flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup sliced pitted black olives
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Money Ties Unhappy Marriage Together

DEAR ABBY: I see so many letters in your column from women who are in love with married men and are waiting for them to get a divorce. Take it from a woman who wasted nine years on a married man. No matter how much he loves you and how little feeling he has for his wife, one thing will always hold them together: money!

My married lover begged me to be patient until he could work it out so we could marry. Of course, he was never able to work it out.

Married men will stall because their children "need" them, or their wives are "emotionally unstable" or "physically ill." But if they told the truth, they would admit that they stay married because divorce is too expensive.

DEAR WASTED: Not all me lie through their teeth. Many have paid through the nose.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a man to be in love with two women at the same time?

I'm a divorcee, and this man I'm dating has never been married. When we met, he told me quite honestly that he had been seeing another woman, but that he wanted to date me anyway.

I agreed, thinking that if anything serious developed between us, he'd quit seeing her. Well, something serious did develop, but he's still seeing her. He has us on a schedule. Some days are "hers" and some are "mine." He's taken me on some nice trips but he's also taken her on several since he met me. She knows about me, but she hasn't given him up.

I am not insisting on marriage, but I would like a man who's mine exclusively. Should I give him an ultimatum?

I really love him and don't want to lose him, but his running between me and this other woman is getting me down. What's wrong with him anyway? — FRUSTRATED.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: How far "down" are you willing to get before demanding exclusive rights is up to you. The quickest way to lose him is to give him an ultimatum, so don't go that route unless you're willing to surrender Romeo. I think he's marriage shy, and finds safety in numbers.

Giving Your Children Head Start on Health

By RUTH FREMES AND ZAK SABRY

eating right

The term "heart condition" is traditionally associated with middle and old age. Right? Would you ever use it when discussing the nutrition of infants?

Naturally not. Yet, recently, two doctors at the University of Arizona School of Medicine reported the reduction of cholesterol (a heart disease risk factor) in youngsters of 3 by controlling their diets when they were infants. The report appeared in the American journal "Pediatrics" and was reported by Dr. Glen Friedman and Dr. Stanley J. Goldberg.

Friedman and Goldberg studied 51 3-year-olds who had been on low-fat diets since birth and 420 who had eaten the traditional North American diet. They found no significant differences between the two groups in height, weight, head circumference, skinfold thickness, total serum protein, hemoglobin, and the number of visits to their doctors because of illness. But there was one major difference. "Serum cholesterol was significantly lower in the experimental group that controlled cholesterol."

If that is the case, some questions might come to mind.

How do we prepare our own kids? What is the traditional North American diet?

Our answer?

Eliminate the fats, accentuate the starches and the proteins will take care of themselves.

Milk — stick with skim milk and low fat cheeses and yogurt.

Vegetables — encourage all vegetables, either cooked, or raw or mixed in soups and casseroles.

Cereals and Breads — should be eaten often — muffins and coffee buns offered instead of cakes and cookies.

Meat, fish, poultry and eggs and beans — serve chicken and fish often, buy lean meats and serve them with spaghetti, or beans. Stay away from high fat luncheon meats, bacon, sausages and drain all the fat from cooked meats.

Do not tantalize young children with fat-laden potato chips, crackers, packaged, cookies, thick shakes, french fries or doughnuts. These foods are high in fat. We know enough now about disease and fatty diets to prepare the younger generation for good health by training them early to eat right.

Dear Ruth and Zak:

I have three daughters, 7, 5, and 2 years old. I would like to improve their nutrition. They are very picky, and turn away from anything that isn't roast beef, macaroni dinner or spaghetti. I don't feel they get the proper nutrition, so I give them vitamin pills. Any ideas?

Dear G. L.:

Any ideas we would offer would be rather strict. In our opinion, the dinner table is not a place is not a place for permissiveness. Nor is it a time for rigorous discipline. We believe a supportive parent who knows best, and says so, can accomplish miracles. Spaghetti, macaroni dinners, and roast beef are three meals in a week. Serve those by all means, but then have the girls compromise with your choices for the other four. Vegetable soups and stews with good whole grain bread, fruit and cheese are good meals. They needn't take hours to prepare and they are nourishing, to boot.

Let the kids choose which vegetables they want for salad each night. Show them a selection and let them have some flexibility while having the nourishment they need. Will it be raw turnip, zucchini, lettuce, cucumber, carrots, broccoli ir celery tonight? Ah, celery and carrot — good! Just make sure that they have some of their greens every day. Liver should be an inflexible meal once a week. Perhaps you want it as a liver pate in sandwiches or with green pepper, celery and pineapple over rice for a main meal, but liver once a week beats a vitamin pill every day. Take a positive stance about their nutrition now, and they'll thank you for it later.

Dr. Z. I. Sabry is a professor of nutrition at the University of Guelph. Ruth Fremes is a home economist and a reporter on consumer issues on CTV's program W5.

Baked Ham Slice in Sauce

1 large pre-cooked ham slice or 2 or 3 thin slices
2 cups or 1 can applesause
¼ cup raisins
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
½ taspoon cinnamon
Pinch of ground cloves
Cornstarch paste for gravy

Using 1 to 2 pounds cooked ham, in 1 thick slice or in thinner slices, place ham in buttered baking dish. Mix applesauce with raisins, sugar, vinegar and spices and pour this over the slices.

Cover baking dish and bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes. Place ham on serving platter and thicken sauce with cornstarch paste, 1 tablespoon cornstarch to 3 tablespoons water. When hot and thickened, pour sauce over ham to serve.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

1 pint navy beans
1½ quarts cold water
¼ pound slab bacon, diced
1¼ cups chopped onion
¾ cup catsup
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup molasses
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Wash beans well. Cover with cold water and soak overnight. Simmer beans, covered, in soaking water for 45 minutes stirring occasionally. Drain beans; measure cooking liquid. Add water, if necessary, to measure 2 cups; return to pot. Add beans and remaining ingredients; bring to a boil.

Remove from heat and immediately pack into hot sterilized pint jars, leaving 1½ inch headspace. Place lids on jars and tighten ring firmly but do not force. Process pints in a pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure (240F.) for 60 minutes.

Makes about 4 pints. Delicious!

Sauerbraten: A Delicious Pot Roast

tiny bennett

In recent weeks I've been buying a great deal of beef cuts from the less tender parts, because they have been on special — as low as 65 cents — and because I have been warned that before too long there may be a shortage.

Most of the cuts are less suitable for plain roasting than they are for moist cooking, as I showed recently in a column in which I dealt with the correct manner of cooking a pot roast.

Recently, however, when I got out a nice piece of well-marbled blade of beef, I put it aside and got some lamb from the freezer with the idea of turning the blade into that most richly tasting of all pot roasts, the German Sauerbraten. I'm no linguist, but think that all this means is an actual "sour roast," for this is just what it is. But don't be put off by the name, for it is also very sweet and luscious.

I put that blade aside, because the first step in making this dish is to marinate it for three days before the final cooking. Put the piece of beef affected by the acid action of in a deep dish that will not be the marinate, and try to select a narrow bowl rather than a wide one.

Marinades vary enormously, according to the part of Germany where the recipe has originated, and indeed there is a very fine one from the Berlin region that uses sour cream instead of vinegar.

THE MARINADE

1 cup red wine vinegar
½ cup red wine
2 onions peeled and sliced
2 carrots peeled and sliced
1 stick celery chopped
23 bay leaves
6 whole allspice, crushed
2 cloves
1 tablespoon crushed whole peppercorns
1 tablespoon salt

Put all the vegetables, liquids and seasoning into a saucepan, bring just up to the boiling point and then pour all over the hunk of beef in the bowl. Turn the meat several times and then cover the bowl and refrigerate.

(When I bought a new fridge I had the old one moved down into the basement, and it is really useful for this sort of thing.)

Leave for three full days, turning the meat over thoroughly several times each day. Then remove, wipe clean and dry with a paper towel, patting into all the deeper places to get the meat really dry.

Into your braising pot — any good, heavy pot with a well-fitted lid — melt four tablespoons butter with four tablespoons oil, or best of all, eight tablespoons of good beef drippings, and sear the meat on all sides just as when doing any potroast. Do not rush this, take your time, keep turning the meat and make sure that every part is a good crusty brown.

Remove the meat to a bed of paper towelling, pour away the fat oil, wipe the pan, replace the meat and pour in the marinade, and cover and simmer three hours.

Now pour out all the liquid and strain carefully, leaving the meat in the pot to keep hot.

In a separate saucepan melt three tablespoons butter, add three tablespoons flour and, on a low heat, blend well, cooking slightly to get rid of the raw flour taste. Add one tablespoon plain white sugar, mix in well and gradually pour in the strained marinade which should have had all the fat carefully skimmed off the top. Stir until the sauce is well blended. For the traditional, you can further thicken this sauce with crushed gingersnaps — about one cup will be ample.

Correct the seasoning, slice the meat and serve with potatoes or grated raw portatoes that have been fried up into pancakes. Serve the sauce with the meat.

Some people pile in a huge batch of sauerkraut on top of the meat, so that it heats with the meat while the sauce is made and finished. To my mind this takes away from the distinctive flavor, and enjoying sauerkraut as I do, I prepare it in a separate pan, heating up a large amount putting it in a separate dish to serve.

Now I want to make sure that readers understand that this is a "style" of cooking in which there is no such thing as the recipe. Not only is it made in different ways in different areas, but just about every cook has his or her own idea on how it is best prepared.

Some add raisins to the marinade, which I personally find delicious, some will use white wine instead of red, while others cider vinegar instead of wine vinegar. And, as I noted earlier, there is a superb version that uses sour cream.

So accept Sauerbraten as a very fine system for pot roasting those less tender beef cuts, and do try some of the hundreds of very fine variations that are to be found.

And I hope you enjoy this rather basic one that I have given here — but be prepared for a distinctively different taste treat.

Ricotta Pizza Salad

PIZZA SALAD
Makes 6 to 8 Servings

Lettuce leaves
3 tomatoes, sliced
1 container (15 ounces) ricotta cheese
½ cup chopped pickles
¼ pound bologna, cut into julienne strips (about 4 slices)
2 slices cheese, cut into julienne strips
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced
1 tomato, cut into wedges
¼ cup sweet pickle slices
Dressing.

On serving platter, place lettuce leaves. Arrange tomato slices in circle on lettuce. In medium bowl, blend ricotta cheese and ½ cup chopped pickles. Spread on tomatoes, leaving ½-inch border. Arrange bologna, cheese, egg, tomato wedges and pickle slice on cheese.

DRESSING: Blend ¼ cup olive or salad oil, 1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickles, and 2 tablespoons sweet pickle liquid. Pour over salad and serve.

CHEDDAR CHEESE WITH SARDINES

Makes a superb easy-to-cook main dish for two.

2 cans (3½ oz. each) sardines
1 pound of spinach
1½ cups of skim milk
3 tablespoons of margarine
3 tablespoons of flour
2 tsp. of Worchester sauce
¾ cup of grated cheddar cheese.

1. Drain the oil from sardines into a large frying pan. Set. the sardines aside.
2. Heat the oil and pile the spinach on it. (The spinach should be washed, drained and torn into bite-size pieces.) Cover and cook over low heat for five minutes.
3. While the spinach is cooking, put a cup of skim milk in saucepan with margarine. Heat slowly until margarine melts.
4. Mix the flour slowly with the remaining ½ cup of skim milk until smooth and pour the mixture slowly into the saucepan while stirring.
5. Add worcester sauce and cheese reserving 3 tablespoons, and continue stirring until cheese melts.
6. Put the cooked spinach into a greased baking dish, then the sardines on top of the spinach and the cheese sauce on top of everything. Sprinkle 3 tablespoons of shredded cheddar on this and bake at 400 degrees until cheese melts (about 10 minutes).

STOVE

An excellent vitamin rich side dish — also great lunch served piled on whole grain bread — improves second day — use cold as appetizer on crackers or celery pieces — reheat and serve over scrambled eggs.

1 large eggplant
olive oil
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
salt and pepper
2 tomatoes chopped
1 tbsp. flour
2 springs fresh snipped parsley
fresh or dried thyme, oregano, or basil or combination of all.

Slice eggplant, sprinkle with salt, let stand 30 minutes. Later, dry and cube (leave skin on). Sprinkle with flour and saute in oil til lightly brown — add all other ingredients and simmer 5 to 10 minutes till eggplant is soft, peppers can be crisp.

Divorce Counselling Softens Blow to Kids

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband and I are planning to be divorced. We are both sensible people and hope that our separation can be an amicable one because we both treasure our children's happiness. The boy is 10 and the girl is eight. We live in a small town and wonder what help you can offer us. — Mr. and Mrs. T.G., Neb.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. G.:

You have made a great initial contribution to yourselves and to your children by expressing the need for guidance.

Unfortunately, far too many couples in the process of divorce are overwhelmed by a variety of emotions. Underlying hostility and resentment make it impossible to plan their lives so that the children are spared the impact of such a family upheaval.

In some instances, children become the pawns and are pushed into the position of "taking sides," thus imposing enormous conflicts within these terrified and confused youngsters.

In the practice of medicine I have found that even highly sophisticated and accomplished people fail to recognize that all persons involved in a divorce could benefit from some professional advice.

When parents are wise enough to get such guidance from a psychologist, a psychiatrist or from a religious advisor they learn the importance of 1) sparing the children from believing that they were responsible for the rift between their parents (children frequently believe that) and 2) emphasizing the continued love of both parents, even the one who is no longer residing at home.

Even when young children and adolescents are reassured that they were not in any way responsible for the conflicts and the problems of their parents, they still are distressed by feelings of abandonment and the need to be loyal to one parent more than to another.

An excellent book has just come to my attention, "How to Get Together When Your Parents Are Coming Apart" is written by Arlene Richards, a psychologist, and Irene Willis and published by McKay. This small volume is filled with wisdom and advice which can be of enormous value to both children and parents.

Excellent guidelines are established that should reduce the trauma which is inevitably associated with the break-up of a family.

HAITI LIFE EXPECTANCY JUST 38 YEARS

CALGARY (CP) — Malnutrition is the No. 1 problem in Haiti and because of it the average life expectancy is 38, says the co-ordinator of a Salvation Army compound there which caters to the welfare of 1,143 native children.

Capt. Carol Ratcliff who is home in Calgary on a three-month leave, will be telling Canadians about the work in Haiti because of the dollars they donate.

"Altogether there are 18 Salvation Army mission churches, 18 schools, two clinics and two children's homes on the island," she said. "We have been given a free hand in the development of social agencies in Haiti."

She said there are 4,500 children in the Salvation Army schools altogether.

"In the compound of which I am co-ordinator we have 1,143. We serve them a noon meal and for some it's the only one they have all day."

Capt. Ratcliff said that in the Army's clinics the majority of the patients have problems relating to poor nutrition.

"Our major needs are vitamins, antibiotics and worm medicine."

Haiti has a population of five million and in an area of only 10,000 miles.

"Most of the natives eke out a living from small farms and many are illiterate."

She said the Salvation Army's main aim there is to deal with education and health problems.

"We have 27 officers who run the services in the compounds with the assistance of trained Haitians. Only five are outsiders — one is Canadian, two are Swiss and two Jamaicans."

Capt. Ratcliff said the Salvation Army is being assisted by generous donations from various agencies such as the Canadian Save the Children Fund, which sponsors 100 children.

"The Episcopalians work with us in provinding clinics, the children's homes and the school for the handicapped. Church World Services help provide food, the World Vision International sponsors children."

Capt. Ratcliff became an officer of the Army in 1958, graduating from the Toronto Training College. She served for six years in the field in Canada before going overseas.

Lack Vitamin C

NUTLEY, N. J. (AP) — Clinical research shows that cigarette smokers may need more vitamic C per day than non-smokers. A survey, completed in 1975, showed that smokers of 20 or more cigarettes daily experience a reduction in blood serum vitamin C levels of as much as 40 per cent.

Tasty Stuffing Mixture Fills Eggs Wellington

9 large eggs, hard-cooked and chopped medium-fine
½ cup coarsely chopped Spanish pimiento-stuffed green olives
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
¾ cup finely chopped celery
⅔ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
11-ounce package pie-crust mix
1 egg yolk slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon water.

Prepare pie-crust mix according to package directions; divide in half. On a prepared pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out half of the dough to a 12 by 9-inch rectangle.

Mound ½ of the egg mixture down the centre of the pastry, leaving about 3 inches on the 12-inch sides and 1 inch on the 9-inch sides. Fold up 12-inch sides to overlap slightly at centre and cover filling; pinch together all edges to seal filling completely. Place seamside-down on an ungreased cookie sheet. Repeat this procedure with the remaining dough and filling, placing rolls well apart on the cookie sheet. Brush with egg wash.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden-brown — about 30 minutes. With wide spatulas or pancake turners, transfer to a warm platter. With a sharp knife, slice crosswise.

Makes 8 servings.

DINNER FOR FOUR

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Barbecued Chicken Wings
Rice — Salad Bowl
Stewed Peaches — Cupcakes

STEWED PEACHES

1 pound ripe peaches
½ cup sugar or to taste
½ lemon

Place peaches in pan with boiling water to cover. Boil 5 minutes. Remove peaches and plunge into cold water.

Reserve 1½ cups of the cooking liquid in pan. Add sugar and bring to a boil. Add juice of lemon. Slip skins from peaches, cut into halves or wedges, free from the pits and drop into pan with liquid.

Add a few peach pits for extra flavor. Stew 4 to 6 minutes. Strain syrup and pour over peaches. Serve warm or chilled.

Makes four servings. This recipe, from "Creative Cooking in 30 Minutes" by Sylvia Schur (Simon & Schuster) was enjoyed very much when tried in our kitchen.

APPLE PORK POT ROAST

3½ to 4 pound pork shoulder roast
1 clove garlic, slivered
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 medium onions
½ cup apple juice
3 medium potatoes, quartered
6 carrots, cut in half lengthwise, cut in 3-inch pieces
1 small turnip, cut in small wedges
2 medium apples, peeled, cored and cut in small wedges

Make several slits in roast and insert garlic slivers. Brown roast in hot fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add onions and apple juice. Cover and simmer until roast is tender (2½ to 3 hours).

Remove roast from pan and keep warm in oven Add vegetables; cover and cook 10 to 15 minutes. Add apple wedges and cook until vegetables are tender (about 10 minutes). Six servings.

Little People's Little Pizzas

(10 minutes prepartion)

Saute in oil for 2-3 minutes, chopped fresh tomatoes, green pepper, onions and mushrooms, add a little oregano, salt and pepper. Spoon over English muffins, top with any soft cheese on hand and fresh grated Parmesan (kept in block in freezer). Broil pizzas — children's favorite lunch.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal arose in a rubber-bridge game, North-South arrived at an excellent slam contract despite West's obstructionist opening bid. But West came up with an inspired opening lead to defeat the slam contract.

♣ A Q 9 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♠	Dbl.	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ◇	Pass	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Had West made the normal opening lead of the spade king, one of two things would have happened, either of which would have enabled South to fulfill his contract. East would either have overtaken the king with his ace, to return his remaining spade and hope that West's queen would take the setting trick; or East would have allowed his partner's king to win, after which West would have led another spade to East's ace. Declarer would then have ruffed the second spade lead, picked up the outstanding trumps, and claimed his contract.

But with West making the "abnormal" lead of the spade queen (one normally leads the king from a K-Q combination), East naturally won the trick with his ace. He then pushed his chair back, and pondered over what to lead back at trick two.

To return a spade offered no hope, since South had the spade king (West's lead of the queen had denied the king). To return a trump was equally futile. Then there was the theoretical possibility that West had the club ace. But this possibility was dismissed quickly; South, en route to the slam, had employed the Blackwood Slam Convention; and he had learned that North had just one ace. South had then bid the slam.

Surely if South, who had already shown up with the spade loser, didn't have the club ace, he would not have bid the slam knowing that the defenders had two aces. Therefore South had to be the possessor of the club ace. And to lead a diamond, in view of the dummy, was hopeless.

From East's seat, North, East and South had a minimum of ten clubs between them — and might well have more, depending on South's holding in this suit. Thus there existed the possibility that West was void of clubs. While this was not likely, it offered the only hope. So, at trick two, East returned a club — and West ruffed.

If single, you could marry this year, a time of travel, creativity, intensified relationships. March and December might be memorable months.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

We have 3499 for the game today. Two 9's, one 4 and one 3. Using all four each time, but no other digits at all, you form expressions for the consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation or factorial symbols, and no words. Don't forget decimals, regular and repeater, also powers and roots. For example, 94 — 9 plus 3 is a solution for 88.

The limit without a break in continuity seems to be 117, with 116 as a possible challenge. I shall be glad to check solutions.

Furniture Sought By Nigel House For Handicapped

The Vancouver Island Housing Association for the Physically Disabled needs money and is banking on Victorians for help.

It hasn't sufficient funds to furnish a new building for the physically disabled now under construction on Nigel Street near the Town and Country Shopping Plaza in Saanich.

"So far we have collected $6,000, but we need at least another $42,000 to furnish the rooms for 35 people who will board there," trustee John Phillips said.

"As some of the furniture must be specially designed for people in wheelchairs, we urgently need help or donations."

He said the boarding residence to be known as Nigel House is expected to be opened on July 1.

Donations should be addressed to 2063 Frederick Norris, Victoria, B.C., V8P 2B4.

The building, designed by architect John di Castri, is the first of its kind in Canada.

It is a "pioneer project" designed to provide necessary space and facilities for people confined to wheelchairs, Phillips explained.

The building is being financed under the National Housing Act with a 100 per cent loan from the federal government, of which 10 per cent is a non-repayable contribution.

The balance of the loan, 90 per cent, is repayable over 50 years at eight per cent.

"So we are asking for support from associations and individuals," Phillips said.

Two Music Recitals

Music lovers, and especially those interested in the work being done by this city's healthy crop of rising young artists, can treat themselves to two attractive recitals this week.

At the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria Thursday, the music of Germany will form the program being given in the Theme and Variations series.

The performers will be pianists Walter Prossnitz and Allen Reiser and the Conservatory String Quartet consisting of Linda Mueller and Stephen Calder, violins, David Becker, viola and Larry Skaggs, cello.

Gallery doors open at 7:30 p.m. and the concert begins at 8.

This concert begins at 8.

William Head Programs 'in Limbo'

Delay in the appointment of a new director for William Head medium security prison is causing unrest among prisoners, says Sharon MacBain, spokesman for Community Action Group.

She said there is concern about a group of men "sitting in limbo" the last few months, unable to participate in temporary absence programs in the community.

An unofficial spokesman at the jail said MacBain's criticism is misplaced and simplistic in its approach to program deficiencies.

He said there have been restrictions since last September on the temporary absence program at all prisons. This evolved from national concern in the penitentiary service that temporary absences were being granted beyond the authority of the penal system.

The granting of such absences should be a role of the parole system, it was determined. This policy was reflected at the regional level and programs in which men went out on social development activities were curtailed.

He conceded the action was disappointing to the men who had been taking part, but would not agree with MacBain's statement that it had caused anger and frustration among prisoners and staff.

Employees, he said, adjusted their approach accordingly. It had forced those in charge of programs to be more creative within the prison walls.

The programs have to live with the new restraints, he added.

If any prisoners were angered by the new policy, they were likely men who were used to a liberally-run minimum security institution, he said.

But since October 1975 William Head has been a medium security prison and some of its more recent prisoners have different qualifications from the older ones who earned their way in while it was a minimum security institution.

Director John Mulroney last fall became director of Pandora Community Correctional Centre. Jim Homer was made acting director at William Head while the job was posted for a permanent replacement.

Due to an error in the posting it has had to be repeated and it will be another three months before a new director can be chosen.

Meanwhile, a second acting director has been named, A. V. Bender, who arrived at the weekend to begin duties Monday.

The prison source said volunteer work within the institution was unaffected by the police dealing with temporary absence, although the same agencies might be involved.

MacBain said community programs take the pressure off inmates. Without them tension increases and anger swells.

Whether a man takes advantage of internal programs depends on how bored he is.

She said what is needed here is a Citizens Advisory Council, and even that needs the approval of the director.

A general public meeting of persons who would like such a council will be held next month at the Law Centre, 45 Bastion Square.

Give your family our best.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 34-year-old man seemed to have the support of the Crown counsel and Judge Fred Green in Victoria provincial court Tuesday before getting an unusual fine for breaking and entering.

Joseph Marcel Risi, of 3015 Quadra, pleaded guilty to a Feb. 10 break-in at Rawlings Plumbing and Heating, at 625 Hillside, and appeared in court for a presentence report and sentence Tuesday.

Victoria city police apprehended Risi inside the premises when a silent alarm was activated.

Legal aid lawyer Jasper Bomhof, arguing for a term of probation, said Risi had not received any breaks as far as sentences were concerned in the past. Bomhof urged Green to consider this an unusual case where a term of probation would be of benefit to both Risi and the public.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said he concurred with Bomhof's assessment.

Green noted that Risi's past criminal history took up more than one page of the 12-page pre-sentence report and called it a "disgraceful record," but said that Risi's last year and a half to two years showed "a remarkable example of being able to place yourself in this community."

Green fined Risi $1,200, payable by July 15, placed him on two years' probation and ordered him to take part in any life-skills or alcohol counselling as directed by the probation officer.

In Victoria family court, at 2020 Cameron Street, a 16-year-old juvenile pleaded not guilty to charges of armed robbery and attempted robbery with violence and was remanded in custody.

The youth, whose name cannot be published, was charged in connection with the Feb. 15 holdup of the Haultain Beauty Salon, 1123 Haultain, in which $36 was obtained by a bandit wielding a butcher knife, and an abortive Feb. 14 attempt at the Capital Shoe Repair, 1650 Haultain. In both cases, the suspect escaped on a bicycle.

The youth can apply for bail any time before the March 18 trial date.

A 35-year-old woman who was chased by Victoria city police at 2:30 a.m. south on Douglas Street at speeds close to 65 miles an hour, was fined $275 for dangerous driving.

Sandra Spies, of 675 Niagara, pleaded guilty to the charge, which arose from a Feb. 6 incident.

Court was told Mrs. Spies was spotted driving on the wrong side of the road on Douglas, near Yates, going through red lights and forcing other vehicles off the street. Her vehicle hit the curb near Belleville and finally went out of control and hit a median, and she was arrested trying to run away, court was told.

"I'm not a dangerous driver," Mrs. Spies said, adding she was upset over the loss of a child recently.

"I don't remember anything," she continued. "I just wanted to die."

Besides the fine, she was placed on six months' probation and Green suggested she take any counselling on life skills or therapy as directed by the probation officer.

Accused Changed Shirt Night of Murder

Monique (Gypsy) Dhillon had an appointment at Victoria General Hospital for a minor operation the morning of Sept. 9.

The appointment was never kept because the 30-year-old Victoria mother of three was found dead that morning in a grassy area by Macaulay Point in Esquimalt.

Later, she was taken to the morgue at Victoria General Hospital.

Her friend, Theresa Vickson, who now lives in Alert Bay, told B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday of the hospital appointment, for a tubal ligation operation.

Mrs. Vickson, who had shared an apartment on Dowler Place for a short time with Mrs. Dhillon, said she was contacted by Sgt. Doug Sproxton of Esquimalt police Sept. 9 and went with him to Victoria General to identify the body.

She was among eight witnesses testifying at the assize trial of John Edward Aitken, 30, accused of first-degree murder by causing the death of Marie Alice Monique Nordelli Dhillon while committing rape.

Mrs. Vickson said the apartment-sharing arrangement with Mrs. Dhillon was temporary because the latter was leaving for Montreal Sept. 24.

Mrs. Dhillon, formerly Nordelli, had been married Sept. 7 to Surgit Dhillon.

On Sept. 8, Mrs. Vickson said she, Mrs. Dhillon, Mrs. Jaqueline Harper and Mrs. Sharon Fleming were together in the morning and were drinking vodka and gin in the afternoon.

About 7:30 p.m., she said Mrs. Dhillon and Mrs. Fleming left for the Halfway House beer parlor on Esquimalt Road. Mrs. Dhillon was wearing blue jeans, a top and a jean jacket.

She said she next saw Mrs. Dhillon around 9 p.m. when she returned with Aitken, a waiter at the Halfway House. She was wearing jeans and a shirt but not her jean jacket. He was wearing a white shirt and tan pants.

She described Mrs. Dhillon as "still in a happy mood" and wanting to go dancing at the Army, Navy and Air Force veterans club on Wharf Street.

She said Aitken had a cast on his right arm with a pinkish bandage wrapped around it. Mrs. Dhillon changed into a long blue dress and she and Aitken left about 9:30 p.m. She saw her change and there was no bruising on her body.

Three employees of the Halfway House testified they saw Aitken and Mrs. Dhillon together in the evening of Sept. 8.

Jeannette Parsons, a waitress, said she saw them in the beer parlor between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. Between 7:20 and 7:30 p.m., she said they left the pub.

Mrs. Parsons said Aitken had a cast on, as a result of a previous injury he suffered while trying to break up a fight at the pub.

Anne Marie Charek, another waitress, said she was working the 2:30 to 11:30 p.m. shift and saw Aitken and Mrs. Dhillon between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., "about the middle" of this time period.

"I think she was quite happy. She seemed to be feeling good," Mrs. Charek said.

They left together "sometime after 7:30" and she didn't see Mrs. Dhillon again.

She said Aitken returned "I would say about half an hour before my shift ended" and he had changed his shirt, to a bright yellow one.

She said she pointed this out jokingly to him. She said he told her he had driven Mrs. Dhillon home to change and then they had driven downtown and "I thought he said he drove her to the Old Forge."

In cross-examination, she agreed she could be mistaken about the time Aitken returned. "I could be out one hour, but not 1½ hours," she said.

Asked if Mrs. Dhillon was a "table hopper" at the pub, she replied, "yes."

Mrs. Fleming said she saw Mrs. Dhillon at 9 a.m. Sept. 8 when she went over for a visit, which included Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Vickson.

Mrs. Fleming said she stayed there until about 6 p.m. Asked how much liquor was drunk, she said "quite a bit."

She said she and Mrs. Dhillon went by taxi to the Halfway House about 7 to 7:30 p.m. and got there before 8 p.m.

She said Mrs. Dhillon joined Aitken at a table, then she joined both of them, and she thought two men were also there.

They were "not there long" when Mrs. Dhillon said she wanted to go to the Army, Navy and Air Force veterans club.

Mrs. Fleming declined an invitation to go there and Mrs. Dhillon said "something about John taking her home to change" to go to the club. Mrs. Dhillon and Aitken left together, she said.

She was to continue her testimony when the trial resumes today.

Sproxton, in his cross-examination, agreed that rigor mortis was setting in but hadn't stiffened the limbs when he examined the body at Macaulay Point in the late morning of Sept. 9.

He agreed Aitken was polite and co-operative when interviewed by police later that day, that he had no scratches or marks and that he was released.

He also agreed that Aitken told him Sept. 22 he wanted to go to Mexico, that Aitken left town with his knowledge and consent, and the charge was not laid until Nov. 9.

Here's the Chicken Broth that's just right for all your favourite recipes

How many times have you wished for a dependable convenient chicken broth? Well here it is. New Campbell's Condensed Chicken Broth—with that "M'm! M'm! Good!" flavour that you know and trust. Try it as a soup or as a base for your own soups and sauces. Use it in your favourite recipe that calls for real chicken broth. Or try any of the following tested recipes.

CHICKEN A LA KING

2 tbsp. chopped green pepper
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour
1 can Campbell's Chicken Broth
½ cup milk
1½ cups cubed cooked chicken
2 tbsp. chopped pimiento

In saucepan, cook onion, green pepper in butter until tender. Blend in flour. Cook a few minutes, stirring. Remove from heat. Stir in broth and milk a little at a time. Cook, stirring until thickened. Add remaining ingredients. Heat; stir often. Serve over toast. Makes about 3 cups.

NOODLE 'N' VEG BOWL

¼ cup chopped onion
Generous dash crushed oregano leaves
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 can Campbell's Chicken Broth
1 soup can water
1 cup cooked mixed vegetables
½ cup uncooked fine egg noodles

In saucepan, cook onion with oregano in butter until tender. Add remaining ingredients. Simmer 10 minutes or until noodles are tender. Stir occasionally. Makes about 3 cups.

SPANISH CHICKEN

2 pounds chicken parts
2 tbsp. shortening
1 can Campbell's Chicken Broth
½ cup water
2 medium cloves garlic, minced
1 tsp. salt
½ cup chopped onion
⅔ cup uncooked rice
1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas
1 cup cut-up canned tomatoes

In skillet, slowly brown chicken in shortening (about 30 minutes); pour off fat. Remove chicken. Stir in remaining ingredients except peas and tomatoes; top with chicken. Cover; cook over low heat 15 minutes. Stir occasionally. Add peas and tomatoes. Cook 10 minutes more or until done. Makes 4 servings.

Dame Vera Goes Country

VANCOUVER — Nashville is a long way from the White Cliffs of Dover—some 3,000 miles and 36 years for Vera Lynn — who will be recording a country and western album there later this year.

The 60-year-old singer, sweetheart of servicemen during the Second World War, says it is something she has always wanted to do.

She says when she did get a chance to do country and western she decided the place to go was where they know how to do it best, Nashville.

Dame Vera, who was given her title in the 1975 Queen's birthday honors list, has always kept up trends in her field. She credits the Beatles with bringing back good music.

"During the early part of the rock and roll era you just couldn't find songs that were worth singing. It was all noise. Then along came the Beatles and suddenly good music came back and I could find tunes I wanted to do again.

Dame Vera says she retired once in 1946 when her daughter was about to be born. But the farm she lived on wasn't doing too well, she says, so she went back to work, doing a week here and a week there.

That grew into a series of radio programs that led to television.

"And when the Beatles brought back nice tunes I started a television series with contemporary music that lasted for seven years."

Dame Vera's three-day stay here follows a 42-interview tour of Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg, during which she has been promoting Operation Friendship, a British Tourist association scheme to lure former allied servicemen back to Britain for the Queen's silver jubilee year.

Then she goes to Los Angeles, New York and Washington and then back home, before going to Europe for a series of concerts, mainly to ex-servicemen's groups.

Her Bikini Turned Transparent

LONDON — A 22-year-old woman who had to crawl up the beach to her towel after her swimsuit turned transparent won a legal case Tuesday against the manufacturers.

Blonde Susan Slater, a secretarial student, was on holiday on the Spanish island of Ibiza when she first tried out her $10 "trikini" — a bikini with a strip joining the two parts.

"When I came out of the water it was obvious that it was transparent," she said.

"I was horrified and dropped to my knees and literally crawled back to my towel."

On her return to Hitchin, near London, she complained that the trikini was a breach of Britain's trade descriptions act.

Kremlin Kiboshes Kong . . .

MOSCOW — "The horrible grin of a gorilla is helping Americans to forget unemployment lines, inflation and the high cost of living," a Soviet movie critic writes in the Literary Gazette.

The critic was reviewing the new version of King Kong.

The Soviet view is that sensational films such as Kong, Earthquake, The Towering Inferno and Jaws are the new opiate of the masses in the United States.

Another review of King Kong in Pravda pointed out that the original version of the film was made during the depression of the 1930s. "It is no coincidence that now that the Western world has again entered a crisis period, a modernized version of King Kong has been released," Pravda commented.

Connie Settles For $1.47M

NEW YORK — The Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge chain has reportedly agreed to pay singer Connie Francis $1.47 million in an out-of-court settlement of a negligence suit she filed after being raped at one of its motels. A court hearing had been scheduled in a few days to hear the chain's appeal of a $2.5 million award granted Miss Francis last July.

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — Five-year-old Scott Spink knew just what to do when his friend Nichole Arnswaldt, also 5, fell into Squalicum Creek near their homes while they were fishing. "I saw them do it on TV," Scott explained after he waded hip deep into the water and tossed Nichole a rope. The little girl grabbed hold and was pulled to safety.

DETROIT — Frank Hogan is addicted to cigatettes—to collecting packs and cartons and wrappers of them. "At least it keeps me out of bars and home nights," says Hogan, 39. His collection of tobacco memorabilia includes 1,500 items representing 1,200 different brands of cigarettes. Hogan's collection started in 1970. He says that's when he became bored with outdoor metal thermometers, which were his previous passion.

LONDON —Actor Peter Sellers married 22-year-old Lynne Fredrick in a quiet ceremony in Paris last Friday, his agent said here today. It was his fourth marriage. A spokesman said only a handful of witnesses attended the five-minute ceremony.

MILWAUKEE — A postcard sent more than 30 years ago from Los Angeles has arrived at the suburban River Hills home to which it was addressed. "You know a man could walk that in eight months and walk it backwards in a year," said Russell Nygren, who received the card. The card, cancelled Jan. 3, 1947, had been addressed by Russell Nye to his wife, then staying with Nygren, her brother-in-law. Nygren said he would now send the card to the Nyes in Kenosha, Wisc.

DELTA REDUCES TAXES BY 10%

DELTA (CP) — Mayor Tom Goode, who announced that Delta residents can expect a 10-per-cent drop in taxes this year, Tuesday challenged other Vancouver area municipalities to do the same thing.

Goode called the decrease a precedent-setting move and said that Delta has had the lowest tax increase in B.C. for the last two years.

"By taking a straightforward business-like approach in the operation of this municipality, we are able to trim the 1977 budget to the point of a decrease," he said.

"We know of no other municipality in B.C. — and perhaps Canada — that can show a decrease in taxes and still provide its residents with a decent lifestyle at a time of rising costs in almost every sector of society."

He said the municipality has collected more than $3.5 million in impost fees during the past two years and this will give residents a decrease in taxes.

Mill Working At 80%

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Les Waldie, industrial relations director for Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd., said Tuesday his firm is working at only 80 per cent of capacity because of poor world markets.

Waldie rejected a call by opposition leader Dave Barrett for construction of more mills in the province because both local mills and consumers in the world market have high inventories.

Northwood's operations are running at only 80 per cent of their 250-thousand-ton annual capacity, Waldie said, and the company is planning a three-week shutdown beginning March 27. Another shutdown may follow in July, depending on world market conditions.

Waldie said the number of men laid off without pay in March will be small because some work on plant maintenance and others will use accumulated time off.

Second Chile Family Must Leave

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A second Chilean family living here is fighting to stay in Canada after being denied political refugee status.

Alfonso and Myrian Miranda face deportation to Chile after a federal appeals court Monday turned down their plea to stay here. The Mirandas say they left Chile in 1975 to escape political persecution.

Their situation is similar to that of the Ricardo Leiva family which was also denied refugee status and deported. However, the Leivas were recently given landed immigrant status after they left Canada and went to Spain where they applied for legal immigration.

Following their return to Prince George earlier this month, Ricardo and Carmen Leiva have resumed a normal life with Leiva taking up his job with B.C. Rail and their children going to school.

The Leivas and the Mirandas were supporters of the Salvador Allende socialist government which was overthrown by a military coup in 1973.

Gerry Goldstein, a Vancouver lawyer, said the Mirandas, who were earlier turned down by the immigration appeal board, have not exhausted all court proceedings. A decision on the next step will be made later this week.

Goldstein said that Miranda's declaration for refugee status is "pretty sad reading."

In it, Miranda, 25, claims he was arrested one week after the coup and imprisoned in a ship with about 1,000 others for 1½ weeks.

Miranda, a university student in Valparaiso at the time, said he was not allowed to return to university after the junta took power.

"Up to the time that I came to Canada, the police called at my house at least twice a month and took me away for interrogation and beat me up on every occasion and threatened to kill me if I did not supply them with information to answers I did not have," he said.

"I was afraid for my life because many of my friends were killed by the military and, in Valparaiso alone, there were 3,000 to 4,000 civilians killed by the military during this period."

Kamloops Given Strike Notice

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 900 served 72-hour strike notice on the city Wednesday, leaving the union in position to strike by 10 a.m. Friday if mediator Ken Albertine signs off negotiations.

Bill Ferguson, business agent for the 350-member local, said strike action could involve a complete and immediate shutdown, rotating strikes or the shutdown of individual city departments.

Centre Opposed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Mayor Harold Moffat told council here Monday a proposed $20 million cultural centre will not be built as long as he is mayor.

Council adopted a design last week by Vancouver architect Graham Tudor as a guideline for future development of the downtown area, set aside for a new library, art gallery, convention hall and other facilities.

Fall Kills Man

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Harry Fred Tomson, 54, of New Westminster, was killed Tuesday in a fall from the porch of his summer cabin near this coast community northwest of Vancouver.

Ads Backed

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council decided Tuesday to abandon its long-standing policy of prohibiting advertising on bus shelters and voted to enter into an agreement with a private company to build and maintain glass-walled shelters. This means about 300 bus shelters carrying advertising will appear on city streets in the next few years, council was told.

Pay Hike Killed

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council decided against giving itself a six-per-cent pay increase Tuesday. The motion ended in a vote of 5 to 5 which constitutes a defeat. May Jack Volrich, who favored the increase, makes $30,000 a year while aldermen are paid $13,200.

UBC Challenged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Allen Soroka said Tuesday that he has instructed his lawyer to take action under the Human Rights Act to challenge any move the University of B.C. may make to censure or fire him.

The UBC law librarian is under threat of dismissal by University president Douglas Kenny because of his involvement in an incident last October in which a South African member of Parliament was prevented from speaking to a campus audience.

Assessment Fought

PORT ALBERNI (CP) —No decision was made on the appeal of 156 residents of the Lugrin Creek flood plain for a reduced property assessment after 2½ hours of court of revision hearings were completed Tuesday.

Area assessor Gerry Cameron used records of 29 sales in the area last year to show property values had not decreased as a result of a municipal bylaw which imposes building and subdivision restrictions over the flood-prone area.

No Funding For Child Abuse Team

VANCOUVER (CP — Vancouver General Hospital's child abuse team will be disbanded March 1 because the hospital and the provincial government won't provide public funding for an operation that was started two years ago with private funding, Dr. Jim Carter said Tuesday.

He and fellow team member Margo Buck a social worker, are finishing their work at the end of the month when funding from the Vancouver Foundation expires.

Carter said in an interview that the hospital and the provincial human resources department have both declined to pick up where the foundation grant leaves off, and the two team members have no alternative but to cease operations.

The decision would leave Vancouver General as one of the few major Canadian hospitals without a child abuse team, said Carter, who added that the team was patterned after similar operations in the United States. It was the first unit of its type in B.C.

Labor Tackles Congress

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Big labor promises to fight big business in an expensive, emotional battle before Congress this year over the basic law governing the right of workers to bargain collectively with their employers.

AFL-CIO president George Meany precipitated the battle Tuesday by launching an ambitious legislative campaign to stop what he described as the erosion of workers' rights under the National Labor Relations Act.

He predicted the time was right for the package to be enacted by a heavily Democratic Congress and a New Democratic president. He said he knew no reason why President Carter would not sign every piece of legislation in labor's package.

But he acknowledged that he expected tough opposition from the "right to work" lobby, which has planned a multi-million dollar campaign to resist any changes in the law.

Labor's lobbyists also will be well financed. The AFL-CIO executive council voted Tuesday, during its midwinter meeting, to impose a temporary, one-cent-a-month assessment on all union members to raise an estimated $800,000.

The AFL-CIO will seek to revise federal labor law in a single omnibus bill.

PIGGYBACK TEST FLIGHT over the California desert was made Tuesday when NASA's space shuttle took to the air for the second time atop a Boeing 747. The space shuttle is being put through a variety of tests with no one at the controls prior to testing it with a pilot.

Hospital Bill Ceilings Proposed by Carter

WASHINGTON (WP) — A strict federal limit on how much hospitals can charge patients for care was proposed by President Carter Tuesday as a first step in cutting the country's runaway medical costs by billions of dollars a year.

In what could become the country's first permanent health cost control, the administration said it would ask Congress for authority to set a hospital charge ceiling that could save those who pay for health care more than $2 billion the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano denied that the step would be a wage-price control for hospitals — Carter has said he would not impose wage-price controls — but rather a way of negotiating with hospitals to give them "a reasonable price increase" but no more. The health industry was under temporary price control in president Nixon's "economic stabilization" period of August 1971 to April, 1974.

Califano said a 9 per cent increase in hospital charges to the government, health insurers and individuals in fiscal 1978 would be "ample." He added that such a limit would save the government and the public $2 billion.

Hospital charges rose 15 per cent last year to make the average daily cost $154 per patient, he explained. The $154 is a nationwide average — the current figure is more than $200 in the Washington area and equally high in other big metropolitan centres.

STORM BATTERS FREIGHTER

JUNEAU (UPI) — A Japanese ship with 27 men aboard radioed that it was sinking in the storm-tossed North Pacific Tuesday, but later cancelled her distress call and said she could make it all the way home with the help of a sister ship.

The 597-foot Japanese cargo vessel Tacoma Maru, carrying a load of logs, first reported trouble about 11 a.m. Pacific time in 50 to 60-knot winds and 25 to 30-foot seas about 200 miles southwest of about 200 miles southwest of Attu, the end-tip island of the Aleutian chain, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

A Navy plane responding to the SOS radio signal from the ship reported that her load of logs had broken loose from the deck, but that the ship was able to keep her bow to the heavy waves.

The U.S. Coast Guard Rescue Co-ordination Centre reported that the ship, bound for Japan from Longview, Wash., apparently had "steadied out" and felt assured by the nearby presence of the 788-foot Rokkohsan Maru, which was to escort her through heavy winter seas back to Japan.

At 7:50 p.m., the Tacoma Maru notified the Coast Guard she would no longer need their assistance.

Pacific Coast Drought May Start Breaking Up

LOS ANGELES (WP) — U.S. weather experts expressed cautious optimism Tuesday that an unexpected shift in a giant offshore high-pressure system over the Pacific Ocean last weekend lay bring an end to the West Coast's lingering drought and relief for the chilled and snowbound Northeast.

The high-pressure ridge, which had been sitting about 450 miles off the Pacific Coast from southern Alaska to central California, began breaking up Saturday after causing most of this winter's unseasonable weather across the Continent.

"We just don't know why these things happen," said Paul Ellis, chief weather forecaster for the U.S. National Weather Service's Seattle station. Ellis said that the disintegration of the ridge is a hopeful sign: "If it holds, it looks like we will go back to what could be considered normal winter weather for the rest of the country."

Rain began falling Sunday over the drought-stricken Pacific Northwest, where low water levels have caused hydroelectric power cutbacks and job layoffs. A storm that blew in off the Pacific on Monday dumped 1½ inches of rain on central California. State officials have predicted a $3 billion crop loss because of the drought.

"We're watching what is happening very closely," said Robin Reynolds, a spokesman for the California department of water resources. Reynolds said federal weather forecasters and his department's meteorologist said Tuesday that normal Pacific weather patterns should be in effect for at least a week. "After that," he said, "we're all sitting here with our fingers crossed."

Reynolds said, however, that it would "take 250 per cent of the normal rainfall before winter's end to get us out of the hole."

The giant high-pressure ridge has acted as a buffer, holding up the wet, stormy weather that usually afflicts the Northwest each winter and driving the storms northward into Canada from where they have rolled down on the U.S. Midwest and Northeast together with huge polar air masses similarly detoured by the high-pressure area.

Crash Kills Blue Angel

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) — A plane belonging to the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels aerobatic flying team crashed during a low-level practice run over the desert Tuesday, killing Lt. Nile Craft, 29.

Craft, a native of Gilman, Ill., was the 21st Blue Angel to die in a practice or performance crash.

He was an experienced pilot with 223 combat missions.

Allotment Plans to Be Discussed

Spring is in the air. Allotment gardeners and those who would like to be allotment gardeners are planning for the coming active season.

The Capital City Allotment Association invites its members and all gardeners who wish to apply for garden plots to attend the meeting of the association tomorrow evening, Feb. 24.

Starting at 7:30 p.m. in Free Methodist Church Hall, 1621 Cook Street at Balmoral, just above Pandora, the subject to be discussed is one of interest to all present plot holders and to those who become plot holders in coming years. This is the purchase by the association members of a rototiller for use on the allotments.

Committee member Peggy Beadle who provided me with these details was enthusiastic about the project which will make it possible for people with less physical power and spare time to have their plots opened up earlier in spring. And cost to plot holders will naturally be less than when done by bringing in a machine.

The fee charged for tilling will go into the association fund for rototiller cost and maintainance.

Every year new arrivals from elsewhere have the urge in early spring to cultivate and sow a plot of ground for the thrill of growing part of their own food supplies in this climate. Before they realize it they find they are having fun too.

Many of these newcomers are not living in homes without garden space of their own, thus having both time and desire to work outdoors for part of their leisure period.

Garden work is physical exercise in one of its better forms. And where can you find a better return for energy expended?

The annual allotment fee of $20 goes to the provincial ministry of agriculture for cost of water, parking lot maintainance, toilet facilities, full time supervisory work and general administration of the sites.

The enthusiasm of Peggy Beadle, a first year plot holder, and of those who have held plots since the beginning of the scheme in the spring of 1974, comes from total benefits they feel result from their work.

The vegetables have all the flavor they feel is lacking in today's purchased produce. Some tell me they thought lack of flavor was due to new varieties but this is only a partial answer.

Commercial varieties have been developed to endure mechanical harvesting, packing, and long distance hauling, but some old varieties have plenty of good flavor and texture if used within an hour or so of gathering from the garden plot.

Monetary values of crops from the 25 by 50-foot plots have been estimated to average $200 at current market prices. These were arrived at independently by plot holders keeping score on produce as they took it home and compared the prices at their regular produce market.

Each gardener grows what is enjoyed most, even adding a border of annual flowers along main pathways to bring more color.

While perhaps the chief purpose of the flowers is to add bright color to the site as a whole, bouquets for home decoration are also possible.

For more details concerning new applications for allotment gardens this year, phone the ministry of agriculture at 387-5121; leave name and phone number for allotment supervisor Dick Keepence to contact you with details of site locations. Or, go to the meeting tomorrow evening and hear about the allotment project from those who already have them.

EXCUSE ME, GOAT
A MOMENT TO SPARE?
I'd like to tell you about this beautiful listing that I have not far from Mt. Doug Park. It's a big home, only 9 years old, that was very thoughtfully designed and carefully built. Many large windows, wide hallways, high quality floor coverings, and a flowing room layout. There's 1350 sq. ft. on the main floor and over 1000 downstairs. The four bedrooms are approximately 13x13. There's a large den with brick fireplace, private sundeck off the dining room. The list of features goes on and on. How about 2 separate driveways? And there's ocean view to the front and Mt. views to the back. How much land? Approx. 11,000 sq. ft. of showplace landscaping set off by rock walls, lantern lighting, arbutus trees, and six ft. high cedar fence. Call me now to discuss this exquisite home. Price $86,500. Our Specialty Is . . .
Adrian's 40-FOOT CONTAINERS of ANTIQUES at AUCTION

. . . YIPEE!!!! . . . HOORAY!!!!

I came out of my hole the other day and what a day it was!!!! It was so great that I have decided to stay out, and while I'm out here I might just as well have an Antique Auction!

The truth of the matter is, however, that even if it had been a terrible day, I would still have stayed out to do this Auction, because it will be a Sale for ADRIAN IONS, the fellow from Alnwick, Northumberland, England, that we have come to know for Quality, Class, Variety, and a lot of other Good Goodies!

Village Auction is just very lucky to have a fellow like Adrian, who puts together sales of the quality we have right now. It is always a pleasure to catalogue and to auction each and every piece.

For Instance:
—Ornate French Ormulu-decorated brass bed—inlaid burled walnut piano
—Sectional oak bookcase — Five, yes, 5, complete 6-pce. oak dining room suites — a fantastic mahogany bedroom suite — antique pine harvest table — dropfront secretary desk — colonial rocking chairs — double pedestal roll-top desk — antique copper tea kettle — Vienna wall clock
—China dinner service — cranberry banquet table lamp — fine array of display china cabinets — antique pine corner cabinet — cranberry glass trumpet epergne — antique brass-bound rosewood stationery box
—Large brass jam preserving pan — set of copper haystack measures
—2-tier oak tea trolley — old-fashioned pantry Hoosier cabinet
—Mahogany highboy dresser — pr. of Bristol glass vases — banquet table lamps — old-fashioned parlor phonograph — assorted framed pictures and prints — carnival glass collectables — Early American school house clock — single size solid brass bed.

NOW THEN — these are the start — and that kind of quality continues throughout this superb ANTIQUE AUCTION!

NEW VOTE URGED IN UVIC SNARL

The general manager of the University of Victoria's Alma Mater Society recommended today the AMS presidential election results be put aside because two polling stations ran out of ballots.

After three recounts following last week's elections, only two votes separated candidates Douglas Anderson (626 votes) and Brian Gardiner (624).

David Clode said the polling irregularities could have affected five to 10 votes.

In his report to the Representative Assembly, Clode said the two of the five polling stations ran out of ballots about eight or 10 minutes before polls closed at 6 p.m. last Wednesday.

At one station three students were directed to another station, but only two appeared to head in that direction.

He said he has since received letters from three students who said they didn't get a chance vote, leading him to conclude that some students were in affect disenfranchised and the presidential outcome could have been affected.

In the election for representatives on the assembly, the differences were great enough the irregularities would not have affected the outcome, he says in his report.

The assembly will probably hold an emergency meeting in the next day or so to study Clode's report and recommendations.

UVic Denies Graduating Duds

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The University of Victoria education department today heatedly denied ignoring warnings from teachers about graduating students unsuitable to run classrooms.

UVic education dean Norma Mickelson said the charge is "completely wrong" because the teacher and university adviser together prepare the final evaluation on each student teacher.

She was commenting on a charge by Kory Regan, curriculum consultant for the Victoria School Board, that some unsuitable candidates become teachers because the university overrules negative reports by the classroom teacher who has observed the student.

Mrs. Mickelson said: "The charge is completely wrong. We are not ignoring the report from the local teacher. He is part of the final evaluation."

However, teachers today presented the following case studies in support of Mrs. Regan's charge:

—A teacher was preparing notes for an evaluation on a student teacher and was planning to make a number of negative comments when he got a phone call from the student who announced she had been hired by a school board with the help of the university.

—A teacher recommended that a student teacher take an additional year of work because she was not yet ready to handle a class, although she showed some promise.

She was graduated that year despite the warning.

—A teacher gave a young man a failing report but he was passed by the university.

Greater Victoria Teachers Association president Walter Kitley today said "there is some friction between teachers and the university on the question."

However, part of the friction is due to changing educational styles, he said.

In the past, the college of education could turn out a single type of student who would fit in with the teaching style in all schools across the city.

Now, however, there are at least two distinct types of schools — one highly structured with strict discipline and another less structured and more permissive.

"A teacher prepared for one type of teaching environment could be a failure in the other type," he said.

In the same way, a student teacher could get a failing grade in one school and a passing grade in another school.

The problems arise, he said, when a school prepares a negative report on a student and recommend he goes to another school to finish his training work. The school later may learn the student has been graduated by the university but has no way of knowing whether his performance was the same at some other school or if it improved.

"This can lead to misunderstandings between the university and teachers."

Kitley said teachers who have complaints about the college of education on this matter should forward details to the GVTA executive so the problem can be resolved through the UVic liaison committee. The committee, consisting of GVTA executive members and education professors, has been set up to deal with problems of this type, he said.

The debate began when Mrs. Regan, in discussing the relative merits of public schools versus private schools, said public school teachers could overcome the disadvantage of large clahsrooms if they were capable and enthusiastic.

She said the faculty of education should weed out unsuitable candidates and impose stricter admission standards and added that warnings from teachers were ignored by the university.

Dean Mickelson said Mrs. Regan is behind the times in her comments about toughening up the admission standards.

She said UVic imposed a quota system in September and the same quotas would apply this fall. The university will admit only 320 students for elementary teaching and varying numbers for secondary teachers. These include a maximum of 28 in science, nine in art, 27 in English, 15 in French, 18 in mathematics, 25 in geography and 22 in physical education.

The quota system means that only those with high academic qualifications will be admitted. In addition they will have to have personality traits and capabilities that make them appear to be suited to teaching, Mrs. Mickelson said.

TOMB ROBBERS ARRESTED

VEII, Italy (AP) — Police surprised four men digging in a tomb near Veii, one of the most famous of the ancient Etruscan cities, and said they recovered artifacts dating to the 5th century BC. The clandestine diggers had unearthed funeral jewelry, pots and valuable vase. Veii, about 48 miles north of Rome off the Via Cassia, was one of the 13 cities of the Etruscan federation.

Saanich Shuffles Views On Housing Proposals

Waffling was the order of the day at Saanich's lands, planning and housing committee meeting Tuesday.

After considerable debate, aldermen threw out a plan for higher density for the North Quadra area, which they had requested from municipal planner Gil Laurenson at an earlier meeting.

They then endorsed in principle a plan Laurenson originally submitted.

The original plan, proposed a mix of 554 single-family homes and 23 townhouses.

Laurenson said the second plan which would have created 757 single-family homes and 246 townhouses by eliminating a 50-foot strip on either side of the B.C. Hydro right-of-way in the area, was unpalatable to his department.

"It is clearly in conflict with the nearly completed official plan for Saanich," he said.

Two of the new aldermen on council clashed on what development should take place on property abutting the Pat Bay highway opposite the proposed Royal Oak industrial park site.

Repeatedly, Ald. Ian Cass contended this was not prime property and should be developed with, perhaps, single-family homes on small lots or cluster housing.

Ald. John Mika said, in his opinion, even the original plan was, perhaps, calling for too high a density.

"I don't believe in ribbon development along the highway," he said. "The best buffer treatment is open space. I have to take on faith that there's going to be a proper first-class green space (screening the industrial park site."

Mika said he was opting for the original plan "because I think it provides greater scope".

Earlier in the meeting about 50 Ten Mile Point residents appeared in opposition to Broadmead Farms Ltd.'s proposal to build 204 housing units on 70 acres of Minnie Mountain.

Spokesman Howard Sturrock, of 3005 Baynes, presented a petition to council with 441 signatures.

Sturrock said the residents want to be consulted when a land-use contract is being prepared; not when it's completed and aired at a public hearing.

"We want to be informed and we intend to be," he said.

In other business Ben Levinson of architects Orme and Levinson outlined the latest plans of the Isherwood family for development of their property behind the Royal Oak Inn.

Again, Laurenson told aldermen the proposal was in conflict with the community plan for Saanich.

The plan calls for four rental apartment buildings, each containing approximately 112 units, centred with a core containing three tennis courts, a swimming pool and games pavilion.

In other business the committee, on a request from Peden Marketing Consultants Inc., agreed to recommend an area bounded on the east by Douglas, on the north by Boleskine, on the west by Whittier and on the south by the Tolmie, Saanich-Victoria boundary become a development area.

The area is part of the proposed industrial park and committee agreed that council should meet with all property owners and tenants of the industrial park site as soon as possible.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren, Laurenson and parks adminintrator Frank Andrews are to produce reports and estimated costs for development of the site.

Food Supply Rising

World food production is increasing faster than the world's population, an official of a Canadian international aid program said Tuesday.

Dr. Roland Poirier, chairman of a meeting of the Voluntary Agricultural Development Aid (VADA) program, said world food production during the last two years has increased by an average of six per cent annually — more than twice the population growth rate.

However, that does not mean the world's hungry now are well fed, he said, there are still 100 million undernourished people and the solution to their plight involves overcoming problems of distribution as well as production.

The federal-provincial VADA program was launched last July to channel voluntary provincial government and private contributions to developing countries.

In the last two months, B.C. has donated $40,000 worth of milk powder to victims of the Lebanese civil war, Ontario has contributed 800 tons of white beans for distribution in Africa and Chile, and Quebec is donating dairy cattle semen to India.

MAO TSE-TUNG AND THE NEW CHINA

It is impossible to understand the Chinese Revolution or the significance of the Chinese People's Republic without examining the enormous influence Mao Tse-tung exerted during his four decades of leadership of the world's largest and most radical revolutionary movement. This "mini lecture series" will examine three facets of Mao's influence on the new China, namely, his overall historical significance, the public image presented in art and the mass media, and the areas where he is likely to have a lasting influence on China and the world.

Lecture Topics:
Perspectives —Mao in Chinese History, Mao as Marxist Theorist, and Mao in the Modern World Revolution.
Images —The Leader and his Followers.
Legacies —Struggle, Equality, Self-Reliance.

March 2, 9, 16, Elliot 167, University of Victoria; 8-10 p.m. No admission charge.

SPEAKER. Dr. Ralph Crozier, Visiting University Professor.

CONTEMPORARY ISSUES

A selection of thoughtful reflections upon Contemporary Issues will be presented by members of the Department of Philosophy during March. The public is invited to attend and participate in general questioning and discussion following these presentations:

March 2, 1977	MEN AND MACHINES	Dr. Charles Morgan
March 9, 1977	ABORTION	Dr. C. B. Daniels
March 23, 1977	ANIMAL LIBERATION	Dr. R. Beeler

LIONEL WALTER SELLS FORDS AT PETER POLLEN FORD

Fire Guts Flats

Arson is suspected after a fire in an empty downtown building

Victoria firemen and police are investigating the possibility of arson in a fire which gutted the unoccupied Waverley Apartments at 1417 Douglas today.

A spokesman for the fire department said while it was too early to say definitely that the fire was deliberately set, indications are fires broke out simultaneously in more than one suite.

There was no one living in the 16-unit apartment which takes up the top two floors of the three-storey Waverley Building.

No injuries were reported.

Firemen were unable to assess the loss although water damage to Shores Jewelers on the ground floor at 1409 Douglas is expected to run into thousands of dollars.

Two other ground floor stores, Stevenson's Homemade Candy Shop Ltd., and City Hall News also received some water damage.

The fire was spotted at 9:40 a.m.

Ken Hope, manager of Shores Jewelers said a man rushed in to tell him the building was on fire. He went next door, looked through a glass window on the Waverley Apartment door and saw flames at the top of the staircase.

Police cordoned off the 1400-block Douglas while firemen, assisted by a unit from Saanich, fought the blaze.

'STRENGTHENS B.C. BASE'

Mac-Blo Launches $450M Expansion

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

MacMillan Bloedel today announced it plans to spend $450 million over the next five years to modernize and expand its British Columbia operations.

The program includes $90 million to improve sawmills and pulp and paper operations in Port Alberni and $62 million to modernize the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo.

An additional $174 million will be spent on logging, much of it on Vancouver Island.

Last December, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. announced a $125 million two-year capital program in what company chairman Robert Rogers called "an act of faith" in the future of B.C.

In announcing the projects, MacMillan Bloedel president Calvert Knudsen said:

"This investment program in British Columbia should lay to rest any concern that MacMillan Bloedel might diminish its British Columbia indentity or neglect its British Columbia resource.

"MacMillan Bloedel has its roots in British Columbia and it intends to strengthen its British Columbia base. We are confident that the forest products industry in this province has good prospects for the future and we hope to participate in the realization of those prospects."

He warned, however, that the expansion program is based upon the assumption the business climate in B.C. will continue to improve. If conditions worsened in terms of government regulations, taxation or labor problems, capital spending industry will again dry up.

In addition to the $450 million program, the company will spend $140 million in its operations outside British Columbia over the next five years.

Of the $450 million, a total of $253 million will be spent on logging and sawmills while the remaining $190 million will go toward modernizing pulp and paper operations. The other $7 million will be spent on research and development.

The total includes $78 million for features related to pollution abatement, health and safety.

At Powell River $63 million will be spent including $16 million for a second thermo-chemical pulp section.

At Port Alberni the expenditure of $90 million includes $58 million to modernize the pulp and paper operation, $20 million for improvements to the main sawmill plus $12 million to improve other mills.

A new sawmill will be constructed, probably near Chemainus but the site has not yet been selected.

It will spend $16 million to build a new self-propelled self-dumping log carrier, an improved version of the Haida Monarch, which went into operation in 1975.

The $174 million for logging includes $97 million for new land, Queen Charlottes and equipment on Vancouver Isthe coastal region. Another $50 million is for new roads.

SNAKE IN THE MAIL FOR POLITICIAN

GWFLO, Rhodesia (UPI) — When Samson Hove shook the unexpected parcel and it shook back, he got worried.

Hove is an official of Bishop Abel Muzorwea's black United African National Council. Recalling that a Zambian politician recently received a parcel that blew up in his face, Hove put his parcel up in a tree and called the law.

Police satisfied themselves that the parcel contained no explosives. They ripped off the wrappings and out came a highly ruffled puff adder.

"The adder was very angry," a police spokesman said of the short thick and highly venomous snake.

"We think the parcel was posted in Bulawayo. It seems the snake was intended as a form of political message, passed from one politician to another," a spokesman said.

Inquiry Calls For Phillips

VANCOUVER (CP) — Economic Development Minister Don Phillips and Art Cameron, his former constituency secretary, will be called to testify to the Grizzly Valley pipeline inquiry in March, inquiry counsel Ernest Alexander said today.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith, was called by Premier Bill Bennett to investigate possible wrongdoing in connection with pipeline development in Mr. Phillips' northeast British Columbia constituency.

Earlier testimony at the inquiry from Stephen Rogers (SC — Vancouver South) has linked Phillips to land holdings in the area to be affected by pipeline development.

Ivor Emberton, an official of the land management branch in Victoria, told the inquiry today that all Cown land along the 92-mile proposed pipeline route has been reserved since April 30, 1976, to await completion of studies into the development of roads and future town sites.

Emberton said that only a width of about two lots at the north end of the pipeline route touches privately-held land. He said until studies concerning coal, oil and gas development in the region are completed, his department will disallow all applications for land.

Earlier the inquiry was told land and stock speculation in connection with the Grizzly Valley pipeline "really had nothing to do with Phillips."

"This has been my mistake and my problem," Arthur Weeks, former special assistant to the minister, told the inquiry at the conclusion of his testimony Tuesday.

Weeks said he "never revealed any confidential information to anyone" that would have enabled them to benefit from prior knowledge of the pipeline project.

Weeks went on to say he was "aware of no wrong-doing with respect to stock, land or misuse of confidential information" by anyone in the government.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith, was ordered by Premier Bennett Jan. 11 after it was revealed that Weeks, Art Cameron, Weeks's constituency secretary and two employees of the British Columbia Petroleum Corp. had traded in shares of two oil companies in the Grizzly Valley region before the official announcement of the pipeline's construction.

Weeks was fired by government order-in-council Dec. 22 after he disclosed his stock holdings in Cheyenne Petroleum Ltd. to Phillips. The $100-million pipeline project would connect gas reserves owned by Cheyenne, Quasar Petroleum Ltd. and other firms to the provincial pipeline system.

Weeks also denied he offered a friend confidential information on land developments in northeast British Columbia. He simply offered his

ICBC Stipend $3,750

The temporary vice-chairman of the Insurance Corporation of B.C. is paid a "stipend" of $3,750 a month, ICBC head Pat McGeer said Tuesday.

Vice-chairman Ralph Gillen, also a vice-president of strategic planning and development of MacMillan Bloedel, is paid that amount because ICBC cannot pay salaries high enough to attract full time senior executives, McGeer said.

The "stipend" actually represents a savings to the Crown corporation, McGeer said, because Gillen would be paid more money if his remuneration was on the normal board of directors basis of $250 a day.

ICBC is trying to recruit new senior executives but until they can be found, Gillen was asked to serve on a full-time basis for a "couple of months," McGeer said.

Answering questions in the legislature, the minister said he saw no conflict of interest in having a MacMillan Bloedel vice-president serve as vice-chairman of the Crown corporation.

McGeer said Gillen was requested to put in a full-time performance at ICBC, Gillen then made the request of MacMillan Bloedel, and "MacMillan Bloedel, as a good corporate citizen, made him available for a period."

The revelation of the "stipend of $3,750 a month (which would amount to $45,000 for a full year) brought hoots of laughter in the legislature.

Tory leader Scott Wallace said outside the house he had always been under the impression that stipends were for people like preachers who were paid inadequately.

"To suggest that this man is paid that because of a shortage of executives is an insult to the intelligence of the members of this house."

The going rate for a senior executive in the insurance business in Canada is about $90,000 a year, McGeer said, and because ICBC pays only about half that, it is having trouble attracting senior people.

ICBC now pays about $500,000 a year in executive salaries and the Crown corporation will have to take a look at increasing that, he said.

"Because of the low salaries and the kind of publicity the corporation has had during its first three years, it is not the sort of job to make anyone move (from private industry) even for an equivalent salary."

N-PLANT 'FORTRESS'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is ordering utility companies to transform every nuclear power plant into an armed fortress capable of withstanding attack by trained guerrillas who have help from inside.

Tough new nuclear regulatory Commission security rules taking effect this fall will require atomic plants to have more guards, install surveillance equipment and assault barriers, search employees and visitors and maintain a defence force with authority to shoot to kill.

The cost will be high — up to four times what power plants now spend on security and some employees may dislike the new restrictions. But NRC officials say they will shut down any plant that fails to comply.

Benard Rusche, the NRC's reactor regulation chief, announced tte security crackdown in a news conference Tuesday. He estimated it may cost each of the nation's 69 planned or anticipated nuclear plants up to $2.5 million to provide beefed-up security and up to $2 million a year to maintain it.

The requirement, he said, is for plants to be able to repulse an attack by dedicated saboteurs who have automatic weapons, explosives, military training and perhaps an accomplice inside.

Ottawa Launching Study Into Retirement Incomes

Times News Service

OTTAWA — The federal government has launched a study of retirement income and is examining tax measures which affect private pension systems, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald informed the Commons Tuesday.

The study is being conducted by officials of the finance and health and welfare departments. The results are expected to be available in a few months.

"The sutdy is in the broadest sense to consider the questions of retirement income, particularly those related to the jurisdiction of the government of Canada," said the minister.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York Simcoe) raised the matter in the house pointing out that the Canada Pension Plan reportedly will pass a threshold on or before 1982. At that time, he said, benefit payments will exceed tax revenue.

He asked Macdonald to indicate what steps the government intends to take to ensure that the Canada Pension Plan will be properly funded and not become a burden upon future taxpayers.

The minister said penisons in Canada is a matter that has received "some consideration by the government."

Stevens said there is a "great hodge-podge" of governmental pension plans at all levels of the administration.

Some are funded, some are not.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde also said Tuesday he hopes new pension legislation will be proclaimed on or before July 1.

And, he told the Commons health, welfare an social affairs committee, he is prepared to negotiate pension agreements with foreign countries as soon as the bill gets Commons approval.

Proclamation of the bill will mark the beginning of a 40-year period of adjustment during which current and former residents can apply for a pension under residency requirements in either the old or new legislation, whichever is the most advantageous to them.

Under the new law, each year of residency in Canada after age 18 will be worth one-fortieth of a full pension.

Lalonde stressed that no one getting pensions at the time the bill is proclaimed will be affected by the new law. Residents who are at least 25 years old when the bill is proclaimed will be able to choose between the old and new regulations.

Uganda Massacre Reported

Times News Service

DAR ES SALAAM — President Idi Aman has launched a massacre of two predominantly Christian tribes in Uganda, a group of 22 refugees claimed today after arriving in neighboring Tanzania.

In Kampala, Uganda's capital, Amin told reporters he had put down a coup that was to include an airborne landing by paratroopers from the United States, Britain and Israel.

The refugees in Tanzania said students, police, soldiers and civil servants belonging to the northern Acholi and Langi tribes were being rounded up and "liquidated" to purge the government apparatus of members of the tribes.

Western diplomatic sources in Nairobi, Kenya, said shooting was heard for 30 minutes Tuesday evening in Kampala's Mugire prison, where the Langi and Acholi detainees were reported being held.

Some refugee reports put the number of persons killed in the East African country's latest bloodletting at more than 1,000.

Confirmation of the refugees' reports was not available. But Amnesty International estimates that Amin's forces have killed between 50,000 and 300,000 persons since he seized power six years ago.

The sources said Amin believes the two tribes, in a plot mastermindeed by former president Milton Obots, were out to overthrow him.

U.S.-Canada Ties 'in Good Shape'

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Trudeau ended his official visit to the United States today, after assuring that Canada will remain united despite talk of French-Canadian separatism, and U.S.-Canadian relations are on solid ground.

Trudeau held a final round of talks with President Jimmy Carter Tuesday on issues ranging from Quebec to Cuba and world affairs.

"There are no irritants on either side," a Canadian official said after the 90-minute summit talk Tuesday. "They agreed that bilateral relations are in good shape and in good hands."

Trudeau and Carter met twice and got along famously. A senior White House official said later he had never seen Carter relate so well so suickly to another person as he did to Trudeau.

Officials said Carter and Trudeau discussed, among other bilateral issues, the Quebec separatist threat, coastal fishing rights and the construction of a gas pipeline across Canada from Alaska to the Continental United States.

They said discussion of international issues included Canada's relations with Cuba and Trudeau's meeting with Cuban leaders. Canada maintains full diplomatic and trade relations with Havana, while Carter has expressed interest in restoring such relations under certain conditions.

At a press conference before leaving Washington, Trudeau warned the separation of Quebec from Canada would have much graver implications for the United States than the 1972 Soviet attempt to place nuclear missiles in Cuba.

Emphasizing his belief that the United States has a fundamental interest in Canadian unity, he added that "they are properly sensitive about interfering in our internal problems" and they are concerned that they should not interfere.

He refused to speculate further on the implications of Quebec separatism, saying it will not happen and he sees no point is discussing such issues as to what an independent Québec would mean to North American defence.

He also rejected the idea of a national referendum in Canada on the Quebec issue, saying he has no doubt that the rest of Canada wants to keep
